WILSON SEES ERA OF WORLD TRADE FOR AMERICA

It Is Even Now Here, He Tells Baltimore Audience, and Must Be Expanded by Efficiency.

SAYS WAY IS ALL PREPARED

Reviews Laws Enacted and Declares Future Legislation Will Further Free Business.

CHEERED FOR FOUR MINUTES

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 25.—Before a crowd that packed the Lyric Theatre, President Wilson spoke this afternoon of his vision of a "new era of business" in which the nation is to take its part, not in a spirit which would exclude its rivals from the field, but which would excel them.

Fifteen thousand applications for tickets of admission were received, of which only 3,500 could be granted. The audience was composed largely of delegates to the convention of the Grain Dealers' National Association and their guests. The President's speech was a plea for a wider vision in the field of business. It contained hardly a trace of political allusion.

The President received a noisy greeting as he entered the theatre. The audienc stood up, cheered, and waved handkerchiefs, and there were shouts of "We want Wilson," and "You're a lifesaver." The demonstration continued four minutes.

All through the address the people were most cordial, even enthusiastic. There was disappointment, however, among those who came with the idea that they would hear a campaign speech, and who were primed to explode in a wild burst of political enthusiasm.

At one point in his speech, Mr. Wilson, in discussing our business relations with the "great and rich republics to the south of us," said: "For the first time in my recollection they are beginning to trust and believe in us and want us, and one of my chief concerns has been to see that nothing was done that did not show friendship and good faith on our part."

The President's hearers thought of Mexico, and an outburst of cheering shook the hall. That, perhaps, was the nearest the President came to any definite allusion to recognized political issues. Hearty applause there was, and it was frequent, and there were evidence that many in the audience wanted to raise the roof with a genuine old-fashioned political rally; but the President stuck to his determination to refrain from partisanship in the "discussion of public questions before non-partisan bodies," and what he termed at the beginning of his address the "vapors of passion" were kept wholly out of the speech.

Big Crowd Waits to Cheer Him.

The President, with Mrs. Wilson, Dr. Grayson and Secretary Tumulty, reached Baltimore from Shadow Lawn in the special car Constitution shortly after 1:30 P. M. He was met at the railroad station by Secretary of War Baker, who had a long conference with him before he proceeded to the theatre. A big crowd waited for an hour outside the station to see him, and when he came out to the waiting automobile he was heartily cheered. There was another big crowd at the entrance to the theatre. An army of policemen kept the way clear.

Mrs. Wilson had a seat on the stage behind the President, while in a box were Joseph R. Wilson, the President's brother, and Miss Bertha Bolling, Mrs. Wilson's sister. Senator Blair Lee of Maryland sat in another box. Lee G. Metcalf, President of the Grain Dealers, introduced Mr. Wilson with a word or two.

In outlining his idea of the new era which must come even before the end of the war, the President referred to several of the accomplishments of the Administration in clearing the way for that era. These, he said, included the Federal Reserve act, which had given the Federal banks the proper equipment through which they could assist American commerce in all parts of the world; the Federal Trade Commission, which "has transformed the Government of the United States from being an antagonist of business into being a friend of business"; the Tariff Commission, which is to see the facts and state them "no matter whose opinion those facts contradict." The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce was also cited as a valuable aid in discovering the necessary knowledge on which world trade must be based.

In discussing the creation of the Federal Trade Commission the President made a statement that brought much laughter and applause from the grain dealers.

"A few years ago," said Mr. Wilson, "American business men took up their morning paper with some degree of nervousness to see what the Government was doing to them. I ask you if you take up the morning paper now with any degree of nervouscness?"

The statement that "we must address ourselves immediately and as rapidly as possible to the re-creation of a great American merchant marine" in a discussion of the shipbuilding act also brought much applause.

After saying that until the new bank-

SMALL INVESTORS SHY AT GERMAN LOAN

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Small investors are not subscribing to the German war loan in the same numbers as to previous issues, according to a Reuter's Amsterdam dispatch, quoting the Cologne Gazette.

"However important and valuable," says the Gazette, "are subscriptions by the millions, our war loans would never have been a great success without small single subscriptions." The paper adds that the farmers are afraid that Germany must suffer bankruptcy, owing to the gigantic and ever-increasing cost of the war.

Calls England the Foe of Neutrals.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—In his speech delivered before the representatives of the German economic unions Secretary Helfferich assailed England as the economic foe not only of Germany but of the neutral nations.

"England," he said, "cannot escape the realization that with the means so far employed, be they never so brutal, she cannot conquer us. Therefore England applies the thumbscrew of economic warfare tighter with all her strength. She increases the violation of the rights of our neutral neighbors to an immeasurable degree, and her hunger war on Germany she follows with a hunger war on neutrals. At the same time England sees herself compelled, quite contrary to her original intentions of waging war with the blood of others, to stake the flower of her own youth.

"But even though we compel England to meet us on other fields than those of money and business, still the financial war against England remains for us the important part of our whole warfare. Here, too, we must maintain the field against our enemies and particularly against England. England is and remains the motive power that holds together the hostile coalition; and because England, in her war of annihilation against us, has from the very beginning banked so largely upon her money power we must show her that her calculation is false, and with our fifth war loan must once again prove that we are animated by the firmest, most determined will to win. There is no more infamous or lying word than the treasonable remark that subscribing to the war loan lengthens the war. The very contrary is true. Those who subscribe helps to shorten the war and hastens victory; those who hoard their money help our enemies."

FREE 1,200 PACKAGES IN AMERICAN MAILS

British Release Parcels for Consignors Who Sent Them to Central Powers' Territory.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Twelve hundred parcels consigned to the parcel post from the United States to destinations within the territory of the Central Powers and held up by the British authorities have been released and possession of them may now be obtained by their American consignors on their request.

According to the Foreign Office, this proceeding merely follows a long established policy of the Government in releasing non-contraband inward-bound parcels to their original consignors. Such goods, being non-contraband, are held under Order in Council, and in administering these the Government is merely concerned in keeping goods of the sort from entering belligerent territory. There is no desire, it is explained, to withhold them from their original owners, but the Government has no intention to release such parcels for forwarding to their original destination.

The parcels released this week consist mostly of clothing, false teeth, and various articles which do not appear on the contraband list. It is expected that, since the blockade administration is becoming more efficient, further releases will occur frequently.

ARABIAN REBELS TAKE TURKS' FORTS AT TAIF

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Another success for the Arabian revolutionists is announced in a Reuter dispatch from Cairo today. It states that the Sherif of Mecca, leader of the revolutionary movement which has resulted in the capture of Turkish garrisons at Mecca and other important points, now reports that the Turkish garrison which has been holding out in the forts at Taif, sixty-five miles southeast of Mecca, has been forced to surrender.

The troops that surrendered, the dispatch adds, comprised fifty officers and 800 men, with ten guns and a large quantity of military stores.

ITALIANS STORM PEAK ON MONTE CAURIOL

ROME, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The War Office announced today that Italian troops had taken by storm another mountain top on the Trentino front, inflicting heavy losses on the Austrians. The statement reads.

On the Trentino front the enemy's artillery was more active. Our batteries replied energetically. A few shells fell on Ala, in the Lagarina Valley, without causing any damage.

Our offensive in the region between the Amisio and Vanoi Cismon Valley has gained for us a new and brilliant success. On Saturday afternoon our Alpine troops took the summit of Garinal, 1,886 feet high, on the northeastern part of Monte Cauriol. The enemy resisted stubbornly and left many dead on the field. We took several prisoners. Notwithstanding an immediate bombardment of the captured position by heavy artillery, it was consolidated strongly by us.

VIENNA, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The Austro-Hungarian official report today has this to say of operations on the Italian front:

The artillery activity of the enemy on the front of the coastal district was lively in some sectors during the afternoon. In the night an airship flew over our lines and dropped a few bombs in the region of Comen without causing damage.

On the front of the Fassana Alps two Alpine battalions attacked the Gardinal-Cima Busa Alta sector at night, the enemy artillery having violently bombarded this sector during the day. The Italians were repulsed with sanguinary losses after bitter hand-to-hand fighting.

LEADERS ADMIT ALL UNIONS WILL NOT JOIN STRIKE

MANY LOCALS MARK TIME

APPEAL TO GOV. WHITMAN

Legislators Will Ask Him Today to Call Special Session to Enforce Arbitration.

Executives of the Joint Labor Conference Committee, who arranged for a general strike by organized wage earners in this city commencing tomorrow morning, as a sympathetic demonstration in aid of the striking carmen, announced last night that some of the unions of New York and vicinity probably would not be able to join in the movement until the end of this week or later.

Rumors that some such change in the original program might be considered expedient had been circulated frequently since the vote to suspend was taken on last Friday, but this was the first time they had been officially confirmed by the leaders.

The announcement was made after the leaders at their third meeting had received what they termed encouraging reports from many labor organizations which were said to have ratified the action of their business agents and delegates. It was estimated from these reports that 40 per cent. of the organized strength of the workers in this city, or about 260,000 persons out of a possible 650,000, had already pledged themselves to the demonstration, but names of the unions were withheld, for the purpose, it was said, of protecting their members from being "blacklisted" by employers.

Meeting for Strike Plans.

These figures were given out with a statement that all the labor representatives would participate in a great convention at Beethoven Hall, 210 Fifth Street, commencing at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when every phase of the carmen's controversy would be discussed and arrangements made for creating public sentiment in the strikers' favor.

The statement was handed out by Hugh Frayne, Chairman of the Joint Labor Conference Committee, who supplanted Ernest Bohm, Secretary of that body, as the spokesman of the day. The statement was as follows:

The reports so far received by the Joint Labor Conference Committee are very encouraging. A large number of unions have decided by a general vote of the members to respond to the call for a general suspension of work next Wednesday as scheduled. Other organizations are still voting. The Conference Committee knows of no instance in which any union has voted against the proposition. From present indications a large body of workers will go out on strike on Wednesday, and the numbers will be augmented from day to day until the tie-up will be practically complete.

At the meeting of the Joint Labor Conference Committee this afternoon plans were completed for the holding of a labor convention and to invite the general officers of all the national and international unions who have headquarters located in New York City. Representatives from all the Central Labor Unions, building trades, and trades councils in New York and vicinity and all local unions will be invited. The convention will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 27, at Beethoven Hall, 210 Fifth Street, at 10 A. M. The purpose of this convention is to organize and extend the general suspension of work scheduled to begin on that day.

It is expected that the entire organized legal movement of New York City will be represented at the convention by delegates whose number will run into the hundreds. Every phase of the car men's strike will be taken up and means will be devised to bring it to a speedy and successful conclusion. Such means will include financial support and numerous public demonstrations in conjunction with the contemplated suspension of work. Committees will be chosen for the various phases of the work and will, from time to time, report back to the Joint Labor Conference Committee.

Women in Conference.

Among those who attended yesterday's session of the conference were Morris Hillquit, counsel for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and John Pierce, Solomon Metz, and Abraham Baroff, officials of that organization. Others were Julia Stuart Pointz, a delegate of one of the unions in the United Hebrew Trades; P. J. O'Brien of the Bronx Building Trades; Miss M. Titelbaum of the Hat Trimmers' Union, Henry Waxman, Treasurer of the Garment Workers' Union; Ernest Bohm, Mr. Frayne, and William B. Fitzgerald, general organizer of the carmen.

Mr. Fitzgerlad became impatient when asked when striking carmen would begin to receive strike benefits.

"I don't want to be asked that again," he said. "That is our business. Ask Mr. Shonts how much the strike is costing the Interborough and the New York Railways companies."

All of the leaders joined in asserting that they saw no significance in the fact that Mr. Bohm, Secretary of the Joint Labor Conference Committee, was formerly Treasurer of Labor's National Peace Council, the now defunct organization which inaugurated a movement last year to stop the manufacture and shipment of munitions of war from this country to Europe.

A group of Assemblymen and one State Senator met at the Biltmore Hotel yesterday, passed resolutions and made an appointment with Governor Whit-

Zeppelins Again Raid English Counties; Berlin Admits Loss of Two Under Heavy Fire

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 26.—"Several hostile airships crossed the east and northeast coasts of England between 10:30 o'clock and midnight last night," says an official communication issued shortly after midnight.

Later the following official statement was made public:

"Several hostile airships—probably six—visited the northeastern and southern counties during the night. Bombs were dropped in the northern counties and some casualties and damage are reported.

"Full reports have not yet been received."

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (via London.)—Extensive fires were observed to have been caused by the Zeppelin bombardment of London and the English midland counties on Saturday night, it was announced today in the official report on the air raid.

Two of the Zeppelins were lost as a result of the fire of anti-aircraft guns in London. The statement reads as follows:

During the night of Sept. 23-24 several naval airships dropped bombs on London, on places of military importance, and on the midland counties. Large fires were everywhere observed to result, these remaining visible for a long time.

Previously, before crossing the British coast, the airships were fired upon by guard vessels, and during the attack itself were under an extraordinarily heavy fire of incendiary shells from numerous anti-aircraft batteries. They silenced some batteries by well directed volleys.

Two of the airships fell victims to anti-aircraft guns at London. All the others returned undamaged.

The Berlin newspapers and public appear to accept philosophically the loss of two Zeppelins in the raid on England.

The Kreuzzeitung discusses briefly the possibility that the British might be able to copy the Zeppelin from the airship they brought down which was not completely destroyed. It dismisses this, however, in view of the fact that France, which has long had possession of a captured Zeppelin, has never been able to duplicate it.

The text of the Berlin official statement as received here by wireless via Sayville is in greater detail than that given in the above dispatch. It follows:

On the night of Sept. 23 and 24 several squadrons of naval airships extensively bombed London and places of military importance on the Humber and in the middle counties of England, among which were Nottingham and Sheffield. Success everywhere was visible from the heavy conflagrations which could be seen for a long while.

The airships when approaching England and before crossing the English coast were shelled by patrol boats, and during the attack by defensive batteries, which used incendiary projectiles. The airships silenced some batteries by well-directed volleys.

Two airships fell victims to the defensive fire around London. All the others returned undamaged.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Regarding the German official report on the Zeppelin raid, the Official Press Bureau today states:

"In addition to the fact that no anti-aircraft defenses or places of military importance were damaged, this account is full of the usual misstatements."

Danish fishermen report having observed four Zeppelin airships yesterday traveling in a southeasterly direction, says a dispatch from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph Company. One of the Zeppelins was in a damaged condition and was being accompanied by torpedo boat destroyers.

TRAINS TELESCOPED IN A SUBWAY CRASH

A DOZEN PASSENGERS HURT

But None Goes to Hospital After the Smash — Hedley Says Men Are Nervous.

One of the few wrecks in the history of the subway, and the first in which cars ever have been known to telescope, was saved from being an appalling disaster yesterday afternoon because the front car of an express train which crashed into the rear of an empty "dead" train on the southbound elevated structure at 207th Street carried no passengers.

Only the patrolman doing strike duty on the train was badly injured, and out of the 200-odd passengers in the cars behind him, not one of the dozen who gave their names to the police as injured went to a hospital.

Albert Martin, motorman of the moving train, a South Ferry express, jumped to safety after shutting off his power and jamming his emergency brake to the last notch.

In a confused story, told just after the rear-end collision, Martin spoke of it having been "dark"; asserted that his brakes refused to halt the train in time, and declared that rain falling at the moment caught in the wire meshes of the screen over the window of his operating booth and obscured his vision. The screen was for the purpose of warding off missiles of strike sympathizers. The accident occurred at 3:20 P. M.

To several detectives who questioned him Martin admitted, they said, that he was eating a piece of pie when the imminence of the crash led him to snatch open the door across the platform and jump to safety.

Martin is a ten-year employe of the Interborough and had been running subway trains eight years.

All Cars of Steel.

Physically, the wreck was not even remotely connected with the transit strike, but Frank Hedley, General Manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, declared the extreme nervous tension to which motormen have been subjected because of the strike was directly responsible. While Theodore P. Shonts, President, nodded vigorous approval, Mr. Hedley asserted that public safety demanded prompt return of its whole transit situation to normal.

Each of the ten-car trains involved was made up of all-steel rolling stock. Frank Hayward, member of the Metropolitan District Public Service Commission, after viewing the wreck, asserted that this was largely responsible for the slight consequences of the wreck. "It was the mercy of God that those two cars were empty," he exclaimed, "and the little damage done to the rest of the trains proves our contention that composite wood and steel trains should not be used on elevated structures."

Mr. Hedley disagreed with Mr. Hayward. He declared that had there been the slightest curvature in the track (it was straight where the smash took place) the cars would have been flung in all directions. He insisted that many of them might have been hurled to the street, doing terrific damage.

Subway trains, as are elevated trains, are operated visualy on the elevated portions of the lines, no signals being used except at curves and crossovers. Mr. Hayward declared the accident would not have happened had there been automatic trip stops on the elevated structure, such as halt a subway train in the tubes if it runs past a signal set against it. Both Mr. Shonts and Mr. Hedley maintained their long-established position that the very rare rear-end collision on the Interborough system does not demonstrate the need of further physical devices to insure safety on overhead structures.

Shonts Opposes Automatic Signals.

"One minute and forty-eight seconds headway is the best we can do in the tubes," said Mr. Shonts, "because of the necessary slowness in operation under a complication of delicate automatic devices. On the Third Avenue elevated we can dispatch a train every 42 seconds under visual operation. Public Service Commission experts figure that operation would be slowed up 25 per cent. by automatic dispatching. We figure from

BRITISH OFFICERS HELD IN THIS PORT

Two Who Came on Saxonia Are to Go to Ellis Island Today.

MYSTERY IN THE ACTION

Washington Denies Issuing Instructions to Stop Belligerents' Soldiers, but Howe Says He Had Orders.

Major Arthur S. Humphreys and Lieutenant Hugh Levick, Jr., two British officers who were wounded in the offensive on the Somme, arrived here yesterday on the Cunarder Saxonia. They were detained by the immigration authorities.

Commissioner Frederic C. Howe said last night that Major Humphreys and Lieutenant Levick had been detained under an order received two weeks ago from the Secretary of Labor at Washington.

"The order stated," Mr. Howe continued, "that, acting upon a request from the State Department, I was to instruct the immigration inspectors to detain all officers or soldiers belonging to the belligerent countries landing at this port in transit to Canada.

"Four French and English soldiers who arrived here last week were detained at Ellis Island under this order. They were questioned before a Board of Special Inquiry and the findings were sent to the Secretary of Labor at Washington, who conveyed them to the State Department.

"These men were very much shot up in the war and were in a highly nervous condition, and so far as I know they are on the island yet."

When he was informed that the British Consul General had obtained the release of one of the English soldiers named Cox on Sunday night, the Commissioner said he had not heard of it.

Mr. Howe said that Major Humphreys and Lieutenant Levick would go before a board at Ellis Island this morning and would be detained until instructions were received from Washington. The order, he said, also covered officers and soldiers intending to stay in the United States unless they could produce documentary evidence that they had been discharged from the army.

Major Humphreys, who had brought his bride with him, intended to visit friends in this city and Canada. Lieutenant Levick, whose father is a member of the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co. of New York and Boston, was born in this country, but he was registered as a British subject at the embassy at Washington.

The detained officers telephoned to the British Consulate from the Cunard pier, but it was then too late to take any action with the State Department. They remaintd on the Saxonia all night.

J. O. Pederson, another passenger on the Saxonia, who formerly was in the British Army, was not detained, as he was incapacitated for further fighting. Pederson lost his right leg at the battle of the Mons. He walks comfortably with a cork leg. He said that when the order for retreat was given his regiment, the Royal Irish Fusiliers, misunderstood and remained behind to attack the foe.

A recent dispatch from Washington said that complaints had been received regarding officers and men of the belligerent armies who passed through this country on their way to Canada. The practice, it was asserted, menaced America's neutrality.

Denies General Detention Order.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—No word has come to the Bureau of Immigration here of the detention of the two British Army officers, Major Humphreys and Lieutenant Hugh Levick. It was said by officials that it was probable that no report of the two cases had been prepared, as none would be made unless there was decision by the Board of Special Inquiry against the admission of the two officers and an appeal was taken in their behalf to the Commissioner General of Immigration.

A reported statement of Ellis Island Inspectors that they had been ordered to detain all belligerent soldiers who were unable to show discharge papers was said by bureau officials to be wholly erroneous. No such order had been issued, they said.

If British soldiers or those of any of the belligerents came to the United States intending to stay here and become citizens of this country they would be dealt with, it was explained, merely as intending immigrants, according to the immigration laws. Wounded soldiers would not be admitted except when they came as visitors supplied with sufficient means and only intending to remain temporarily in this country. There is a hint that the practice of soldiers on leave who pass from Great Britain to Canada, both at war, has been assailed as violating our neutrality.

The immigration authorities at ports have been instructed to include in their reports of physical and medical examinations statements of tests of the

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company says that he learns that the resignation of Gottlieb von Jagow, German Foreign Minister, is imminent. Ill-health is given as the reason.

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The German Foreign Minister, Herr von Jagow, made a short call on Ambassador Gerard at the embassy this morning. The Ambassador declined to discuss the visit.

Venizelos Heads Greek Revolution, Will Issue Mobilization Call

Ex-Premier Goes to Crete Accompanied by Head of Navy and His Former Cabinet—Country's Richest Man Offers His Entire Fortune for the Cause.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Sept. 25, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—During the night former Premier Venizelos left Athens for Crete, in order to place himself at the head of the National movement, accompanied by a small band of supporters, including Admiral Condouriotis, Chief Admiral of the Greek Navy. Athens as yet is quite unaware of this dramatic step.

On arriving at Crete, M. Venizelos, in the name of his followers, will issue a proclamation in which he will state that he places himself at the head of the National movement to provide a last opportunity for the Crown and Government to place themselves in line with the majority of the Greek people.

There will be no declaration of dethronement of the monarch. M. Venizelos will call for a general mobilization throughout all the islands for the purpose of national defense. He will afterward visit Mitylene, Chios, and Samos, proceeding from the latter place to Saloniki.

I learn that Leonidas Embericos, owner of the National Steam Navigation Company of Greece, a millionaire, said to be the richest man in the country, has informed Admiral Condouriotis that he places the whole of his great fortune at the disposal of the National movement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 26.—Former Premier Venizelos of Greece, who left Athens yesterday for Crete and Saloniki, is coming to London, it is stated in well-informed circles here, and interesting deductions are drawn.

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 26.—Former Premier Venizelos, accompanied by Rear Admiral Condouriotis, Commander in Chief of the Greek Navy, a number of superior officers, and all the members of his former Cabinet with the exception of M. Raktavin, who was Minister of Justice, left Athens early yesterday bound for Crete, whence they are expected to go to Saloniki, advices from Athens state.

According to one dispatch Mr. Venizelos took his departure from the capital at 5 o'clock in the morning. On reaching the coast he and his party put off in an open boat, from which they were picked up by the merchant ship Hesperia.

It is understood that in Crete M. Venizelos, in a proclamation, will invite King Constantine to put himself at the head of a national defense movement.

Fully armed Cretan insurgents, numbering 30,000, are reported as being in complete control of the island. Canea, Heraclion and other coast towns are in their possession.

The Greek authorities have turned over all Government buildings to the leaders of the separatist movement. Only eleven out of eighty members of King Constantine's famous Cretan Guard remain loyal. The guard has disbanded.

It is reported in political circles in Athens that a renewed effort to learn from the diplomatic representatives of the Entente Powers what Greek Ministerial changes would mollify the Entente and enable negotiations to proceed more regularly met with this unofficial suggestion: "The unacceptable members of the Cabinet know they are not acceptable without being told. If the Greek Government be sincere it will clean its own house."

Mgr. Agathangelos, Greek Metropolitan of Drama, was arrested on board the steamer Ohio on its arrival at Saloniki from Piraeus by order of the National Defense Committee, according to a Saloniki dispatch to the Paris Matin. Bishop Agathangelos constantly attacked the Entente in speeches and writings, and is also accused, the dispatch says, of acting as a spy.

HURL BULGARS BACK ON SALONIKI FRONT

LONDON, Sept. 25.—West and north of Florina the Allies yesterday began an offensive which carried the Russians up a strongly fortified height known as Hill 916, the French into the village of Petorak, and the Serbians across the frontier on the Broda River. In the centre Doiran was bombarded by the French artillery, which set fire to the town. West of the Struma the British made a raid on Janimah.

On the left bank of the River Struma British troops, continuing their raids, were successful in an attack upon Janimah, to the north of Lake Tahinos. A detachment of French troops operating on the right of the British took a trench at the point of the bayonet and made some prisoners.

From Doiran Lake to the Vardar our artillery has displayed great activity. An energetic bombardment of Doiran resulted in causing a fire in the town. On our left wing progress was continued along all the line. In the region of the Broda River Serbian troops have reached the frontier to the northeast of Florina. French infantrymen have occupied the first houses of Petorak as a result of a spirited fight, and they also have made a slight advance to the north of Florina.

To the west of this town Russian troops captured by assault Hill 916, which had been strongly organized by the enemy. In this same locality a Bulgarian counterattack was checked by the fire of our artillery and then repulsed at the point of the bayonet by French and Russian troops acting together.

To the southeast of Florina a French reconnoitring detachment has had several spirited engagements in the country south of Presba Lake with Bulgarian detachments from Biklista.

Says Serbs Failed at Kalmakcalan.

Macedonian Front—Minor engagements occurred near Florina on Saturday. Repeated strong Serbian attacks against Kaimakcalan broke down. Weak English detachments advancing on a wide front in the Struma sector were repulsed.

SOFIA, Sept. 24, (via London Sept. 25.)—The Bulgarians have successfully defended Kaimakcalan height, on the westerly side of the Macedonian battle front, against repeated attacks by Entente forces, the War Office announced today. Successive assaults were delivered yesterday on the Bulgarian positions, but in each case the attacking forces, although they closely approached the Bulgarian trenches, were unable to penetrate them and fell back with heavy losses. The official statement follows:

Near Florina the situation is unchanged.

On Sept. 23, the enemy, after prolonged preparation by artillery and infantry fire and bomb throwing, made repeated attacks upon Kaimakcalan height. The enemy detachments advanced and attacked successively the right and left flank and finally the centre of our position. The defenders unshakenly allowed the enemy to approach within fifty or sixty steps of the trenches and then repulsed him with violent rifle and machine-gun fire, causing him heavy losses.

In the Moglena Valley and on both sides of the Vardar there has been weak artillery firing.

At the foot of the Belasica Planina quiet prevails.

On the Struma front there has been lively firing. Several enemy battalions that advanced against the villages of Nevolen, Dolno, Karajovo and Gudelt were attacked by our troops and thrown back to the right bank of the stream.

On the Aegean Coast and on the remainder of the front and along the Danube quiet prevails.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE 2,000 IN DOBRUDJA

Rumanians Score in Transylvania, Where They Report 6,884 Teutons Taken to Date

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A Russian success in the Rumanian province of Dobrudja is reported in a semi-official News Agency dispatch from Odessa. The dispatch says the Russians took 2,000 prisoners.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 25.—Successes for the Rumanians in both Transylvania and Dobrudja are reported in an official statement issued by the War Office. The text of the statement follows:

North and northwestern fronts: Our advance in the Caliman Mountains continues. We captured seventy-three prisoners and one machine gun. At Hermannstadt we attacked the enemy, capturing four officers, 300 men, and five machine guns. In the Jiu Valley minor actions occurred in which we repulsed the enemy and captured two machine guns. The total number of prisoners taken on this front up to the present is 48 officers and 6,836 men.

Southern front: There has been an exchange of artillery fire on the banks of the Danube in Dobrudja. Our left flank made further progress and captured one officer and fifty-three men.

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The bombardment by a German airship of Bucharest, capital of Rumania, is reported in the official announcement issued here today, which says:

Army Group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: Fighting south of the Cobadin-Toprai Sari line (Dobrudja) was successful for the allied (Teutonic) troops.

Much War Material Captured by Victors—German Losses Are Reported Very Heavy.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—British and French troops made a concerted attack of great violence on the German lines on the Somme today, the offensive extending from Martinpuich southesterly to the Somme River, a distance of approximately twelve miles along the irregular front.

Chief among the results obtained by the heavy stroke was the virtual isolation of Combles, long menaced by the steady advance of the British from the northwest and west and the French from the south and southeast.

Today the British troops in their forward sweep, which won German positions on the six-mile front from Combles to Martinpuich to a depth of a mile, captured the fortified villages of Morval and Les Boeufs, directly north of Combles. On their side the French carried the portion of Rancourt (east of Combles) which they had not won before, and reached the outskirts of Fregicourt, still nearer the doomed village.

As a result of these successes, the Allies now surround Combles except for a space of about a mile and a half to the northeast, and the only road into the village is commanded easily by their guns.

In addition to their gains in the immediate vicinity of Combles, the troops of General Foch, to the southward, advanced their lines east of the Bapaume Road to as far as Bouchavesnes, which they hold, and also drove the Germans out of several systems of trenches near the Canal du Nord (presumably the La Tortelle River canalized) and toward the Somme.

The French troops captured 400 prisoners, while the British report the taking of "a large number," with much war material.

Official Accounts of Offensive.

South of the Ancre our troops attacked Monday and have been verywhere successful. Enemy positions were stormed on a front of about six miles between Combles and Martinpuich, to a depth of more than a mile. The strongly fortified villages of Morval and Les Boeufs, together with several lines of trenches, have fallen into our hands.

The village of Morval stands on the heights north of Combles, and with its subterranean quarries, trenches, and wire entanglements constituted a formidable fortress. The possession of these two villages is of considerable military importance, and practically severs the enemy's communications with Combles.

A large number of prisoners, machine guns, and other war material were taken. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy. In comparison with the results achieved, our losses have been so far comparatively small.

Sunday six enemy aeroplanes were destroyed in air fights, and at least three others were driven to the earth damaged. Three of our machines are missing.

The French infantry, assuming the offensive about noon, simultaneously attacked the German positions at Combles and Rancourt and defenses held by the enemy from the latter village as far as the Somme.

Northeast of Combles we caried our lines to the outskirts of Fregicourt and captured all the strongly organized ground between that hamlet and Hill 148. The village of Rancourt also fell into our power.

East of the Bethune Road (Bapaume?) we extended our positions to a depth of about one kilometer from the Combles Road to as far as Bouchavesnes, carried by assault a hill northeast of that village and reached to the southeast of Hill 130. Farther south we carried several systems of trenches in the vicinity of the Canal du Nord from the Bethune (Bapaume?) road as far as the Somme.

The number of unwounded prisoners taken by us and counted up to the present exceeds four hundred.

There was no event of importance on the remainder of the front, apart from a somewhat lively artillery duel on the right bank of the Meuse in the region of Vaux-Chapitre and Le Chenois.

Aviation.—Sunday night a group of our aeroplanes dropped 150 bombs on stations at Ham, Hombleaux, and Manancourt, and the aviation ground at Vraignes.

Prelude of Artillery Fire.

The day bulletin of the French War Office says:

On the Somme front there was spirited artillery fighting last night in various sectors, and also to the south of the river.

On the right bank of the River Meuse we easily repulsed a German attack upon one of our works to the east of Vaux-Chapitre Wood.

Enemy aeroplanes yesterday after 8:30 P. M. threw down about ten bombs in the region of Lunéville. One woman was slightly wounded; the material damages were insignificant.

During the day of yesterday an enemy aeroplane, attacked by one of our machines, was disabled and fell to the ground north of Miserey. Three other machines were seriously damaged and compelled to make landings.

During the night of Sept. 24-25 twelve French aviators threw down ninety-eight shells upon the village and the railroad station of Guiscard. During the same night seven French airmen threw down fifty bombs of 120-millimeters upon factories of Thionville and Rombach, as well as upon the railroad station of Audun-le-Roman. Following the bombardment of Rombach flames were seen to break out.

The day report of the British War Office reads:

South of the Ancre the enemy attacked one of our outposts to the east of Courcelette, but was repulsed.

We blew mines last night north of Neuve Chapelle and north of Hulluch. Much damage was done to the enemy's works.

Germans Tell of Big Gun Duels.

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The failure of further attacks by the Allies on the Somme front is announced by the War Office. The statement reads:

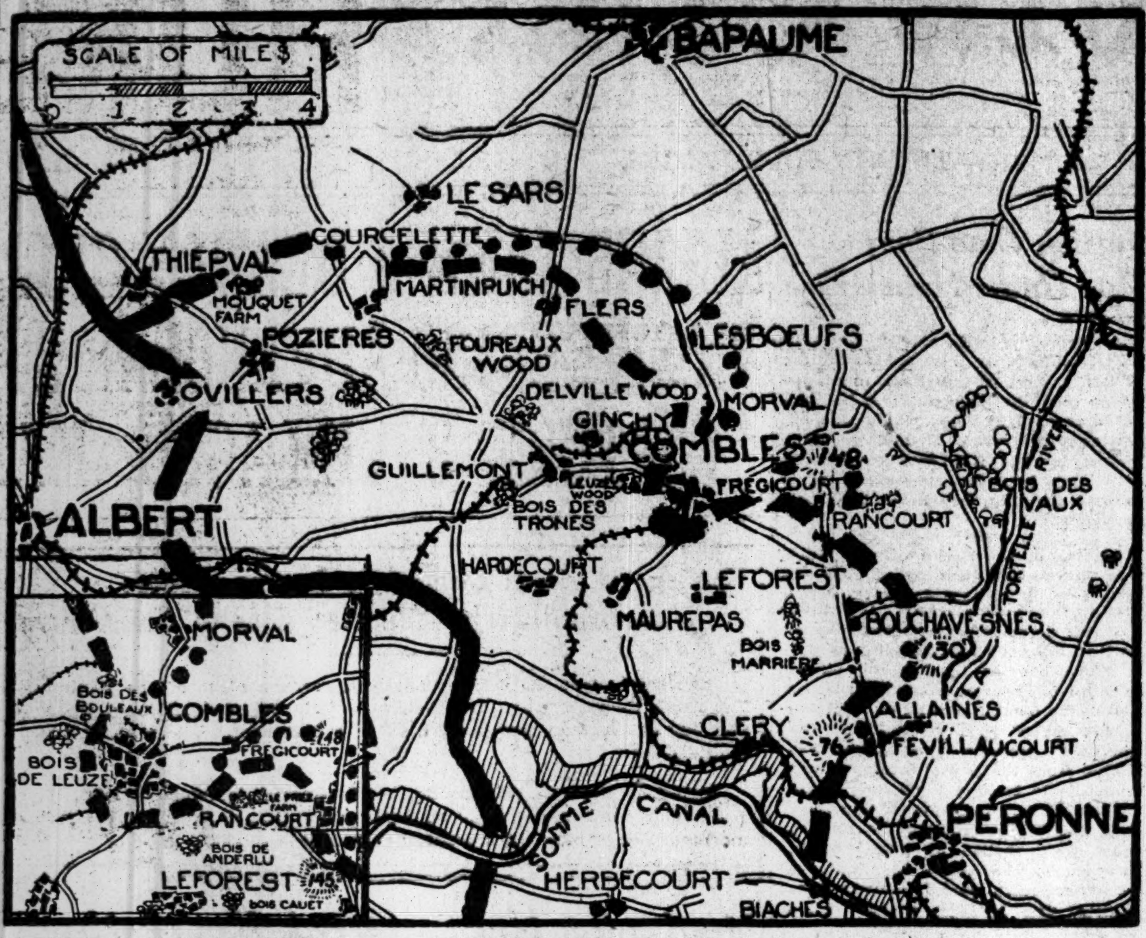
Army Group of Prince Rupprecht: The tremendous artillery battle between the Ancre and the Somme continues. Local enemy advances against the Rancourt sector and near Bouchavesnes failed.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince: On Saturday weak French hand-grenade attacks at Thiaumont Works (Verdun front) were repulsed. Yesterday we beat back strong French hand-grenade attacks northwest of Souville.

In yesterday's numerous aerial engagements we shot down nine aeroplanes. Our anti-aircraft guns have brought down four aviators in the last few days.

Six citizens were killed and twenty-eight were seriously wounded by an enemy bomb attack on Lens.

The Allied Gain on the Somme Front.



The simultaneous assault by British and French yesterday hinged upon Combles, which is about midway between Martinpuich and the Somme River. The broken line shows the approximate position of the battle line before the attack began yesterday; the dotted lines indicate the extent of gains so far as they can be gauged from the official reports. An insert map, similarly marked, shows the perilous position of Combles, now virtually cut off from all help.

GERMAN EDITORS ASSAIL CENSORS

ENGLAND'S EXAMPLE CITED

Suppression of Free Discussion Held to be Inimical to the Empire's Interests.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—One of the clearest and most interesting signs of the new spirit of the times which is gradually but unmistakably leavening the whole social and political structure of Germany in this crucial stadium of war—a spirit so liberal as almost to approximate democratic ideals—is the continued restlessness of the German press under the political censorship, the never ceasing, though always thoroughly patriotic, struggle against this organ of the Government, which, like the human appendix, has long outlived its usefulness and is now only a menace to the health of the nation.

This conscious striving for real freedom of the press, for the right to express opinions freely and publicly on controversial subjects of vital interest to warring Germany, was again and more strongly than ever before reflected in yesterday's annual meeting of the National Association of the German Press, whose discussions largely centred on the gradual "dismantling of the political censorship" promised many weeks ago in the name of the Imperial Government by Vice Chancellor Helfferich.

Since then some slight improvement has been noted; a somewhat more liberal spirit has animated the inter-political censorship, and particularly in the last week was the German press able to touch with greater frankness on formerly forbidden topics. But the censorship reform has not gone far enough, and still too stringent internal censorship is rightly blamed for the present political tension among parties and factions and for such inevitable evils as the clandestine circulation of anonymous pamphlets, the widespread political gossip and scandalmongering, and the countless baseless disquieting rumors about men and matters that ought to be, but cannot be, freely discussed in the press.

The Government's argument that the political censorship is necessary to preserve the so-called Burgfrieden, (party truce,) and thus maintain a united front against foes round about, has to thinking Germans been amply disproved by the English press, whose freedom has, it is thoroughly realized here, not impaired either England's will to continue the war or the effectiveness of her warfare.

The Germans, who as a whole are astonishingly objective, are at all times keen to learn even from their enemies, and the fact that the English press can and does frequently criticise, even bitterly attack, the Government and freely discuss all subjects of interest to the nation has undeniably served as an incentive and argument to the German press to work for similar privileges or rights. As a symptom of the great change which is taking place here and which, to an American observer, seems likely to bear the most promising fruit, this propaganda for the freedom of speech and of the press deserves the serious attention of Americans as of greater importance than many indecisive battles.

The presiding officer of the National Association, Chief Editor Marx of Berlin, gave a significant clue to the changing war psychology of Germans in the following plain words:

"In our resolutions we have no intention of discussing when the Chancellor should make known his war aims. We do not desire to press the Chancellor, but, on the other hand, we do not want to be suppressed. One may consider that the discussion of war aims is harmful. We all, however, are of the opinion that to forbid it is still more harmful.

"One is forced to ask if as the result of the censorship ban of the last two years that gentle spirit and harmony, that peace of God between the parties, and confidence—in fact, everything that appeared so desirable to the Government—has been achieved. Have not, rather, despite all censorship prohibitions, bitterness and discord increased, which could not be worse if the war aims from the very beginning had been free for discussion?

"In our fight for freedom to express opinion we pursue not our own interests, but those of the whole nation. The usefulness of the press is only possible with the freedom of the press. The press can, to be sure, do harm; therefore all military matters must be considered, but the harm is not so great as the resultant benefit. Can we have victories and hang out flags every day?

"In days of anxious waiting many lose courage. Then it is the business of the press to keep up public spirit, to support the anxious ones, and keep awake the firm belief in victory. This end, however, also necessitates the faith of the reader in the press and the conviction that there are free and independent men at work. The moment when officialdom takes the press in hand the press sinks to insignificance, and it is then a matter of complete indifference whether a greater number of papers or only one normal paper is published. In all our differences of opinion we all are united by one firm will to serve the fatherland, to hold out and through the press to champion the belief in ultimate victory."

The ensuing discussion resulted in the almost unanimous agreement of the German editors with these sentiments, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"The delegates approve the steps taken by the Executive Committee to obtain the removal of the political censorship. We record the fact, however, that the censorship in part has been intensified.

"The association again declares that it demands in principle that the censorship of political news cease, and that differences of opinion be permitted in all cases where urgent military interests are not involved. Further, the association demands that the confiscation of newspapers be resorted to only in extreme cases, and then always with an indication of the period of confiscation."

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Yesterday for the first time since the opening days of the Battle of the Somme the French and British struck in unison against the German lines. There was every reason at the present time why this double effort should be made. In the first place the mere fact that the attacks have always heretofore been sequential, one following the other, so as to minimize the periods of rest and to confuse the German commanders as to the real point of attack, made the time seem ripe for a change of tactics. In the second place, the situation at Combles was such that a joint attack, if successful, held the greatest promise. The French advance previous to yesterday's battle had located the French lines well to the east of Combles, while the British had reached a point almost due north of the city. Combles was thus already half surrounded.

It was obvious then that a French attack which would drive both north and east and a British attack driving south and east would complete the circle, if successful, or, failing to complete it, would at least draw a net around the city from which its garrison could not escape. If these attacks succeeded to the point where the British and the French could join hands around the city of course the German forces and guns within the circle would be gone. Failing to achieve such a measure of success might still result in the cutting of all lines of retreat and merely postpone for a day or so the ultimate victory.

The temptation thus dangled before the eyes of the Allied High Command was too great to be resisted. The British struck from Martinpuich toward the north, and from Flers toward the east. As in all of the recent efforts, their advance was signally successful. The attack toward the north, probably intended merely as a blind to prevent too great a concentration against the point where the real effort was to be made, advanced but slightly. Toward the east, however, which was undoubtedly meant to be the main effort, the success was great. For over a mile the British infantry rushed forward, took and passed the village of Lesboeufs, spread to the south and passed beyond Morval.

The French, striking on a front which extended from a point about two kilometers south of Bouchavesnes to Combles, skirted around Hill 130, south of Bouchavesnes, then north to the east of the village of Rancourt, on the Peronne-Bapaume road, and, east of Combles, reached the outskirts of Fregicourt.

The entire blow was levelled at Combles. Of this there is no question, from the direction which the main advances took. It is in relation to its effect on the Combles situation that we must judge of the result of this attack.

Combles is reached from the east by two highways and one railroad. One road comes in from le Transloy via Morval, the other from Sailly via Fregicourt, both of them branching off from the main Bethune (or Peronne-Bapaume) highway. The railroad is a small, narrow-gauge, single-track affair that winds in and out of the Somme Valley from Peronne. Except for a very short section of not more than a mile it has been for some time entirely in the hands of the Allies, so it has no significance in the present discussion. These two roads leading eastward from Combles are, however, of vital importance.

The Germans held Combles as the most important of the smaller points in the whole Bapaume salient. It was the focus point toward which all of the efforts of the Allies extended and from which all of the German efforts were directed against the British front and for some little distance south on the French front. There were, therefore, and, as far as we know, still are a considerable number of men in the works about the village and an unusual number of guns for such a small area as is included in the Combles position. These men and guns demand, in order that they may escape successfully from the allied net, good lines of retreat and sufficient of them, in order that the routes may not become congested so that they offer excellent targets for most destructive work to the allied artillery.

Two such highways as those mentioned might have been sufficient to make such a retreat possible. One would certainly not be. Both of them, however, have been cut. In taking Morval the British most effectively closed the road to le Transloy, and in reaching the outskirts of the small village of Fregicourt there is another small rise, road. The Germans are, therefore, caught in a trap.

It is apparent that the extent of this advance, both on the part of the British and of the French, took the Germans by surprise. They undoubtedly anticipated an attack on one of the two fronts. The aerial activity, as was stated in this column yesterday, certainly forecast that. It was but a question where it would come, and when it did come, how far it would succeed. The Germans do not seem to have been particularly good guessers in either direction. The lay of the land about Combles adds to the difficulties of the situation. From Lesboeufs south to the Somme there is a gradual, though an irregular, downward slope at Morval the ground rises slightly again, but soon falls away. At Fregicourt there is nother small rise, the ground about Morval being about 150 meters above the sea and that about Fregicourt about 145. Between the two is the small hollow in which Combles is situated. Between Morval and the French lines to the south of Fregicourt is about a mile and a half. This is the distance between the British and French lines and all that prevents the two lines from joining.

It is over this mile and a half that the Germans in Combles must retreat, overland without roads. Not only this, but the retreat through this narrow gap must continue for the full depth of the salient. With the British in control of the high ground on the north and the French on the south, with only a distance of 1,300 yards to the middle line between the two, such a retreat is impossible without a loss almost equivalent to annihilation. A few might get through. Even this is doubtful unless they are able to sneak through in the darkness. But a retreat is out of the question.

In following up their success, and accomplishing the fall of Combles, the Allies may either try tomorrow or today to complete the circle, or, as the entire situation is most completely in their hands, cut off with their artillery fire all means of supply, and starve the Germans out. As a matter of fact, when the allied artillery opens fire on the defenders of Combles from all directions, the surrender may follow immediately. The German situation is literally hopeless. It must appear even more so to those who are trapped in the Combles salient. The German commander would prefer surrender to destruction of his command. There is no other alternative.

HINDENBURG PLANS BLOW AT RUSSIANS

GREAT FALL CAMPAIGN ON

PETROGRAD, Sept. 25.—Although the official communications have shed little light on recent developments in the war situation, it is learned from staff officers that after a long lull the battles at all important points on General Brusiloff's front are again assuming the intensity which characterized the first period of his advance.

The principal centres of action are the districts near Vladimir-Volynski and west of Lutsk, the Halicz region, and the Carpathians, and in each of these territories there has been a general resumption of the fighting, which has spread to adjacent sectors until the whole southwestern war theatre from the Pripet Marshes to the Danube may be said to be again in action. The nature of this action, however, has undergone a conspicuous change since the first smashing blows in Brusiloff's campaign.

Although the Russians still claim the initiative, it is evident that the German counterattacks are becoming constantly more frequent and more vigorous, and in the large numbers of reinforcements sent to these regions from other fronts, as well as the more aggressive character of the German fighting, there are signs that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the new Chief of Staff, is planning a new campaign to recover the old positions before Winter sets in.

To meet this the Russians have already begun a fresh offensive, the details of which have not yet been announced, but which has been undertaken on a large scale with the object of making a desperate effort to pierce the Austro-German fronts before the Fall campaign is over.

Great reticence is observed by the War Office, which in an official bulletin today merely said that no events of importance had occurred.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—The Russia offensive, which is expected to continue till the Winter snows check it, will show whether the reorganized front can stand the strain.

Wilhelm Hegeler, the Berliner Tageblatt correspondent, says that two battalions of Russians broke through the Austro-Hungarian troops of the army group of the German General, von Eben, at Manajoet, Galicia, but German reserves blocked their further advance. In the evening, after thorough artillery preparation, the German and Austro-Hungarian battalions attacked and threw the Russians out of the captured Austrian trenches. Austro-Hungarians, Westphalians, Thuringians, Hanoverians and Rhinelanders participated in this counterattack.

REPEL RUSSIAN ATTACKS.

Germans Hold Manaiuv and Turks in Galicia Take Prisoners.

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The following official account of operations on the Eastern front was issued here today:

Army Group of Prince Leopold: The position near Manaiuv, which was recaptured on Saturday in a counterattack, was maintained against repeated and strong assaults of the Russians.

Army Group of Archduke Charles Francis: Between the Zlota Lipa and the Narayuvka the Russians made fruitless attacks on the positions held by Turkish troops. Detachments of the enemy which penetrated Turkish positions were driven out by a counterattack, and 142 prisoners were taken. In the Ludowa sector, Carpathians, attacks by the Russians were repulsed.

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—"Three large Russian aeroplanes on Sept. 23 attacked without success the naval aerodrome on Lake Angern (near the Gulf of Roga,)" says a semi-official statement given out here today. "German battleplanes pursued the Russian aeroplanes, forcing one of them to land at a point east of Dunmunde. All the German aeroplanes returned safely."

VIENNA, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The War Office today made public the appended report of operations on the Russian front:

Archduke Charles's Front.—North and east of Kirlibaba there has been continuous fighting. In the Ludowa sector the Russians again attacked fruitlessly. Northeast of Lipnicadolna the enemy stormed positions held by the Turkish troops, but was defeated everywhere on this sector.

Prince Leopold's Front.—Last night the Russians again attempted to break through north of Perpelniki. Their efforts failed and their losses were heavy.

CRAWFORD DEFENDS BRITISH BLACKLIST

EXPLAINS MAIL CENSORSHIP

Invites Suggestions as to Minimizing Evils—Local Committee to Consider Them.

The British censorship and the "statutory list" of firms and individuals with whom British subjects are forbidden to have trade relations were discussed at a luncheon given in honor of Sir Richard Crawford, trade adviser of the British Embassy, at the Bankers' Club, 120 Broadway, yesterday afternoon. Sir Richard's hosts were about fifty of the leading bankers and executive heads of industrial corporations in this country. Sir Richard said that everything possible was being done to simplify the operation of the censorship, so far as it affected American business, and in a reference to the so-called "blacklist" pointed out that so far as certain American firms were concerned, there appeared to be "some misunderstanding as to the real objects of the list."

A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank, presided at the luncheon, at the close of which the following statement regarding Sir Richard's talk to the bankers and business men present was given out:

"Sir Richard Crawford had an unofficial and informal conversation with prominent representatives of American banking and business interests on the subject of the exercise of the British censorship. He gave a brief exposition of the reasons for the censorship and of the methods of its operation, and invited frank and full discussion of its effects as experienced by business houses in the United States in order to ascertain whether it was possible to introduce any practical modifications of its application without impairing its efficiency in securing the vital interests of Great Britain and her allies. In this connection attention was called to the very satisfactory results already attained by the arrangements made to facilitate the dispatch, without serious interruption or delay, of shipping documents between the United States and neutral countries. Under this arrangement shipping documents, including bills of lading, consular invoices, &c., if placed in bags marked 'shipping documents,' receive immediate and rapid examinations by a special corps of censors at the port of arrival, which enables these documents to be forwarded without delay by the vessel carrying the goods to which they relate.

"It was found impossible for the meeting to enter very closely into details, but certain suggestions were made which are to be the subject of further consideration by a small and informal committee, and it is believed that some practical results will follow.

"Toward the end of the conference, the discussion turned on the recent publication of the statutory list of American firms with whom British subjects are prohibited from trading.

Sir Richard Crawford Explains.

"'The publication,' said Sir Richard, 'of the statutory list of firms and persons in the United States with whom British subjects are prohibited from trading under heavy penalties by the provisions of the Trading with the Enemy Extension Act appears to have created some misunderstanding as to the real objects of the list. It may be observed that in Great Britain the principle of domicile had been accepted prior to this year, whereby trading with an enemy applied only to trading with an enemy domiciled in enemy territory; whereas in the other allied countries, as also in Germany, an enemy is an enemy by birth and status wherever he may be domiciled, and trading with him is an offense under the laws of those countries. In the prosecution of the war it was found imperative, in order to insure uniformity of procedure on the part of the Allies, for Great Britain to adopt the principle recognized by her allies, and accordingly the Trading with the Enemy Extension Act was introduced, which makes it a penal offense for any British subject to trade with a firm of enemy nationality or with enemy interests wherever situated.

"'The result was at once to confront a large number of British houses engaged in trade with thousands of firms with German names in the United States with the serious problem of determining for themselves whether such firms were, in fact, enemy houses by nationality, or whether, notwithstanding their status as American corporations, they were by their constitution or by the unneutrality of their transactions in all respects to be regarded as enemy concerns within the meaning of the law. A striking example of the incidence and rigorous application of the Trading with the Enemy act was soon forthcoming in the case of a British house which was prosecuted for obtaining indirectly goods of enemy origin for the purposes of its business. In that case the principal of the firm concerned was sentenced to a term of imprisonment, followed by other disabilities, including the stigma of want of patriotism, while an American house of enemy antecedents indirectly implicated had receved a permit from the British authorities to bring out goods of the same description from an enemy country. The act immediately became a very living and real thing to every British firm trading with the United States. The penalties, material and moral, were so disastrous to their existence and honor that there was widespread apprehension and uncertainty, which threatened to disorganize the business of a large body of American citizens whose names might have aroused unfounded suspicions as to the neutrality of their transactions and interests.

"'In these circumstances the British Government were impelled to afford such information to British subjects as would enable them to continue to trade with such firms without the fear of bringing themselves within the purview of the the evidence before them the British authorities found that out of the thousands of firms in the United States bearing names which might have caused hesitation on the part of British subjects to engage in trade with them only a very small proportion were, in the opinion of the British Government, properly to be classed as unneutral. The publication of these few names has served to remove this hesitation, and while it has enabled British subjects to avoid incurring penalties under the laws of their country, it has at the same time relieved a large body of American citizens from the effects of unfounded suspicion which might have had disastrous results on their trading interests.

"'In other words, the publication of the statutory list has, indeed, operated as a "white list," and to call it a blacklist is in fact a misnomer.'"

Prominent Men at the Luncheon.

Among those present at the luncheon were Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Frederick I. Kent, Vice President of the Bankers' Trust Company; Samuel McRoberts and John A. Gardin, Vice Presidents of the National City Bank; George F. Baker, Jr., First National Bank; James Brown of Brown Brothers & Co., Dwight Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., N. P. Bonbright of William P. Bonbright & Co., Willard V. King, President of the Columbia Trust Company; A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank; Charles A. Coffin, Chairman of the Board of the General Electric Company; Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; William L. Saunders, Chairman of the Board of the Ingersoll-Rand Company; Eugene P. Thomas, President of the United States Steel Products Company; Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company; Theodore H. Price; James D. Ryan, President of the Anaconda Copper Company; P. T. Dodge, President of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company and President of the International Paper Company; Henry B. Endicott of Endicott, Johnson & Co., and Lloyd Griscom.

Through the medium of a committee of five, which is to be appointed from those present at the conference, individual cases will be taken up with Sir Richard, where, in the opinion of the committee, it may be possible to bring about relief. It is expected that in the future negotiations between the committee and the British trade expert will be by way of correspondence.

British Reply Due this Week.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The British reply to the American mail note of May 24 protesting against the mail censorship left London Friday, the British Embassy here was informed today, and should arrive in Washington late this week. No advance indication of its contents was forwarded.

Any arrangement arrived at with exporters in New York by Sir Richard Crawford, the British commercial attaché, who today began informal negotiations there, will be made to conform with the terms of the note. Such arrangements, it is pointed out, will be entirely informal and made theoretically without knowledge of the diplomatic authorities of the two Governments, who will continue to negotiate as to the principles involved, regardless of any modus vivendi which may be arrived at.

SEES NO GERMAN CRISIS.

Teuton Paper Here Says Submarine Policy Will Not Be Changed.

Under the caption, "Chancellor, Submarine Warfare and America," the New Yorker Herold said editorially yesterday:

"The cable reports from London made a great crisis in German politics out of the fact that a powerful opposition has gradually developed against the Imperial Chancellor, von Bethmann Hollweg. But the case is not so bad as all that. When the Reichstag assembles on Sept. 28 there will naturally be no shortage of fervent speeches. But it is not to be assumed that the Kaiser is going to drop his highest official in order to do the followers of Admiral von Tirpitz and the Pan-Germans the favor of inaugurating a different submarine policy.

"The patriotic motives of the Tirpitz people and of those agreeing with them are worthy of all respect. On that side they are of the honest opinion that it is entirely wrong to limit the use of the best weapon of the German fleet by one-half to please the United States. They promise themselves such brilliant results through the unlimited employment of the submarines that it is bound to influence the course of the war in Germany's favor. As has been said, this opinion is worthy of respect, but, according to the material at hand, it is not the opinion of the majority of the German people.

The Kaiser and his closest advisers value the maintenance of half-way good relations with the United States higher than do the Tirpitz people and the Pan-Germans, and, as it seems to us, rightly so.

MRS. GERARD IN COLLISION.

Auto of Ambassador's Wife Hits a Taxicab in Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Mrs. James W. Gerard, wife of the American Ambassador, suffered a slight nervous shock today when her automobile came into collision with a taxicab.

She was able to return to her home, however, without requiring the services of a physician.

Ambassador Gerard and Mrs. Gerard will leave Berlin tomorrow for Copenhagen, from which port Mrs. Gerard will take a steamer for the United States on Sept. 28. The Ambassador himself has received no word concerning his vacation, and so probably will return to Berlin from Copenhagen.

mental condition of intending immigrants who have had military service. In the last few years there have been many detentions and deportations of Greek and Italian soldiers because they had sustained mental shock from heavy artillery fire. Since the European war began a sharp watch has been kept on ex-soldier immigrants in order to keep out those who have undergone the mental shock due to the artillery firing along the French and Belgian frontier.

It was said here tonight that the policy of the British authorities was to send to the United States and Canada large numbers of officers and men who had been mentally disabled by artillery shock. Some of these men, it was said, were incurable, and in many cases, even where they were restored to physical health, they were no longer fit for soldiering. The explanation was offered that officers thus mentally injured are not wanted in England, where their stories of the hardships unnerve possible recruits and discourage enlistments. Many officers who went through the Gallipoli campaign had been sent out of England at Government expense, it was said, and of these a considerable number had appeared in Canada, and some in the United States.

An official of the Department of Labor, who deals with the execution of the immigration laws, said tonight that when ex-soldiers who came here admitted that they were supplied with funds by the British Government, they were not admitted. It is supposed that the greater number who thus come do not admit that they have had Government aid, and if they are not objectionable physically or in other ways, and are eligible under the immigration laws, they are admitted.

SEIZE MISS CAVELL'S FRIEND

Germans Hold Polak, an American Diamond Merchant, in Brussels.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Isador Polak, who was awaiting the return here of her husband from Holland, visited the American Consulate today and requested aid of the officials there to obtain his release. Polak was removed from the Dutch mail steamship Prins Hendrik when that vessel was taken by German naval forces into Zeebrugge last week. The State Department at Washington has been informed of the American's plight, and a message has also been sent to James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador at Berlin.

Polak is a wealthy diamond cutter, who had homes in New York and Brussels. His family spent several months in the Belgian capital after the outbreak of the war and became friends and supporters of Miss Edith Cavell, the British nurse, who was executed by the Germans in Belgium, in her Red Cross work. Besides his diamond business Polak is part owner of a large automobile factory in Antwerp.

It is believed here that there will be no difficulty in securing Polak's release, as there is no question as to his American citizenship. According to the story told by some of the passengers of the Prins Hendrik, Polak engaged in a lively verbal duel with the German examining officer before he was removed from the ship.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Edward Joseph Kelley, a member of the American Ambulance Field Service, was killed and Roswell S. Sanders of Newburyport, Mass., was wounded when succoring the wounded Friday night on the Verdun front.

The Americans were working at Marre, within 800 yards of the German lines. Near midnight Kelley was hit by a bullet from a shrapnel shell.

Kelley joined the ambulance service last August and was a member of Section 4.

Bulgars Seize $15,000,000 Tobacco.

ATHENS, Sept. 25.—Tobacco valued at $15,000,000, and of which $2,000,000 worth is the property of American companies, is being removed to the interior by Bulgarians from storage warehouses at the Greek port of Kavala. Garrett Droppers, the American Minister to Greece, has asked the Bulgarian Government to permit the American stocks to be taken out of the town and brought here.

WILSON SEES WORLD TRADE FOR AMERICA

ing and shipping laws were passed the hands of American business men were tied, the President discussed his ideas for the new Tariff Commission.

"We have admitted," he said, "that on the one side and on the other side we were talking theories and managing policies without a sufficient knowledge of the facts upon which we were acting."

He added that he hoped he could find men for the commission who would "see the facts and state them, no matter whose opinion those facts contradict."

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Wilson's speech follows in full:

It is a matter of sincere gratification to me that I can come and address an association of this sort, and yet I feel that there is a certain drawback to the present occasion. That drawback consists of the fact that it occurs in the midst of a political campaign, and nothing so seriously interrupts or interferes with the serious and sincere consideration of public questions as a political campaign.

I want to say to you at the outset that I believe in party action, but that I have a supreme contempt for partisan action; that I believe that it is necessary for men to concert measures together in organized co-operation by party, but that whenever party feeling touches any one of the passions that work against the general interest it is altogether to be condemned. And, therefore, I feel that on occasions like this we should divest ourselves of the consciousness that we are in the midst of a political campaign, because associations like this are not gathered together to take part in partisan discussion, but to consider those permanent interests of the nation which concern us all the time, which do not alter their aspects because parties are contesting for power, and that we ought as much as possible on all occasions to think of ourselves as first of all men devoted to the welfare of the country and as compared with that devoted to nothing else whatever.

Problem of Grain Expert.

What I have come to say to you today, therefore, I would wish to say in an atmosphere from which all the vapors of passions have been cleared away, for I want to speak to you about the business situation of the world, so far as America is concerned. I am not going to take the liberty of discussing that business situation from the special point of view of your association, because I know that I would be bringing coals to Newcastle. I know that I am speaking to men who understand the relation of the grain business to the business of the world very much better than I do, and I know that it is true that, except under very unusual circumstances such as have existed in the immediate past, the export of grain from this country has been a diminishing part of our foreign commerce rather than an increasing part; that the increase of our own population, the decrease in proportion to that increase of our production of grains, has been rendering the question of foreign markets less important, though still very important, than it was in past generations, so far as the dealing in grain is concerned.

I also remember, however, that we have only begun in this country the process by which the full product of our agricultural acreage is to be obtained. The agricultural acreage of this country ought to produce twice what it is now producing, and under the stimulation and instruction which have recently been characteristic of agricultural development I think we can confidently predict that within, let us say, a couple of decades the agricultural production of this country will be something like double, whereas there is no likelihood that the population of this country will be doubled within the same period. You can look forward, therefore, it seems to me, with some degree of confidence to an increasing and perhaps a rapidly increasing volume of the products in which you deal.

Business Burst Its Jacket.

But, as I have said, I have not come to discuss that. I have come to discuss the general relation of the United States to the business of the world in the decades immediately ahead of us.

We have swung out, my fellow-citizens, into a new business era in America. I suppose that there is no man connected with your association who does not remember the time when the whole emphasis of American business discussion was laid upon the domestic market. I need not remind you how recently it has happened that our attention has been extended to the markets of the world, much less recently, I need not say, in the matters with which you are concerned than in the other export interests of the country.

But it happened that American production, not only in the agricultural field and in mining and in all the natural products of the earth, but also in manufacture, has increased in recent years to such a volume that American business burst its jacket. It could not any longer be taken care of within the field of the domestic markets; and when that began to disclose itself as the situation, we also became aware that American business men had not studied foreign markets, that they did not know the commerce of the world, and that they did not have the ships in which to take their proportionate part in the carrying trade of the world; that our merchant marine had sunk to a negligible amount and that it had sunk to its lowest at the very time when the tide of our exports began to grow in most formidable volume.

National Banking Defects.

One of the most interesting circumstances of our business history is this: The banking laws of the United States —I mean the Federal banking laws—did not put the national banks in a position to do foreign exchange under favorable conditions, and it was actually true that private banks and sometimes branch banks drawn out of other countries, notably out of Canada, were established at our chief ports to do what American bankers ought to have done.

It was as if America was not only unaccustomed to touching all the nerves of the world's business, but was disinclined to touch them, and had not prepared the instrumentalities by which it might take part in the great commerce of the round globe. Only in very recent years have we been even studying the problem of providing ourselves with the instrumentalities. Not until the recent legislation of Congress known as the Federal Reserve act were the Federal banks of this country given the proper equipment through which they could assist American commerce, not only in our own country, but in any part of the world where they chose to set up branch institutions. British banks had been serving British merchants all over the world. German banks had been serving German merchants all over the world, and no national bank of the United States had been serving American merchants anywhere in the world except in the United States.

We had, as it were, deliberately refrained from playing our part in the field in which we prided ourselves that we were most ambitious and most expert, the field of manufacture and of commerce.

America's Place in the World.

All that is past, and the scene has been changed by the events of the last two years, almost suddenly and with a completeness that almost daunts the planning mind. Not only when this war is over, but now America has her place in the world and takes her place in the world of finance and commerce upon a scale that she never dreamed of before.

My dream is that she will take her place in that great field in a new spirit which the world has never seen before, not the spirit of those who would exclude others, but the spirit of those who would excel others. I want to see America pitted against the world, not in selfishness, but in brains.

The first thing that brains have to feed upon is knowledge, and when I hear men proposing to deal with the business problems of the United States in the future as we dealt with them in the past I do not have to inquire any further whether we are equipped with knowledge. I dismiss them from the reckoning, because I know that the facts are going to dominate, and they know nothing about these facts. And the most that we can supply ourselves with just now is, not the detailed program of policy, but the instrumentality of gaining thorough knowledge of what we are about. Every man of us must for some time to come be "from Missouri." We must want to know what the facts are, and when we know what the facts are we shall know what the policy ought to be.

A Neglected Bureau.

What instrumentalities have we provided ourselves with in order that we may be equipped with knowledge? There has been an instrumentality in operation for four or five years of which, strangely enough, American business men have only slowly become aware. Some four or five years ago the Congress established, in connection with the department, which was then the Department of Commerce and Labor, (now the Department of Commerce,) a Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and one of the advantages which the American Government has had has been that it has been able to hire brains for much less than the brains are worth.

It is in a way a national discredit to us, my fellow-citizens, that we are paying studious men capable of understanding anything and of conducting any business just about one-third of what they could command in the field of business, and it is one of the admirable circumstances of American life that they are proud to serve the Government on a pittance. There are such men in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. They have been studying the foreign commerce of this country as it was never studied before, and have been making reports so comprehensive and so thorough that they compare to their great advantage with the reports of any similar bureau of any other Government in the world, and I have found to my amazement that some of the best of those reports seen never to have been read.

All you have to do in order to find out the details of some of the greatest fields of activity in the world in the matter of business is to resort to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce; but there, again, the phenomena that I have been speaking of have displayed themselves in a very remarkable way. It needed the catastrophe and the tragedy of this war to awaken American business men to the fact that these were the things which they must know and know at once.

Now the Friend of Business.

And then, in addition to that, there was recently created the Federal Trade Commission. It is hard to describe the functions of that commission: all I can say is that it has transformed the Government of the United States from being an antagonist of business into being a friend of business. A few years ago American business men—I think you will corroborate this statement—took up their morning paper with some degree of nervousness to see what the Government was doing to them. I ask you if you take up the morning paper now with any degree of nervousness? And I ask you if you have not found, those of you who have dealt with it at all, the Federal Trade Commission to be put there to show you the way in which the Government can help you and not the way in which the Government can hinder you?

But that is not the matter that I am most interested in. It has always been a fiction—I don't know who invented it or why he invented it, but it has always been a fiction—that there was a contest between the law and business. There has always been a contest in every Government between the law and bad business, and I do not want to see that contest softened in any way; but there has never been any contest between men who intended the right thing and the men who administered the law.

But what I want to speak about is this: One of the functions of the Federal Trade Commission is to inquire, with the fullest powers ever conferred upon a similar commission in this country, into all the circumstances of Ameriscan business, for the purpose of doing for American business exactly what the Department of Agriculture has so long and with increasing efficiency done for the farmer, informing the American business man of every element, big and little, with which it is his duty to deal. Here are created searching eyes of inquiry to do the very thing that it was imperatively necessary and immediately necessary that the country should do, look upon the field of business and know what was going on.

And then, in the third place, you know that we have just now done what it was common sense to do about the tariff. We have not put this into words, but I do not hesitate to put it into words. We have admitted that on the one side and on the other we were talking theories and managing policies without a sufficient knowledge of the facts upon which we were acting, and therefore we have established what is intended to be a non-partisan Tariff Commission, to study the conditions with which legislation has to deal in the matter of the relations of American with foreign business transactions.

Another eye created to see the facts. And I am hopeful that I can find the men who will see the facts and state them, no matter whose opinion those facts contradict. For an opinion ought always to have a profound respect for a fact, and when you once get the facts opinions that are antagonistic to those facts are necessarily defeated. I have never found a really courageous man who was afraid to put his opinion to the test of facts, or a morally sincere man who was not ready to surrender to the facts when they were contrary to his opinion. And the Tariff Commission is going to look for the facts, no matter who is hurt.

So that we are creating one after another the instrumentalities of knowledge, so that the business men of this country shall know what the field of the world's business is and deal with that field upon what knowledge.

Then, when the knowledge is obtained, what are we going to do? One of the things that interests me most about an association of this sort is that the intention of it is that the members should share a common body of information, and that they should concert among themselves those operations of business which are beneficial to all of them; that, instead of a great body, instead of a large number of dealers in grain acting separately and each fighting for his own hand, you are willing to come together and study the problem as if you were partners and brothers and co-operators in this field of business.

That has been going on in every occupation in the United States of any consequence. Even the men that do the advertising have been getting together, and they have made this startling and fundamental discovery, that the only way to advertise successfully is to tell the truth. There are many reasons for that. One of the chief reasons is that when you get found out it is worse for you than it was before. But the great reason, the sober reason, is that business must be founded in the truth, and you men get together in order to create a clearing house for the truth about your business.

Co-operation in Foreign Commerce.

Very well, that is a picture in small of what we must do in the large. We must co-operate in the whole field of business; the Government with the merchant, the merchant with his employe, the whole body of producers with the whole body of consumers, to see that the right things are produced in the right volume and find the right purchasers at the right place, and that, all working together, we realize that nothing can be for the common benefit which is not for the individual benefit.

You know that there was introduced in the House of Representatives recently a bill commonly called the Webb bill for the purpose of stating it as the policy of the law of the United States that nothing in the anti-trust laws now existing should be interpreted to interfere with the proper sort of co-operation among exporters.

The foreign field is not like the domestic field. The foreign field is full of combinations meant to be exclusive. The anti-trust laws of the United States are intended to prevent any kind of combination in the United States which shall be exclusive of new enterprises within the United States, any combination which shall set up monopoly in America, but the export business is a very big business, a very complicated business, a very expensive business, and it ought to be possible, and it will be possible and legal, for men engaged in exporting to get together and manage it in groups, so that they can manage it at an advantage instead of at a disadvantage as compared with foreign rivals—not for the purpose of exclusive and monopolistic combination, but for the purpose of co-operation, and there is a very wide difference there.

I for myself despise monopoly, and I have an enthusiasm for co-operation. By co-operation I mean working along with anybody who is willing to work along with you under definite understandings and arrangements which will constitute a sound business program. There can be no jealousy of that, and if there had been time I can say with confidence that this bill which passed the House of Representatives would have passed the Senate of the United States also, so that any obstacle that ingenious lawyers may find in the anti-trust laws will be removed.

I was a lawyer once myself, before I reformed, and I can divide a hair 'twixt north and northeast side, but I do not think it is worth while, and I do not think that statutes are the places for ingenuity. A statute is intended to lay down a broad and comprehensive and national policy, and it ought to be read in that light. But there would be no fun in punctuation if you had to read it that way. The purpose of legislation in the immediate future in this country is going to be to remove all ingenious constructions and make it perfectly clear what the liberties as well as the restraints of trade are in this country.

And then there must be co-operation, not only between the Government and the business man, but between the business men. Shippers must co-operate, and they ought to be studying right now how to co-operate. There are a great many gentlemen in other countries who can show them how; and they ought to look forward, particularly, to caring for this matter, that they have vehicles in which to carry their goods.

We must address ourselves immediately and as rapidly as possible to the re-creation of a great American merchant marine. Our present situation is very like this: Suppose that a man who had a great department store did not have any delivery wagons, and depended on his competitors in the same market to deliver his goods to his customers. You know what would happen. They would deliver their own goods first, and they would deliver yours only if yours were to be delivered upon the routes followed by their wagons. That is an exact picture of what is taking place in our foreign trade at this minute.

Foreign vessels carry our goods where they, the foreign vessels, happen to be going, and they carry them only if they have room in addition to what they are carrying for other people. You cannot conduct trade that way. That is conducting trade on sufferance. That is conducting trade on an "if you please." That is conducting trade on the basis of service, the point of view of which is not your advantage. Therefore, we cannot lose any time in getting delivery wagons.

There has been a good deal of discussion about this recently, and it has been said "the Government must not take any direct part in this. You must let private capital do it." And the reply was, "All right, go ahead." "Oh, but we will not go ahead unless you help us." We said: "Very well, then, we will go ahead, but we will not need your help, because we do not want to compete where you are already doing the carrying business, but where you are not doing the carrying business, and it has to be done for some time at a loss. We will undertake to do it at a loss until that route is established, and we will give place to private capital whenever private capital is ready to take the place." That sounds like a very reasonable proposition. "We will carry your goods one way when we have to come back empty the other way and lose money on the voyage, and when there are cargoes both ways and it is profitable to carry them we shall not insist upon carrying them any longer."

Through the Panama Canal.

And it is absolutely necessary now to make good our new connections. Our new connections are with the great and rich republics to the south of us. For the first time in my recollection they are beginning to trust and believe in us and want us, and one of my chief concerns has been to see that nothing was done that did not show friendship and good faith on our part.

You know that it used to be the case that if you wanted to travel comfortably in your own person from New York to a South American port you had to go by way of England, or else stow yourself away in some uncomfortable fashion in a ship that took almost as long to go straight and within whose bowels you got in such a temper before you got there that you did not care whether she got there or not. The great interesting geographical fact to me is that by the opening of the Panama Canal there is a straight line south from New York through the canal to the western coast of South America, which hitherto has been one of the most remote coasts in the world so far as we were concerned, and that the west coast of South America is now nearer to us than the eastern coast of South America ever was to us, so that we have the open Atlantic upon which to approach the east coast.

Here is the loom all ready upon which to spread the threads which can be worked into a fabric of friendship and wealth such as we have never known before. The real wealth of foreign relationships, my fellow-citizens, whether they be the relationships of trade or any other kind of intercourse, the real wealth of those relationships is the wealth of mutual confidence and understanding. If we do not understand them and they do not understand us, we cannot trade with them, much less be their friends, and it is only by weaving these intimate threads of connection that we shall be able to establish that fundamental thing, that psychological, spiritual nexus which is, after all, the real warp and woof of trade itself. We have got to have the knowledge, we have got to have the co-operation, and then back of all that has got to lie what America has in abundance and only has to release, that is to say, the self-reliant enterprise.

Ashamed of Timidity.

There is only one thing I have ever been ashamed about in America, and that was the timidity and fearfulness of Americans in the presence of foreign competitors. I have dwelt among Americans all my life and am an intense absorbent of the atmosphere of America, and I know by personal experience that there are as effective brains in America as anywhere in the world. An American afraid to pit American business men against any competitors anywhere! Enterprise, the shrewdness which Americans have shown, the knowledge of business which they have shown, all these things are going to make for that peaceful and honorable conquest of foreign markets which is our reasonable ambition.

I spoke a moment ago of the Federal Trade Commission. In conference with various business associations, members of that commission have made this astonishing discovery, that, in some fields of manufacture, at any rate, not 10 per cent. of the producers of America keep accurate cost accounts. They do not know how much each part of their operation costs them. They have not analyzed their business in such a way as to know where economy can be substituted for waste, or where efficiency can take the place of inefficiency.

And one of the things that is going to happen, now that we are going to be up against the expert cost accountants of the world, is that we are going to become first-class economists and that American labor, already distinguished for its efficiency, is going to double and treble that efficiency. And when that takes place and this great stimulating air of the world's competitive brains has wrought its effects upon us, we are going to be, I hope, what the world has never seen yet, a body of men who do not want to prevail by the backing of their Government but by the backing of their skill and knowledge.

A friend of mine was once invited to attend a peace meeting. He said he would come with pleasure if he might be permitted to explain that most of the men sitting on the platform were engaged in fomenting war. When he was asked to explain this pleasing meaning he said: "I have looked over the list of the men who constitute your Executive Committee, and almost every one of them is engaged in doing things to excite the hostility and disturb the national feeling of men in foreign countries, particularly in the Orient, which will inevitably lead to war sooner or later."

The combinations of the modern world that are lasting are not the competitions of physical force; they are the competitions of intellectual force. The competitions of business either lay the foundations of respect and mutual confidence or the foundations of suspicion and mutual hostility.

America has stood in the years past for that sort of political understanding among men which would let every man feel that his rights were the same as those of another and as good as those of another, and the mission of America in the field of the world's commerce is to be the same; that when an American comes into that competition he comes without any arms that would enable him to conquer by force, but only with those peaceful influences of intelligence, a desire to serve, a knowledge of what he is about, before which everything softens and yields, and renders itself subject. That is the mission of America, and my interest, so far as my small part in American affairs is concerned, is to lend every bit of intelligence I have to this interesting, this vital, all-important matter of releasing the intelligence of America for the service of mankind.

25 to 50 per cent. That would mean such tremendous increasing of congestion through diminishing our carrying capacity that the accidents resulting from overcrowding would far overbalance those we have now."

Neither police, public service, nor Interborough officials attempted last night, in advance of complete investigation, to fix responsibility for the accident. The commission made no formal examination of Martin, in order that immunity should not be conferred upon him. The police released him on the promise of A. L. Merrit, superintendent of the subway division of the Interborough, to produce him in the Morrisania Police Court this morning if it is decided to have a Magistrate conduct a formal examination.

Questioned on the subject of responsibility, Mr. Hedley said:

"Martin is a good man and he will be treated with extraordinary consideration because of the high tension and the nervous strain to which he had been subjected. You ask me how we might add to our factor of safety. My answer is, settle this whole strike matter that we are discussing here now. The nervous tension of the men has been worked up to a high point. Not one of them is thinking exclusively of the one thing his mind ought to be on—the business of running his train.

A signal at the south end of the 207th Street platform, where there is a curve southward, was set against the empty train, which had been made up at Van Cortlandt Park and was proceeding light to Dyckman Street to take on a crew and enter passenger service. A switching motorman named Eagan halted the train there in response to the signal. Interborough employes said it had stood about five minutes when the South Ferry train driven by Martin pulled out of the 215th Street station and started downtown. There is a scant quarter mile of track between the two stations. It slants southward two-thirds of the way, and then runs uphill to the level of the 207th Street platform, forming a dip like that of a roller-coaster. Though witnesses said Martin's train came on at full speed, the upward incline must have slowed it somewhat.

Dominick J. Colleary, a police sergeant on strike duty on the west platform, had just cried out a warning when the roar of the first impact, followed by the ripping and grinding of torn and twisted steel, answered him.

Martin catapulted out the forward door on the side of the platform opposite his booth an instant before the crash. Martin, who rolled along the tracks close to the third rail, was picked up by policemen, who also sent in fire, ambulance and reserve calls.

John F. Hyland, a patrolman attached to the Wakefield station, was the first into the forward car of the rear train as passengers began scrambling from doors and windows of the others onto the elevated structure. The rear end of the forward train protruded just north of the west platform so the colliding train came to a stop north of the platform.

Hyland found Howard Bolger of 100 East 176th Street, a patrolman attached to the Kingsbridge station and doing strike duty on the rear train, huddled up in the centre of the second car, where the impact had tossed him. He was sent to Fordham Hospital suffering from lacerations of the head and face, contusions of the body, possibly a fracture of the skull, and shock.

Next Hyland, with other bluecoats helping him, lifted from the windows of the second car of the rear train Miss May T. Mullin, a public school teacher, who lives in Spuyten Duyvil; Miss M. V. Quinn, another public school teacher, of 231st Street and Kingsbridge Terrace, and Mrs. Mary McGone of 231st Street and Broadway. All three were hurt.

Others besides the patrolman and the three women named who gave their names to the police as injured, but either refused medical attention or let the ambulance surgeons attend them on the platform, were H. A. Supper, conductor of Martin's train, who was riding between the first and second cars and was only lamed a little by the smash; Benjamin Landauer, 1,061 St. Nicholas Avenue; George Mathes, 463 West 159th Street; John J. Love, a patrolman of the boiler squad; William C. Schnitzler, Pocatello, Idaho; M. G. Sugenoto, 573 West 159th Street; H. Martin, 1,295 Seventy-ninth Street, Brooklyn; E. J. Dorsey, 3,044 Albany Crescent, the Bronx; Daniel Dwyer, 971 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, and H. Smith, 40 Nepperhan Avenue, Yonkers.

ADMIT ALL UNIONS WILL NOT JOIN STRIKE

man for 3:15 o'clock this afternoon, to urge the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature to enforce arbitration and end New York strikes. Democratic members predominated, and State Republican Chairman Frederick Tanner professed to see politics back of the move.

HEBREW TRADES VOTE.

Garment Workers and Others Said to Favor Strike—Most Locals Pause.

Representatives of the United Hebrew Trades held a strike meeting last night in Forward Hall, at 175 East Broadway, and delegates from several of the unions affiliated with the organization reported that they had held secret strike meetings in the last two days and voted to go out on a sympathetic strike on Wednesday morning.

According to the delegates, the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which has nearly 100,000 members, is one that has already decided to strike. The Cap Makers' Union, with 7,000, is another, and three small organizations with an aggregate membership of 8,000 members were also reported to have taken favorable strike action at secret meetings. It was also reported by one of the speakers that the Painters' Union, with 10,000 members, had decided to join the sympathetic strike. The United Hebrew Trades officials say they have about 200,000 members in all.

A canvass by reporters of THE TIMES yesterday of unions embracing an aggregate of more than 250,000 members brought out the fact that a large percentage of New York's union workers are "waiting to see what the other unions will do" instead of declaring in favor of the general strike of all union workers called by the Central Federated body for tomorrow.

Five unions and the Executive Board of a sixth met last night at Labor Temple, 243 East Eighty-fourth Street, and only one acted favorably on the strike call. Even in the excepted case the walkout was dependent upon the action of the central organization. The union that favored a walkout was Local No. 4 of the Metal Workers, composed almost entirely of Germans and German-Americans.

Many other meetings were held last night, and in nearly every case action on the strike was postponed, at least until after the time originally set for the general walkout.

It was expected that representatives of a large part of the allied building trades organizations, the Bronx Board of Business Agents of that union, would decide on the strike question at their meeting in Arthur Hall, the Bronx. Union leaders had prophesied confidently that they would call their men out on strike. The Bronx meeting was held in the morning.

The delegates were secretive and made efforts to keep information of what took place at the meeting from reaching newspaper men. After it was over it was rumored that the meeting had voted in favor of the strike. Many of those who attended the meeting, however, came to Manhattan afterward and held another meeting at the union headquarters at 154 East Fifty-fourth Street. It was learned that the delegates had not voted to strike, but had decided to postpone their action until Thursday. This came as a great surprise to representatives of the many unions that come under the general head of the Buildings' Trades Union.

The Manhattan business agents, it had been reported, would hold their strike vote meeting today. After yesterday's postponement, however, it was said that this second group would also defer its action until Thursday.

The afternoon session of the business agents in the Fifty-fourth Street headquarters lasted from 2:30 to 6 o'clock, and when they left the hall the agents appeared disgruntled and many were arguing heatedly with each other.

The Building Trades Union includes the architectural iron workers, and the unions of the carpenters, cement workers, composition roofers, waterproofers, electrical workers, heat and coal insulation workers, house movers, painters, decorators, plasterers, plumbers, steam fitters, stone setters, and tile layers.

The Executive Council of the Ladies' Garment Workers and their affiliated unions is scheduled to hold a strike meeting today in the Stuyvesant Casino at Second Avenue and Ninth Street.

STRAUS WARNS UNION MEN.

Says Those Who Break Contracts by Striking Will Forfeit Respect.

Chairman Oscar S. Straus of the Public Service Commission reiterated yesterday that men who had made contracts with their employers, either individually or collectively, could not hope ever again to have their agreements respected if they should disregard them by joining a sympathetic strike movement.

His statement came as an answer to a question as to whether he thought the men employed in building the new subways of the Dual System would respond to a call for them to join the strike.

Mr. Straus explained that the International Tunnel and Subway Constructors' Union of America had signed an agreement with the contractors on April 18 last in which the scale of wages was fixed and which contained this provision:

> The above agreement is hereby accepted from the classes of labor above specified who agree to abide by the same, and further agree that no member of the International Tunnel and Subway Constructors' Union of America belonging to local unions composed of men known and designated as laborers, timbermen, timbermen's helpers, concrete machine runners, and wooden concrete form makers, shall go out on strike or be called out on any sympathetic strike during the continuance of the present contracts.

The agreement also binds all of the affiliated unions, such as those of the drill runners, blasters, powdermen, tool sharpeners, and so forth. Mr. Straus said that the agreement was signed by representatives of the contractors and of the strikers.

Mr. Straus said suspension of work on the subway would mean a loss of $30,000 a day to the public, because of the delay caused by the withdrawal of 18,000 men from the work.

SPECIAL SESSION IS URGED.

Legislators Will Ask Governor Today to Aid in Ending Strike.

Thirteen Assemblymen and one Senator from Manhattan and the Bronx met in the Biltmore Hotel late yesterday afternoon at the call of Assemblyman Vincent Gilroy to discuss the advisability of asking Governor Whitman to call a special session of the Legislature to enact some law that would dispose of the labor troubles in this city. After lengthy discussion a resolution covering the situation was offered by Assemblyman Goldstein and adopted.

Then a committee was appointed to call upon the Governor, who was in town awaiting notification of his renomination, and ask him when it would be convenient for him to meet a committee of nine appointed at the meeting.

The Governor set 3:15 o'clock this afternoon and the St. Regis Hotel as the time and place for receiving the committee. The preamble and resolution as originally prepared referred to the "apparent acquiescence of the Governor of the State of New York, who apparently minimizes the magnitude of this crisis," and suggested that the situation only needed "the simple expedient of extending the powers of the Public Service Commission," so that it might compel arbitration. But these expressions were censored out in its final form.

COURT CAN'T PUNISH SHONTS.

But Strike Cases Are Taken from Grand Jury He Circularized.

Judge Wadhams, in General Sessions, told the Grand Jury yesterday that, though the action of President Shonts of the Interborough Railway Company in sending pamphlets to the Grand Jury was "ill-advised and highly improper," the limitations of the statute prevented him from citing Mr. Shonts for contempt of court.

The court then instructed the jury not to take up an investigation of charges growing out of the traction strike since some of the members had read the pamphlets. The District Attorney was asked to present any traction complaints to the Special Grand Jury which is now in session. In his statement to the Grand Jury Judge Wadhams said:

"The reason that the sending of such a communication is ill-advised and improper is that an attempt is thereby made to get the ear of the Grand Jury to present a personal view of a complainant. This is not in accord with the principles of personal liberty and natural justice found in the common law, upon which our institutions are based.

"An act which, although violating no letter of the law, nevertheless violates the spirit of our institutions at a time of upheaval, unrest and contention, when society must for its safety and preservation depend on the fulfillment of the law, without fear or favor, is calculated, if unchallenged, to foment and stimulate the very disturbances, breaches of the peace and infractions of the law of which complaint is made."

Judge Wadhams said that if Mr. Shonts had reason to believe indictments should be found against any of the labor leaders, he should have called the matter to the attention of the District Attorney, who in turn would put the evidence before the Grand Jury if the facts so warranted. To permit every one to write notes or otherwise attempt to influence the Grand Jury in their deliberations, the court declared, would destroy the confidence of the people in that body.

In closing his statement Judge Wadhams said:

"Taking advantage of the loopholes in the law to commit acts which violate a sense of fairness and common justice is the kind of conduct which breeds rancor and hatred that lead to violence and strife."

De Lancey Nichol of counsel for Mr. Shonts conferred with Judge Wadhams and District Attorney Swann in the Judges's chambers before Judge Wadhams charged the jury. Mr. Nichol presented a brief on behalf of his client, defending his action.

Mr. Shonts refused yesterday to admit that he had been guilty of improper conduct in sending pamphlets to members of the Grand Jury.

In a memorandum issued in pamphlet form defending his conduct, he contended that "direct communication of information as to crimes within the county to a Grand Jury of the county was not only entirely lawful in New York State, but was, under the circumstances mentioned, the most appropriate procedure."

After calling attention to editorials that had appeared in many newspapers of the city, commenting on the conditions that were confronting the city, the memorandum sets forth that the communications were delivered "to the Grand Jurors outside of their private jury room, at their respective places of residence of business, to each as an individual."

"Without doubt our criminal laws ordinarily may be enforced efficiently through the police, the district attorneys, the magistrates, and the petit juries," the memorandum read, "but there is a latent power reserved in the Grand Jury, the preservation of which is far more important than the mere rapidity of disposition of criminal cases; and that is the traditional power of the Grand Jury—a body returned at short intervals directly from the people and, therefore, most directly representing the will of the people, a body responsible to no man nor governmental power but solely to their own conscience—the absolute, independent power of this body to investigate and speak and act for the people when magistrates and public prosecutors or other public officials may fail."

LUXEMBURG BLAMES BRITAIN

Officials Says the Latter Prevents the Importation of Food.

BERLIN, Sept. 25, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—According to reports from Luxemburg the food supply was the subject of a violent discussion in the Luxemburg Parliament, says an item given out today by the Overseas News Agency. Director General Welter, it is added, declared that the difficulties were due to the refusal of Great Britain to permit the importation of foodstuffs, even though their distribution would be under control of agents of the United States.

CANADA PUSHES RECRUITING

Service Board to Increase Enlistments to 500,000 Mark.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 25.—More systematic recruiting methods are to be put in force in Canada, it was announced to day, to bring the Dominion's contribution to the allied armies up to the half million quota promised Great Britain. The present more or less haphazard methods have raised 400,000 men, but this system, returns show, has about reached its limit. Recruiting machinery is to be speeded up and district officers' powers are to be enlarged.

There is to be an additional service board to increase enlistments, with Sir Thomas Tait as Director General. Sir Robert Borden announced today that the National Service Board's duties would be to stimulate recruiting and to determine whether the service of any person is more valuable to the State in his present employment or in military service.

The board also is to issue badges to persons honorably discharged from military service, to those exempt for physical reasons, and for those who are held to be more valuable in existing employments.

CONFEREES PUZZLED BY CARRANZA DENIAL

His Agents Ask Him About Assertion That Only Troops' Recall Is Discussed.

INTERNAL QUESTIONS BOB UP

Commission Will Leave New London This Week and Continue Its Work at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 25.—Members of the American and Mexican Joint Commission refused today to discuss for publication a circular telegram sent to the Governors of the Mexican States by First Chief Carranza denying that the commission was considering anything but the withdrawal of the American troops and charging that Republican newspapers were responsible for circulating false reports that the internal problems of Mexico had been taken up by the Commissioners.

The Mexican representatives advised the Americans of the dispatch by them of an inquiry to their Government as to the accuracy and meaning of the telegram.

While the Mexican Commissioners have officially denied that internal questions are under discussion, and Carranza has denounced such reports, one of the main questions talked about in the session today, according to Commissioner Lane, was health conditions in Northern Mexico. The Mexicans admitted the existence of typhus and other contagious diseases in many important cities. Although it would appear on the surface that there is a wide difference between the statements of the two sections, the difference is largely verbal, for the Mexicans consider that the word "discuss" means something like "negotiate." They hold that the sociological and economic conditions in Mexico are not negotiable or arbitrable by the commission, and have asserted this most emphatically.

Commission More Reticent.

Because of the embarrassment produced by Mr. Cabrera's denial that internal questions had been discussed, the denial following official typewritten accounts of conferences on such topics, the commissioners of both sections have been more reticent about the matters before them. It is impossible to get any clear statement whether the object of these discussions is that the Mexicans should go back to Mexico steeped in American ideas for the improvement of internal conditions, or whether it is hoped to obtain immediate changes in Mexican legislation.

In spite of the assertion of First Chief Carranza and of the Mexican commissioners themselves that the jurisdiction of the commission is strictly limited to the question of the withdrawal of the Pershing expedition and the patrol of the American border, the Americans are preparing to go still further into Mexican internal questions, which have occupied most of the session during the three weeks of the commission's existence.

A statement is due tomorrow or the following day, which was prepared at the request of the American commissioners, by a committee of which William Loeb, Jr., is the Chairman, representing the principal mining interests of Mexico. Mr. Loeb, who is a Director of the American Smelting and Refining Company, controlled by the Guggenheims, and representatives of most of the other large American mining properties in Mexico, drew up last week a statement on the confiscatory effect of the Carranza decrees.

Lawyers for the committee are expected to arrive this week and submit this statement with arguments to the Mexican commissioners on the necessity of obtaining a modification of the decrees if American mining interests are not to be driven out of Mexico. At the same time a group of American agricultural interests, one of the leading members of which is the Richardson Construction Company, is being organized to present a joint petition for relief from intolerable taxation. Harry Payne Whitney and John Hays Hammond are among the largest shareholders in this company.

Troop Question Put Aside.

Meantime no progress had been made with the only question which, according to the Mexicans, the commission is allowed to discuss.

The following dispatch received by Mr. Cabrera relative to the Villa attack on Chihuahua City was given out tonight without comment:

"The official report of General Trevino is as follows: 'Sixteenth, at dawn, this town was attacked by group about 600 bandits, apparently orders direct of Francisco Villa. At first were able take penitentiary and Government and Federal Palace. First promptly dislodged. Second besieged in palaces by infantry backed our artillery, whose good shooting destroyed this group. Survivors shot. Garrison remained all loyal and did duty. Regret report some losses. Among wounded I must count myself, though did not impede my directing combat till utter rout enemy. Forces of Generals Cavazos and Huerta Vargas, which were coming in pursuit of bandits, arrived here. Are organizing quickly to form column which under General Matias Ramos will renew pursuit till complete destruction. Reports show bandits carried off large number wounded.'"

To Meet in Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The joint Mexican-American Commission will leave New London, Conn., at the end of the present week and go to Atlantic City, where the sessions will be continued at the Hotel Chelsea. Announcement to this effect was made after a conference today between Secretary Lansing and Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican Ambassador-Designate, who discussed the various reports both had received regarding the Villista attack of Sept. 16 on Chihuahua City.

An official dispatch to the State Department from Mexico City today brought the news that Burton Wilson, a lawyer prominent in the American colony, and President of the American Club, has been arrested by the de facto Government authorities and is being held on a charge of reactionary political activity. Mr. Wilson was arrested about a week ago, released, and rearrested. Charles B. Parker, representative of the State Department in Mexico City, is interceding in his behalf.

HOLD AMERICAN TROOPER.

Mexicans Charge Him with Murder in a Saloon at El Valle.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 25.—A Carranza Sergeant of the El Valle, Chihuahua, garrison was shot and killed Friday night by an American trooper, of the Fifth Cavalry, who is being held prisoner, according to a report brought to Columbus, N. M., today from field headquarters.

The Carranza commander at El Valle refused to surrender the prisoner after General Pershing sent a messenger requesting his release. The American is said to be held incommunicado on a charge of murder.

According to the report, eight members of the Fifth Cavalry visited a saloon at El Valle. Seventeen Carranza soldiers entered later with side arms. During the drinking the Mexican Sergeant is said to have proposed a toast to the United States which was objected to by the Americans. The shooting is reported to have followed. When the Americans reached camp one of their number was missing.

CAMP NAMED FOR SERGEANT.

General Bell Honors Memory of Owen Bierne, Recently Slain.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 25.—An unexampled compliment was paid to the memory of an enlisted man today when by order of Brig. Gen. Bell the camp occupied here by troops of the Tenth Provisional Division was named "Camp Owen Bierne," after a Sergeant of that name belonging to the Twenty-third Infantry who was killed in a saloon last Thursday in performance of his duty with the provost guard. W. B. Sands, a Texas ranger, is in jail charged with the murder.

Funston Bars Revivals in Camps.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 25.—Major Gen. Funston today said he had no objection to the holding of revivals along the Mexican border by Baptist ministers, but that he did not wish such meetings inside the military camps. The General's statement was in discussion of a proposal by the Rev. J. B. Gambrell to hold meetings in border camps.

Sick Rate Slightly Higher.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Slight increases in the sick rate of troops on the Mexican border are shown in a report today to the War Department. For the week ended Sept. 16 the guard pecentage was 2.13, compared with 1.91 for the week preceding. That of the regulars was 2.63, against 2.15 for the previous week. Guard deaths totaled five, and those of the regulars two, against three and four, respectively, for the week ended Sept. 9.

Send Regrets to Mexicans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Major Gen. Funston advised the War Department today that he had ordered an expression of regret to the Mexican authorities for the action of Corporal Rogers, Troop B, Texas Cavalry, in crossing into Mexico with a patrol of seven men, Sept. 21, and had directed Colonel Gaston to try the Corporal for disobeying orders. The patrol was fired on by Mexican soldiers. No reason for the crossing has been given.

RIOTS IN NICARAGUA.

Dr. Irias Withdraws from Presidential Race as Result of Clashes.

SAN SALVADOR, Sept. 25.—Advices were received here today from Nicaragua concerning another outbreak in connection with the Presidential campaign, which was marked recently by an attempt on the life of Dr. Julian Irias, the Liberal candidate for President. Liberals and Conservatives, armed with rifles, clashed at Masaya, capital of the department of that name. Several persons were killed or wounded.

A dispatch received here from a reliable Nicaraguan source says that Dr. Irias has placed his resignation as a candidate in the hands of the executive council of his party.

PERSHING BECOMES A MAJOR GENERAL

President Wilson Promotes the Commander of the American Troops in Mexico.

FOUR COLONELS PROMOTED

Eben Swift, F. H. French, C. G. Treat, and Edwin St. J. Greble Are Made Brigadiers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing, who is in command of the American punitive expedition in Mexico, was appointed a Major General today by President Wilson. He succeeds to the place of Major Gen. Albert L. Mills, who died suddenly last Monday, and who was the first of the four new Major Generals authorized by the National Defense act of June 3, 1916. The three others to be appointed to original vacancies during the next four years.

Announcement of the promotion of Brig. Gen. Pershing was made by Secretary Baker late this afternoon, following a flying trip to Baltimore, where he conferred with President Wilson just before the latter delivered his speech in that city. In this conference the President approved the recommendations of the War Department for General Pershing's promotion and also for the appointment of four Colonels to be Brigadier Generals.

Except Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who was born Oct. 9, 1860, and Brig. Gen. William L. Siebert, who was born Oct. 16, 1860, Major Gen. Pershing is the youngest General in the army. The only officers ranking him among the Major Generals who are younger than Pershing are Wood and Funston. General Pershing was born Sept. 13, 1860, and there is less than a month's difference between his age and that of General Wood, although both are five years older than General Funston, who became a Brigadier General at 35 as a reward for his services in personally capturing Aguinaldo, the leader of the Filipino insurrection. There is less than a month's difference between the ages of Generals Wood and Pershing, neither of whom is due for retirement under the age limit before the latter part of 1924.

With the announcement of the promotion of Brig. Gen. Pershing, Secretary Baker made public the names of four Colonels whom the President today decided to appoint to be Brigadier Generals to fill existing or impending vacancies. They are:

Eben Swift, of the General Staff Corps, on duty at the Army Service Schools at Fort Leavenworth, in place of Brigadier General Pershing.

Francis H. French of the General Staff Corps, on duty along the Mexican border, to fill the vacancy to be created on Sept. 28, when Brigadier General Granger Adams retires.

Edwin St. John Greble, of the Sixth Field Artillery at Douglas, Ariz., to fill the vacancy to be created on Oct. 12, when Brigadier General Montgomery M. Macomb, president of the Army War College, retires.

Charles G. Treat, of the General Staff Corps, on duty at the Army War College, to fill the vacancy to be created on Oct. 17, when Brigadier General Frederick W. Sibley retires.

Before the end of the present year there will be at least one other vacancy in the list of Brigadier Generals. It will occur on Nov. 19 when General Robert K. Evans goes on the retired list. There will be no other vacancies in the grade of Major General or Brigadier General the present year unless they are caused by death.

The two Brigadier Generals now going on the retired list have held that rank only a few months and another was recently retired who held the rank less than a month. But these are officers who were promoted for service in connection with the Pershing expedition into Mexico. The National Defense act of June 3, 1916, provided for the addition of sixteen new Brigadier Generals to the general army within five years. Four of these were appointed soon after the bill became a law, representing this year's increment of the authorized increase. The Colonels appointed to be Brigadier Generals under this new law are Granger Adams, of the Fifth Field Artillery; George A. Dodd, of the Cavalry; Edward H. Plummer, of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, and Frederick W. Sibley, of the Fourteenth Cavalry.

WHITMAN DEFENDS HIS ACTS AT ALBANY

Nominees Guests at Dinner of James R. Sheffield with Depew, Dr. Butler, and Chairman Willcox.

Governor Charles S. Whitman, his running mates on the Republican State ticket, and William M. Calder, nominee for United States Senator, were officially notified last night at the Republican Club of their nomination for office. Scores of noted Republicans were present, and there was plenty of enthusiasm.

Prior to the notification ceremonies a dinner was given the nominees by James R. Sheffield, President of the club. Among those present were William R. Willcox, National Chairman; Frederick C. Tanner, State Chairman; Chauncey M. Depew, County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., Treasurer of the National Committee, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

Governor Whitman spoke at length, going over the record of his administration. Defying his critics, he said:

"I assume full responsibility for that legislation which I was accused of fostering in order to put Martin Saxe and others in office."

The Governor insisted that there had been discrimination against the city, and asserted that the Democratic Administration in Washington had overwhelmed the city with corporation and other income taxes to a far greater degree than had the Republican administration at Albany.

William M. Calder was introduced by Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., and said in part:

"Charles S. Whitman has made good. Under his administration we have seen departments reorganized, highway graft entirely eliminated or reduced to the absolute minimum, useless offices abolished, and useless officeholders invited to bestow their services elsewhere, and reforms enacted in every department of the State Government."

Referring to the national ticket, Mr. Calder said:

"Our distinguished leader has promised that on land and on sea he will insist that Americans and America shall be respected and that their lives shall be held sacred, their property inviolate, and their honor upheld. I subscribe to this doctrine because it is the doctrine of American manhood, because it is the doctrine of the Republican Party, and because it accords with my conception of manhood and Americanism."

HUGHES CRITICISES 8-HOUR BILL ANEW

Replying to Wilson, Candidate Says Administration Framed Law to Catch Votes.

SEES DANGEROUS TREND

Situation Created No Better Than Dictatorship, He Says — Denies 80-Cent Gas Precedent.

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 25.—Charles E. Hughes tonight replied to the address delivered at Shadow Lawn on Saturday by President Wilson. Devoting most of his time to an attack upon the Adamson eight-hour law and the President's assertion that the principle of the eight-hour day was not arbitrable, he charged that the Administration in much of its legislation had bartered for votes and that the establishment of a dictatorship was no worse than the course pursued.

"I have long stood," he said, "for proper definiteness in legislation. I think it is an ideal which we should endeavor to obtain. There has been too much, there has been a great deal in this Administration, of compromise phrases in the statutes apparently intended to mean one thing to one set of men, to get their votes, and another thing to another set of men, to allay their fears."

Mr. Hughes asserted that the Adamson bill was called an eight-hour bill with the direct purpose of confusing the public mind. He charged also that the passage of the bill was a surrender of the principle of legislation, adding:

"If the principle of legislation is abandoned, you might as well wind up your Republic and appoint a dictator, letting him be appointed who has the greatest force to compel obedience to his demands."

Of the Adamson bill he said: "That was a blow at business in this country, a blow at labor. Nothing can atone for the surrender of the very principles of government."

Mr. Hughes cited his investigation in the Eighty-Cent Gas bill cases as evidence that the reference of the Administration to that law in connection with the Adamson law was ridiculous.

In his speech Mr. Hughes said:

Not an Eight-Hour, but a Wage Bill.

"Our friends on the other side betray the weakness of their position by the failure to call things by their right names. The bill to which I refer is spoken of as the Eight-Hour bill. It does not deserve the name. It does not provide an eight-hour workday; it does not limit the hours of labor. It leaves to railroad companies the privilege to employ men for just as long a time as they were employed before.

"What do we mean by an eight-hour day? It involves the principle of affording opportunity for recreation, for refreshment, and for education, by limiting the hours of actual work, except in case of emergency. The very theory of an eight-hour workday bill is a limitation of the hours of employment upon the consideration that the limitation will be of benefit to all concerned.

"It is said that the principle was not arbitrable. It is a very extraordinary statement, for, eighteen years ago, I believe, in the passage of the act to promote conciliation and arbitration with respect to disputes between interstate commerce employes and carriers, there was provision made for artbitration with respect to hours of labor and conditions of employment, as well as of wages. And in a bill which, I believe, was signed during this Administration in July, 1913, the same provision, in, I believe, substantially the same language, was re-enacted in the law providing for arbitration with respect to wages, conditions of employment, and hours of labor.

"Of course, the question whether in a particular case conditions exist which should provide for a certain number of hours of labor is a question requiring the most earnest consideration. But no one, in this controversy to which I am now referring, had any idea of establishing an eight-hour workday. The principle of the eight-hour workday is not in any way involved.

Hasty Legislation Dangerous.

"I have stood from the time I entered upon my public career for reasonable hours of service, and no one more than I desires to see every opportunity given to every workingman to escape an undue severity of strain and for the opportunity which American manhood should have. But I protest against any endeavor to confuse the thought of America by talking about an eight-hour workday when nothing of the sort has been enacted, nothing of the sort has been proposed, and the only thing that was proposed or enacted was a change in the schedule of wages. Men may work just as long as before.

"When legislation is hastily enacted some unpleasant difficulties occur. When it is said that eight hours shall be the standard, what becomes of the man who doesn't work eight hours? How is he left? How does he stand under the agreements which formerly existed with respect to working less than eight hours, if he made his run within that time?

"Of course, the matter of wages in the case of our carriers is the most important consideration. It was desired that men should be well and properly paid, but when you charge to the expenses of carriers an additional burden of hundreds of millions of dollars you must consider what you are doing, for these charges must be met by rates.

"It was proposed, in this connection, to give a sort of guaranty for an increase of rates. That means a burden upon the public; that means a burden upon industry, upon agriculture. That means that every one has got to calculate with respect to enlarged charges who comes under the rates that may be increased. That is not a matter to be entered upon without suitable inquiry. While the few might think they would be benefitted by a particular act, how would the great hosts of workingmen, the men in the very industries who might be involved by the operation of this act, feel about it!

"Fellow-citizens, I am not dealing with the merits of the increase of wages; that is a matter that ought to be examined and determined according to the facts. What I say is that in an intricate matter of that sort—in fact, in any matter which requires an examination of the facts—no one should propose that any legislature should pass a law fixing a rate of wages without knowing what it was doing or whether it was right.

Supreme Court Precedents.

"If there is anything more remarkable or regrettable than these efforts to have it appear that an eight-hour workday is involved it is an attempt to draw an analogy between the case of legislation of that description and the action of our courts in dealing with rate cases. It has been stated, for example, that when a rate is fixed by law as a railroad rate or as a telephone rate, and it is attacked as unconstitutional because confiscatory, the Supreme Court of the United States has stated that it would not declare the measure unconstitutional until the effect of the operation of the rate had been disclosed. It has been sought to draw an analogy between such a case and legislation in the event of inquiry.

"Now, our system of government requires the careful study of facts, of a full understanding, and it is of the utmost importance that the thought of our people should be kept clear with respect to the various departments of the Government. The courts have nothing to do with the question of the wisdom or policy of legislation. Questions of constitutionality come before the courts after the Legislature has acted, presumably with knowledge of the facts and upon careful inquiry.

"The question that comes before the court is, whether after a Legislature has presumably done its full duty in examining the facts, dealing with the facts according to its judgment, the act of the Legislature should be declared void and of no effect because it exceeded legislative power. The question before the court is whether it should be declared a nullity because it was against the Constitution of the State or an act of Congress or against the Constitution of the United States.

"Now, when anyone comes into court charging that an act fixing rates is contrary to the Constitution of the State or of the United States what does the court say to him? It says: 'Before we will perform this extraordinary function of declaring a legislative act void and of no effect, because unconstitutional, we insist that you, the plaintiff in this case, shall prove your case beyond any peradventure of doubt.'

"When you come in before you are able to make such a case, after a Legislature in its wisdom and after examination has acted, and you endeavor to get the courts to thwart the will of the Legislature, the court very properly says: 'That is not our province. You prove your case, and if you haven't got the facts to show in advance of the operation of the law that it operates to confiscate your property we will not interfere with the operation of the law.'

Gas Case No Precedent.

"What has that to do—that sound rule of judicial action, with the question whether the Legislature shall act without any inquiry at all? That proposition only needs to be stated to receive its proper condemnation. An illustration was put forward of the 80-cent gas rate in New York. Why, I was counsel for a committee of the New York Legislature which investigated that matter for weeks, and wrote an exhaustive report on the cost of making gas and on every matter relating to the propriety of that rate, and the Legislature acted only after a most careful examination and exhaustive consideration of every fact involved. Think of that being cited as a precedent!

"When we have legislation attacked in the courts we have one principle of judicial action. When we have propositions submitted to the Legislature, we have a principle of legislative action. Let no one confuse the American mind as to the principle of legislative action. It has been the same since Legislatures first began to sit, and I hope it will remain the same as long as we continue to have legislative action in this country. Indeed, if it is abandoned you might as well wind up your Republic and appoint a dictator, letting him be appointed who has the greatest force to exert to compel obedience to his demands.

"And as for the suggestion that we should have been involved, had it not been for this surrender, in great difficulty, I make two replies: In the first place, I say to those who counsel surrender in such places, How much are you willing to give up? What does it mean? Any demand, without knowing the facts? How far will you go in having legislation without principle? As I said the other night, you think that you will accumulate courage to make a stand somewhere by continual surrenders along the line.

"I say, in the next place, that when a fundamental principle of government is involved, stand and see what public opinion, well directed, when an immediate, prompt, and thorough investigation is obtained, will do in your support.

"Why, an American Executive would stand with all America behind him, and no threats would culminate in any action."

Mr. Hughes charged that the Administration had dropped its charges of extravagance made against former Republican Administrations because of its own extravagances.

Opened Ohio Campaign.

Mr. Hughes had a tiring day as the big figure in opening of the Republican campaign in Ohio. Prominent in the day's events also were Governor Frank T. Willis and Myron T. Herrick, Republican nominee for United States Senator.

The day was started with a visit to the Soldiers' Home, the largest in the country, where Mr. Hughes talked to 1,000 of the old soldiers. Then he reviewed a parade of 4,000, which ended at the Fair Grounds, where 10,000 people had gathered. Governor Willis took up most of the time there, Mr. Hughes speaking only a few minutes.

Mr. Hughes will continue his tour of Ohio tomorrow, with a speech at Cleveland in the evening.

BUTLER SEES WEST STRONG FOR HUGHES

Columbia's President Says Passage of 8-Hour Law Has Helped Republicans.

HOPE TO WIN SENATE

Western Country, He Asserts, Has Overcome Attack of Political Lassitude.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, after traveling 10,000 miles through fifteen States and three Canadian Provinces, returned to the university yesterday. He said he was convinced that Mr. Hughes would be elected next November. There was room for as many opinions on the results of the election, however, President Butler asserted, as there were candidates in the field.

In the course of his travel through the West Dr. Butler said that he found THE NEW YORK TIMES was one of the few New York dailies which found its way so far West and that it was exceedingly popular throughout the country. An editorial published in THE TIMES on Sept. 1 entitled "A National Humiliation," and dealing with the passing of the eight-hour law by Congress, had a wide influence throughout the West, Dr. Butler asserted, and was received with enthusiasm and approbation.

"We have had a Summer of unusual interest and profit," Dr. Butler said. "Partly by train and partly by automobile we have traveled nearly 10,000 miles through fifteen States and three Canadian Provinces. It has been easy and interesting to combine some political activity with vacation, and the close study of industrial and social conditions in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast States.

"During the earlier part of the Summer the whole Western country was afflicted with a rather severe attack of political lassitude. The general indifference to the fact that there was to be a national election in November was quite striking. Now that the harvest is in and the primary contests in the several States are over, conditions are entirely changed. The interest in the political campaign is now exceedingly active, particularly in Illinois and in Indiana. So far as the result in November is concerned, one may come away with as many opinions, all alleged to be unbiased, as there are candidates. There is a suspicious unwillingness to talk politics on the part of a very considerable portion of the population, which may mean that smething quite unexpected is going to happen. My own impression is, and I give it for whatever it may be worth, that conditions more nearly resemble those of 1892, when the position of the two great parties was reversed, than those of any other recent Presidential campaign.

"There are many different conflicting currents of opinion, not necessarily national in character, but which are likely to operate so as to affect the vote for President. Sometimes these currents of opinin deal with individuals of local or State importance and sometimes they deal with issues. It seems to me that at the moment the signs point to the election of Mr. Hughes, particularly since the people generally have come to understand what really happend regarding the railway pay bill passed by Congress under duress. The leading editorial article in THE TIMES entitled 'A National Humiliation,' which appeared about Sept. 1, was widely copied in the Western press and everywhere commented on with enthusiasm and approbation. It may be a matter of interest to readers of THE TIMES to know that we found THE TIMES on sale everywhere. Usually it was the only New York paper obtainable, and always it was the most popular and the most influential.

"While I was called upon to make political speeches almost everywhere, my chief political meetings were in California, where I opened the campaign on July 21. The last week has been spent in Indiana, speaking at Lafayette, Crawfordsville, Frankfort, Bloomington, Columbus, and Valparaiso. The meetings were everywhere large and most attentive. It is, I suppose, no secret that the Republicans confidently expect to regain control of the United States Senate. To do this they must gain nine Senators. Of this number five are believed to be certain, namely, those in Maine, which has already voted; New York, New Jersey, West Virginia, and Ohio. Four more must be gained from the following eight opportunities: Maryland, Nebraska, Missouri, Nevada, Arizona, Montana, and two in Indiana. Members of the Republican Campaign Committee expressed to me the conviction that six of these eight Senators would be Republican.

"In discussing non-political subjects and in meeting non-political audiences it has been my endeavor to interest people generally in the problems of our international relations that must arise when the European war ends. I have been emphasizing the important part played since Washington's time by the United States in the development of world politics, and have particularly urged the necessity of carrying forward after the war the work of influential leadership in organizing the world for peace, for which the foundations were laid by the American delegations to The Hague Conferences of 1899 and 1907. I am glad to say that the discussion of this subject has been very cordially received."

5 TO 1 ON 20,000 FOR HUGHES.

John T. King Offers to Give Long Odds on Connecticut.

John T. King, Republican National Committeeman for Connecticut, who called upon Chairman Willcox yesterday, said any alignment of Connecticut in the doubtful column was ridiculous.

"We will have 30,000 plurality for Hughes and Fairbanks," said Mr. King. "I will bet 5 to 1 now on a 20,000 Republican plurality."

HOUSE DEMOCRATIC BY 50.

Chairman Doremus Predicts Gains—Says Majority Is Assured.

Representative Frank E. Doremus of Michigan, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, conferred at length yesterday with National Chairman Vance McCormick concerning conditions in the Middle West. Mr. Doremus said he had had a talk with Henry Ford on Sunday, and Mr. Ford told him the election of Wilson was assured. Mr. Doremus said:

"Conservative estimates indicate that the Democrats will organize in the next House by not less than fifty majority. We will gain two seats in Connecticut, three in New Jersey, one in North Carolina, three in New York, two in Pennsylvania, six in Ohio, one in Indiana, two in Michigan, three in Illinois, one in Kansas, two in Nebraska and two in California, to say nothing of even chances in a dozen other Middle and Western States.

"Mr. Hughes is making Wilson votes every day by his attack upon the Administration for averting the threatened railroad strike."

Among the callers at Democratic headquarters yesterday were ex-Senator Clarence W. Watson and O. L. Dhaver of West Virginia, National Committeeman and State Chairman respectively.

DANIELS ON DISARMAMENT.

Favors Compact of Powers, but Navy Building Meantime.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 25.—Importance of the provision in this year's great Naval Appropriation bill authorizing the President to call a world disarmament conference was emphasized in a speech here tonight by Secretary Daniels.

"As long as other great powers rush into battleship construction America cannot safely fail to speed up its program so as to be able to meet any possible foe," Mr. Daniels said. "But in the very terms that say to the world we have the money and we are ready to spend it to make a navy just as big as our extended coast line and national interests demand, we say also that we are ready to stop this program of construction if an international agreement among the big navy powers can be reached to end the competitive construction.

"The far-reaching importance of this tender to other powers has not been fully appreciated by our own people. Perhaps not by the people abroad, engrossed as they are in war. For the first time in the history of the United States there is laid down the broad policy which would end the fear of war and the burden of building and maintaining gigantic navies."

The Secretary deprecated a sneering attitude toward advocates of peace and disarmament.

"However much these societies have failed to prevent war in the world and however far short the agitation for world-wide reduction of armament has been disappointing to its advocates," he said, "the truth remains that this is the ideal toward which America looks, and looks with faith for its realization."

Bacon Withdraws as Candiate.

ALBANY, Sept. 25.—The formal declination of Robert Bacon as the United States Senatorial candidate of the American Party reached the office of the Secretary of State today. He declined to run on the American Party ticket, because, before he was informed that he was named on it, he had pledged his support to William M. Calder, his successful opponent in the Republican primaries.

Why don't you let your advertising manager earn his salary?

Nothing of the sort. You forbid it.

You picked him out because you wanted a specialist. Yes? Because you believed he had specialized on the point of view of the human beings whose point of view must be reached before you could do business with them. Yes? Because he had kept posted on the influence as well as the circulation of publications. Yes? Because he knew copy when he saw it and knew where to get it, and because he was trained in typography and art work and plates. Yes? And because he knew how to get service from an advertising agency. Right?

All right. Then you start right in at nine o'clock and discount his opinion as to what's in the back of the heads of your possible customers. Before ten o'clock you have arbitrarily overruled his decisions as to the value of certain publications. Along about eleven o'clock you have picked out the one climax in a piece of copy and killed it because you "didn't like it" and had the girl's face in the picture made over to suit your own personal ideal.

And before noon you have told him where he gets off when he tries to guide you in the selection of your advertising agency—and then you go out to lunch and your waiter gets the same sort of session.

Why didn't you hire a waiter instead of an advertising manager? You could get him a lot cheaper.

Every advertising manager sooner or later becomes either a right arm to the business or a rubber stamp. You picked out your man because he was the right man. Let him earn his salary!

Nujol For Constipation

THE GREEK IDEAL

Health of body and health of mind. How can you have either if you are handicapped by constipation, by the failure of the body's waste-disposing mechanism?

This mechanism is delicate and easily thrown out of gear. Worry, hurry, improper food and insufficient exercise cause constipation. Pill-taking only makes a bad matter worse, because laxative and cathartic remedies, by weakening the natural processes of evacuation, tend to make constipation chronic.

Nujol is entirely free from these objections. It acts in effect as an internal lubricant preventing the contents of the intestines from becoming hard, and in this way facilitating normal movements.

All druggists carry Nujol which is manufactured only by the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). Avoid substitutes. Write today for booklet "The Rational Treatment of Constipation."

FEAR FRAUDS TODAY IN JERSEY PRIMARY

Prosecutors at Both Ends of the State Warned of Illegal Voting.

MARTINE'S SEAT IN DOUBT

Ex-Judge Wescott Has Administration Backing for U. S. Senate—Many Other Contests.

New Jersey voters of all persuasions are awaiting the results of today's primaries with almost as great interest as though the polls were open for actual election ballots. The campaign, among both Republicans and Democrats, has been one of the most bitter ever waged in the State, and last night all sides predicted a victory. There are contests for the Legislature and Congress nominations in many counties. The polls will close at 9 P. M.

The Republicans have more to engage their attention than the Democrats, for they have both Gubernatorial and Senatorial contests. The Democrats are united on H. Otto Wittpenn for Governor, but are concerned with the efforts of Senator James E. Martine of Union County and Attorney General John Wescott of Camden County to win the nomination for United States Senator.

Among Republicans both Colonel Austen Colgate of Essex and Walter E. Edge of Atlantic are hopeful of getting the organization vote for Governor and George L. Record of Hudson thinks a sufficient vote of former Progressives may develop to give him the nomination while his two opponents are dividing the regular Republican ballots. Ex-Governor Franklin Murphy of Newark and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of Raritan are contesting the United States Senatorial nomination.

Opinion on the chances of the various candidates was divided yesterday, but the general expression was that Murphy, who has the Republican National Committee behind him in this, a Presidential year, will win over Frelinghuysen; that Edge, with the help of Major Carl Lentz, ex-Chairman of the Essex County Republican Committee and head of the United Singers of North America, and of his German friends, will prevail over Colgate, and that ex-Judge Wescott, the choice of the National Administration, will defeat Senator Martine. Record's chances were not taken seriously by any one except himself.

From Atlantic City came reports yesterday that ex-Mayor William Riddle, the resort's ultra-liberal exponent, was making a last stand to return to power. He is leading the fight for Colgate, and his machine predicted it would control 40 per cent. of the county vote. This would be considered a defeat for Edge in his home section, but his supporters asserted that they had the county safe.

Efforts were made yesterday to insure an honest election, and County Prosecutor Moore in Atlantic City gave election officers the names of 1,000 voters from the lists of 9,000 as being irregularly registered. Mr. Moore said half of these might be due to change of residence and misinterpretation of notices, but the others, he asserted, were clearly illegal, and he instructed officers to make arrests.

Prosecutor Hudspeth of Hudson County said an investigation had convinced him there was some truth in charges that repeaters would be used today, and he had posted men all over the county to watch for these, to whom he promised a speedy and severe punishment.

HITCHCOCK FEARS MID-WEST.

Says Hughes Must Carry New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

Frank H. Hitchcock, member of the Republican National Campaign Committee, who has been in the West for the last few weeks, returned to New York yesterday and after conferring with National Chairman Willcox told about his work in the States he had visited. He said he returned with much more confidence in the ultimate success of the ticket than he had after his first trip through the West.

"The going is good," is the way Mr. Hitchcock described the situation. "Everything looks very fine, and we have the right swing."

In Indiana Mr. Hitchcock believes that the Republicans will have to put forth their best endeavors. While the State might be classed as doubtful, he told Mr. Willcox, the Republicans would have to make every effort to put it in the Republican column.

After a trip through Illinois Mr. Hitchcock believes the State is headed for the Republican column, but he candidly admits that the Republicans will have to do some tall hustling there to win out.

Mr. Hitchcock classes Missouri as doubtful and, therefore, the Republicans are going to make a good fight in that State. Mr. Hitchcock believes that Wisconsin may be close and Kentucky he puts in the doubtful column.

While Tennessee will go Democratic, Mr. Hitchcock says, he believes the Republicans have an excellent chance of electing a Senator there.

He told Chairman Willcox that it was absolutely necessary for the Republicans to carry New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut in order to win, and from now on it is certain that an active campaign will be carried on in these States.

California and Washington Mr. Hitchcock classes as sure for the Republicans, but he admits that a hot fight must be conducted in order to carry Colorado.

Mr. Hitchcock believes that the Republicans will have to work hard to combat the issues brought forward by the Democrats in all of the mid-Western States. The "peace issue" there, he finds, is most acceptable to the Democratic voters, and the Republicans will have to be on the job every minute to keep it from spreading, he says. He believes it is the biggest issue the Democrats have. The Mexican situation, Mr. Hitchcock said, was working against the Democratic Party, and the Republicans were bending every effort to keep this issue alive.

The eight-hour law, Mr. Hitchcock finds, is popular among a certain class of workingmen, but the labor vote is about evenly divided on it, he thinks. Just how much it will affect the voting, Mr. Hitchcock frankly admitted that he could not tell, but he was sure the bulk of the farmers were inclined to support the Republican ticket on the theory that they would have to "pay the freight" if the railroads increased wages. Mr. Hitchcock said the second campaign trip of Mr. Hughes was much more effective than the first trip and was rapidly winning votes. On the whole, Mr. Hitchcock believes that the campaign, from a Republican viewpoint, has undergone a splendid change for the better and that the outlook today is far better than it was a few weeks ago.

Commenting upon President Wilson's speech at Shadow Lawn on Saturday, Chairman Willcox said:

"Mr. Wilson's effort on Saturday to defend his Adamson law is as weak as any argument he ever made. He said the eight-hour day principle is not arbitrable because it is the demand of society. If that be true, why did he not enact an eight-hour day law, which the Adamson act distinctly is not? While recognizing that labor is not to be treated as a commodity, he immediately refers to the 80-cent-gas law, dealing with a commodity, to support his argument in favor of fixing the price of labor.

"The President illustrates his argument by referring to the 80-cent gas law, but does not call attention to the fact that before the law was passed by the Legislature a full investigation of the gas companies of New York had been carried on by the Legislature. Charles E. Hughes acted as counsel. The law was not passed on the eve of a Presidential election, nor forced through, by a candidate for high office."

NO TIME OFF FOR LAMAR.

Federal Judge Says "Wolf of Wall Street" Shall Serve His Full Term.

Carl E. Whitney, counsel for David Lamar, known as "The Wolf of Wall Street," who is serving a two years' sentence in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, moved before Judge Manton of the Federal District Court yesterday that the minutes of the conviction made by Clerk William Leary be corrected, but the Court denied the motion.

Lamar was convicted of falsely impersonating Representative A. Mitchell Palmer with the intent to defraud J. P. Morgan & Co. and the United States Steel Corporation. He was sentenced on Dec. 3, 1914, but a certificate of reasonable doubt was issued and Lamar was free under bail until last June, when he surrendered himself and received his sentence. Lamar contended that he was really serving his sentence between the time of his conviction and the day he was taken to the penitentiary.

WILSON'S TRIBUTE TO JEWS.

President Expresses Interest in Fellow-Citizens of the Race.

Describing America as "a real home in which all forces work together for justice and fair dealing," President Wilson has written a letter for publication in the coming special New Year number of The American Hebrew, it was announced by the publishers here yesterday, paying a high tribute to the citizenship of the Jews and assuring them of his interest in his "fellow citizens of Hebrew extraction."

"No man who knows the history of America," the President wrote, "or, indeed, of the world, could fail to appreciate their notable contributions to industry, philanthropy, intellectual development and political liberty."

FELLED BY BURGLAR SHE TRIES TO KILL

STRIPPED OF HER RINGS

But Mrs. Bolognino, Regaining Senses, Fired at Assailant, Then Collapsed.

Screams for help, the sounds of a struggle and then the report of a revolver shot roused tenants in the apartment house at 370 Manhattan Avenue shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, and they hurried into the halls just as the buzzer at the telephone switchboard in the lower hall sounded a call from the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bolognino on the second floor. John Meissner, Superintendent of the house, answered it, and when he received no reply to his calls, hurried to the apartment which he entered accompanied by half a dozen of the men tenants.

They found Mrs. Bolognino lying senseless beside the telephone. Meissner, thinking she was dead, telephoned for the police, but in a moment she regained consciousness and screamed hysterically:

"There was a burglar here. I tried to shoot him. Where is he? Did he get away?"

There was no stranger in the apartment and the burglar must have slipped out through the hall in the excitement. Mrs. Bolognino said he had been hiding in a closet when she entered the apartment about 1 o'clock. She had spent the evening with her husband, who owns the Morningside Theatre, a moving picture house at 116th Street and Eighth Avenue, and had started home when he promised to follow in a few moments.

She had switched on the light in the dining room, she said, when the man emerged from the closet and sprang at her.

"I want your money!" he exclaimed. "Don't make an outcry, and I won't hurt you."

But Mrs. Bolignino ran for another room, screaming at the top of her lungs. The burglar followed her, and when she continued to scream, fighting with him until chairs and other furniture had been overturned and bric-a-brac knocked from the mantel, he finally struck her on the head with a blackjack.

The blow half stunned the woman, and as she lay on the floor the man removed two rings from her finger, one a diamond ring in platinum setting worth $142, which her husband had given her a day or so ago, and the other a smaller diamond worth $70.

Mrs. Bolognino recovered her strength enough to jump up, then, and run for her bedroom, where she kept a revolver under her pillow. The burglar started for her again, but she got her weapon and turned on him when he was about five feet away. He rushed at her and she fired. The bullet did not hit him, she thought, but it terrified him for he turned on his heel and ran out of the apartment. She did not try to follow but made for the telephone thinking to trap him on the ground floor and then she fainted.

Mr. Bolognino returned a few moments after his wife had told her story. Dr. Somers was called from Knickerbocker Hospital and he found the woman hysterical from fright and wounded on the head where the blackjack had struck her and he put her to bed. Mr. Bolognino made a search of the apartment, but he said he believed nothing had been taken except the rings stolen from his wife's fingers.

There have been several bold burglaries reported lately from the same neighborhood, and the police believe they have all been the work of one man, the same one Mrs. Bolognino surprised. Apparently the man had entered the place by a window which gives on to a fire escape within reach of any one who might enter a back court.

CHASES ELOPERS IN RACER.

Special to The New York Times.

BLOOMINGDALE, N. J., Sept. 25.—Mrs. John Cooper didn't tell it, for she hasn't had a word to say since she got home early last Saturday morning. Frank Roach and Mrs. Frank Roach have steadfastly declined to talk, and Charles McKevis and Mrs. Rose Cook McKevis, daughter of Mrs. Cooper, haven't been seen here since they drove out of town Friday evening, but every one in Bloomingdale knows that Charles McKevis and Rose Cook eloped and had a hard time doing it. And every one knows that Mrs. Cooper tried to stop them and didn't succeed, though she went on a wild auto ride in pursuing, which ended when a rear wheel came off her racing car and she was pitched late at night over a fence into a cemetery.

It wasn't that Mrs. Cooper didn't like McKevis, who is manager of Sloan's garage, but she thought Rose was too young to be married. Rose is 23 and thought differently. Still, Mrs. Cooper didn't object when McKevis, with his brother Alvin, and Mrs. Roach for a chaperon, drove up Friday evening in McKevis's big car and invited Rose to ride. It was only after they were on their way that Mrs Cooper began to suspect.

Then she hurried down to Roach's garage. Now, whether he knew and told where his wife was going isn't reported by the two gossips. At any rate, he got out his racing roadster, and, with Mrs. Cooper beside him, put after the other automobile.

They caught it, too, just as McKevis and the others were mounting the steps of the Rev. C. M. Dixon's home in Pompton, five miles away. There was a scene on the porch, in the midst of which Miss Cook and her party jumped into their car and started away at full speed, leaving Mrs. Cooper and Roach to explain to the minister. They did this briefly, and then were off once more in the racing roadster. It was just as they swung around a corner that the rear wheel came off. They flew through the air and alighted on a grass plot in the cemetery.

Neither was hurt, but when Roach got the wheel on again the others were out of sight and couldn't be overtaken, and they do say now that Mrs. Cooper suspects Roach took that nut off on purpose.

At any rate, McKevis and his bride-to-be got to the home of the Rev. F. E. Foertner, pastor of the Pompton Plains Reformed Church, after Mrs. Foertner had retired and the minister was ready for bed. They dressed, however, and the ceremony was performed in the parson's parlor, McKevis and Miss Cook pleading for haste on the announced ground that they had to catch a train, and going nearly frantic while the Rev. Mr. Foertner kindly looked it up for them on the time table and told them they had time to spare.

Young McKevis and Mrs. Roach drove home just about the time Roach delivered Mrs. Cooper at her door and put his car up in the garage, but McKevis and his bride haven't been heard from yet.

POLICE FIND HOUSE USED FOR MURDERS

Blackhanders Thought to Have Killed Men Whose Bones Were Dug Up in Canarsie.

THE STORY OF A VENDETTA

Two Slain Italians Are Said to Have Won Enmity of Sicilian Band —Coroner Holds Suspects.

Detectives working under Captain Daniel J. Carey of the Seventh Detective Bureau found yesterday the house in Sackman Street, Brooklyn, in which they alleged Dominic La Rosa and his friend Rosario Passorelo were murdered, and from which their bodies were carried to be buried in the so-called "murder farm" at Hageman and Powell Streets, near Canarsie.

It was the reconstruction of La Rosa's body on Sunday from one of the skeletons found on the farm that led to the arrest of Giovanni Romano of 149 Sackman Street and Victor Picciotto, who lived in Junius Street. Both men were held yesterday by Coroner Wagner without bail to answer to a charge of homicide. Romano had a falling out with La Rosa just before he disappeared in March, 1914, and Picciotto lived on the truck farm where the bodies were buried. When the two skeletons were unearthed by excavators on the Canarsie farm the police remembered the disappearance of La Rosa. With wax, sculptor's clay, and a wig they reconstructed the body of La Rosa. When those who knew the dead man were called to view the figure La Rosa's sister identified it and accused Romano of knowing something of her brother's disappearance.

The police believe that they have evidence enough to bring Romano to trial for the murders. He is a Sicilian and he has already served one term in an American prison. The second prisoner, the police asserted, was either a member of the band which killed La Rosa and his friend or consented from fear to "turn the other way" while his five-acre farm was used as a burial ground by the Sicilians. In the presence of Assistant District Attorney Anderson and several detectives Mrs. Josephine Manaschino, the sister of Passorelo, pointed out Romano yesterday as one of three men who called at her home in Atlantic Avenue and persuaded her brother to accompany them. He never came back from that trip. Romano was lined up with several other men and Mrs. Manaschino was brought in. Without hesitation she walked up to the suspected man and, pointing toward him, said she was sure that he was one of the three visitors to her home.

Through what Mrs. Manaschino told and from what the detectives learned in scouring the Italian district of East New York, Captain Carey said that he had been able to reconstruct nearly every incident in the trip of La Rosa and Passorelo to their deaths. It is the typical story of a Sicilian vendetta—the story of the "removal" of a man who threatened to make trouble for a band of criminals and the subsequent murder of his friend who, notwithstanding warnings, persisted in seeking to find out what had become of the missing man.

The trail led the detectives to a Sackman Street cellar in which both men were killed and from which their bodies were carried separately some twenty-five blocks to the lonely truck farm and buried. Mixed up in the case is a tall dark woman, a widow, who is said to have been used by the Sicilians to extort money from their countrymen. Of this woman the police would say nothing yesterday.

The incidents which ended in the murders began in March, 1914, according to the police, when La Rosa came to Passorelo's home with a bullet in his back. He was reported to have had trouble with Romano. He recovered in time, and his friends, including Passorelo, believed that his differences with Romano had been patched up. So apparently did La Rosa, for he went abroad as usual.

One day he left home, presumably to spend the evening with a friend. He did not return, and after several days the police were notified and his name was entered on the list of missing persons. Passorelo was in jail when his friend disappeared, serving a term for stealing wire from the Long Island Railroad. When he got back to the Italian colony in East New York he began a quiet search for his companion. Captain Carey said that word traveled by underground channels throughout the Italian colony that Passorelo was back to "make trouble."

In November, 1914, Passorelo was warned that he must no longer pursue his inquiry. He did not heed the warning, and even went to Ramano to inquire for La Rosa. Then, the police said, a stranger passing him on the street made a Sicilian death sign. Passorelo told his sister that his life had been threatened. Two or three nights after that three men called at his home and, with every evidence of friendliness, invited Passorelo to come out with them for a good time. His sister, remembering the death threat, begged him not to go, but he did not heed her. Two days later his name was entered beside that of La Rosa on the police list of missing persons.

The theory of the police is that both men were done to death in the same house. La Rosa, they say, was shot as he came down the stairs. His body was, the police believe, conveyed through crowded East New York at night in a wagon such as hucksters use for their wares. The same plan was followed, they think, in the case of Passorelo, though the detectives are not certain that he was shot to death. How many are in the secret the police do not know, for their coming into the case has silenced every tongue that has been whispering about the colony suspicions as to how La Rosa and his friend disappeared.

The house in which the police say the men were killed is more than a mile from the farm where the bodies were unearthed. Picciotto in 1914 had a lease of the place, and though he denies that he knew of the murders, he is being held because, according to the police, his story does not "stand up." It is recalled now that several years ago the body of an organ grinder was found near the Canarsie farm. He had been murdered.

Those among the Italians in the neighborhood who were not afraid to talk recalled yesterday that Mrs. Passorelo, after the disappearance of her husband, sought to obtain a warrant against the man she believed was responsible for it. She was persuaded not to do so. While her husband was in jail she attempted to kill herself, and after his release and disappearance she died, largely the result of worry.

Negro Wounds Union's President, Who Sought to Convert Him.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, Sept. 25.—Thomas Hughes, President of Local Union 89 of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, was shot and seriously wounded this afternoon by John Miller, a negro strikebreaker employed in the Piermont Paper Mills.

Hughes was endeavoring to convert Miller to unionism when the negro drew a revolver and shot him through the abdomen. A squad of deputy sheriffs placed Miller in an auto and hurried him to the county jail at New City.

Trouble has been brewing between strikers and strikebreakers for several days, and tonight twenty-five deputies and as many more private detectives are guarding the paper mill.

The Refugees

I HAVE come over here to extend to the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, and to its able representative, Mr. Hershfield, the hearty congratulations of my chief, President Wilson, upon his wonderful achievement in opening communications with an isolated portion of the war zone, and I want to add my own congratulations to those of the President.

From the address of the Honorable William B. Wilson, Secretary of the Department of Labor, delivered in Carnegie Hall, June 29, 1916.

I THINK if your Society had never done anything else, if it had not done the great and wide reaching good that it has done and is doing and will continue to do in an ever growing measure in this country; if, I repeat, you had done nothing else than the sending of Mr. Hershfield to Europe at this crucial time, you would deserve the thanks of American and Foreign Israel.

From the address of Jacob H. Schiff at the Annual Meeting of the Society, February 27, 1916.

THE Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America has been designated by two of the great nations at war as the agency through whom letters from the war zone may be sent. More than 100,000 such communications, each a crying appeal for aid, have been received and delivered all over America, regardless of race or creed of sender or addressee, all at the Society's expense. The result has been far-reaching. The anxiety of Americans regarding their friends and relatives has been allayed. A channel was opened through which much needed assistance was sent abroad. The work thus carried on truly expresses the greatest need of the time. It must be continued through the Society's Bureau of Foreign Relations, opened and maintained with that particular object in view.

Dear Friends:—

At dusk tomorrow night the Jewish year 5677 will be ushered in—in this country with feasting, in the embattled countries of Europe with shot and shell, anguish and tears. While we cry out our gratitude to the Lord in synagogues and temples, the widows and children of sacrificed brethren will cry out for bread. While we feast, they will fast. While we give thanks for a year of prosperity, they will pray for a day of it. Shall only an echo answer their prayer?

The war has not stopped immigration. They who knocked at our gates have not ceased knocking. As Noah sent forth the dove to find an island in the flood, they have been sent forth to seek a haven in a land of peace. They are striving to enter the land of plenty; they bear with them the prayer of the blood-stained Old World. It may not be possible for us to make an end to inhumanities now, but we can temper the wrong. We can wipe away the tears. We can alleviate the suffering by extending loving hands and protecting arms to those who come to us with bleeding hearts.

And what is necessary to do all this, to comfort and solace, to shelter and welcome? True, the thousands who came before the war are able to come no longer, but the hundreds are still able to come. They come from the embattled lands, many of them poverty-stricken, ill, war-worn. Theirs is the courage of the Jew of the Exile; of such stuff were our forefathers made. The relief in such cases is more than urgent, more than merely necessary. They have passed through a living death, and they are knocking at our gates, calling weakly, weakly. Shall we shut our ears to their pleas? Shall we deny our hearts the luxury of a sigh of compassion? Or shall we extend our arms and smile tenderly on the unfortunates?

Wherever a true heart beats there must dwell that charity that is the chief characteristic of the kindly disposed. Come, you American man or woman, and see what we do for the immigrant. Visit our Home and see for yourself what is done for him after the gates of the New Country have opened wide to admit him and his. Then remember but this—that through you alone can such work be done. To have rescued only one immigrant, to have gained him admittance, to have found him employment, to have cheered and sheltered and solaced him—can there be anything more wonderful than this kind of work? Think hard! Is there?

And so, in a few days, we will begin a New Year. The war may end or the war may drag on, but immigrants must be handled and cared for as ever. Frankly, we must have your support, your co-operation, your good will of means and good will of heart. Remember that even now there are immigrants crying to us the message of the Old World:

"We are your brothers and sisters! Help us and the Almighty will help you!"

How many immigrants will you help make happy this coming year?

Sincerely Yours,

Leon Sanders, President.

I HAVE a very deep and unaffected interest in the success of such organizations as the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society.

Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, in a letter to Judge Leon Sanders, President of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America.

THE majority of these institutions (immigrant aid societies) are, however, truly philanthropic, the most conspicuous organization in size and scope being the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, probably the most highly organized charitable institution in the world.

14th Annual Report, New York State Department of Labor.

THE Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society is one of the most efficient organizations in New York in receiving, caring for and protecting the immigrant who comes to our shores.

THE Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America is a national and international institution,

It has branches and maintains offices at all ports of entry—New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, San Francisco and Seattle, where the immigrant is met, guided and protected and provided with a temporary home.

It maintains departments of education, employment, aid to citizenship, legal aid, social service and foreign relations, all with the end in view that the immigrant may become a self-supporting American citizen.

'MISS SPRINGTIME' HAS RICH MELODIES

New Musical Play at the Amsterdam Happily Combines Old and Modern School.

ITS HUMOR IS UNFLAGGING

MISS SPRINGTIME—A musical comedy in three acts, music by Emmerich Kalman and Jerome Kern; book by Guy Bolton from the German original of Martes Brody; lyrics by P. G. Wodehouse and Herbert Reynolds. At the New Amsterdam.

It is so seldom a musical comedy appears that may be praised without reservation—one in which the appeals visual, aural, and mental are all marshaled together in one irresistible whole—that when one arrives the temptation is to throw all caution aside and burst into superlatives. "Miss Springtime," which Klaw & Erlanger produced last night in the New Amsterdam Theatre, is that kind of a musical comedy.

Here is a happy combination of old-school operetta and modern musical comedy that boasts the rich melodies of the Hungarian composer, Emmerich Kalman, and the infectious rhythms of our own Jerome Kern; a book by Guy Bolton with an unusual supply of real humor; lyrics by P. G. Wodehouse and Herbert Reynolds that are singable; settings by Josef Urban in his best manner, with glorious costumes; and a cast that has Sari Petrass, a prima donna new to these shores and destined to be a reigning favorite, George MacFarlane and his full-throated baritone voice, Charles Meakins and Jed Prouty to help with the singing, and Georgia O'Ramey and John E. Hazzard to furnish the comedy.

Usually if the book is good it lacks humor, or the music is commonplace, or the production is tawdry, but in "Miss Springtime" nothing is lacking. Perhaps the quality that will do most to bring the piece popularity is its unflagging good humor. For this Mr. Hazzard is largely responsible. He is rarely off the stage, and he is often droll and sometimes hilariously funny. There is a suspicion, too, that some of his lines are his own; certainly they seem his own when he has finished with them.

Another happy circumstance that conspired to make the production a triumph was that the locale of the story was Hungarian, and that Mr. Urban, a Viennese, and Miss Petrass, a native of Hungary, brought to their tasks an intimate knowledge of the requisite atmosphere. So, in the first setting, depicting a square in a Hungarian village, we have Urban at his best. The quaint little houses with flower pots in recessed windows, and the verdant hills seen through a row of poplars, exude an exotic atmosphere. The second setting, a shop interior, is the most conventional, while the third, showing the stage of the Budapest Opera House, gives the artist a chance to indulge in one of his familiar Oriental pictures. All are lovely and, with the array of costumes, many in picturesque native style, constitute a series of resplendent stage pictures.

The story is a simple one, but its intelligent handling provides an effective finale to the second act. A famous opera singer, revisiting his native village in the disguise of a gypsy, is prevailed upon to appear as his real self to make old home week a success. This he does to save from disappointment a village girl with musical ambitions. The question of his real identity forces him to return to Budapest with it in doubt, after the girl and he have fallen in love. This is the curtain at the end of the second act.

It was in this scene that Miss Petrass established herself firmly and proved that in addition to her other talents she is a clever actress. Miss Petrass is pretty and graceful, and her voice, while not large, has a lovely quality and is used with great discretion. She has the charm and the accent of Mizzi Hajos and Emmey Wehlen, both of whom she suggests in her piquant daintiness.

While Mr. Kalman's music is not as fresh and virile as was his "Sari" score, it is never dull, and some of it, particularly that of the second act finale, is delightful. There is nothing on the program to indicate which is his and which is Mr. Kern's, that first aid to all adapted operettas, so one could only try to distinguish between the honeyed melodies of the one and the deftly orchestrated rhythms of the other. But whether Kalman or Kern, every number belonged.

THE STAATS WARNS BOHM.

"Gompers, Frayne, and Fitz" May Make Him a Scapegoat, It Says.

Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, received the following advice yesterday in the editorial columns of the evening edition of the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung:

"Because we have always regarded Bohm as an upright labor leader, an independent American of German blood, we should like to give him some friendly advice. In case things go wrong they will make him the scapegoat later. That's the reason why Gompers, the fox, and Frayne and Fitz remain in the background. That's the reason why THE NEW YORK TIMES and The World like to quote him. Indeed, later the whole strike affair might be turned into a 'German plot.' Gompers, the wily one, Fitz and Frayne would say then: 'I didn't say anything; it was Ernest, and Ernest is a hyphen, don't you know?'"

Errol Dunbar, Actor, Dead.

Erroll Dunbar, an actor of a generation ago, died on Saturday in the Hahnemann Hospital. He made his début in Lester Wallack's company. Mr. Dunbar played in support of Mrs. Fiske, Mme. Modjeska, Fanny Davenport, Blanche Walsh, Lawrence Barrett, John McCullough, Louis James, and Robert Mantell.

THE BULL RING IS FESTIVE.

New Midnight Tabloid Revue Opens Atop the 44th St. Theatre.

The entrepreneurs seem determined that Manhattan's night life shall not be any less exciting than it was in the days of the one-step. On the roof of the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, where once the Castles held court in the seasons when ability to tread the one-step was the surest way to gain social preferment, a new entertainment was presented last night after the regular stages were dark, and later on similar midnight shows will be presented on the New Amsterdam and Century roofs.

The Bull Ring is the inept and unappetizing name bestowed upon the Forty-fourth Street roof, although once within its portals the name takes on a new meaning. Here in miniature is a section of a Spanish arena, a corner of the Plaza del Toro at Granada set down in the heart of blazing Broadway. Hundreds of pennons and banners, red, yellow, orange, green, and blue, bedeck the walls and balcony parapet and blaze resplendent in the glare from many spotlights and lamps suspended from the canopied ceiling. The bull ring, of course, is the dancing floor, and encircling this are open boxes, in which the spectators may simultaneously sip and watch the passing show. At one end is a stage elevated from the floor by only a step or two, and above the arena gates, through which the audience baiters emerge, sits in a niche a blaring, red-coated band. To heighten the Spanish atmosphere a heroic figure of a picador stands, with upraised lance, taunting a plaster bull on the opposite side of the proscenium opening. It is all very festive and conducive to gayety.

The program, which begins at midnight, is a tabloid revue patterned after the style of entertainment made familiar by Mr. Ziegfeld in his "Midnight Frolic." If Mr. Ziegfeld made the style familiar, those responsible for this show have made it even more familiar. The chorus not only performs its evolutions on the dancing floor, but promenades the aisles between the tables. The best numbers are a foreign novelty, in which two persons made up as chickens, their bodies iridescent with light, dance before a black background; the dancing of the Marvelous Millers; two tumblers, the Gaudschmidts, assisted by two fine poodles, and a gentleman dressmaker who pins frocks on living models while they and you wait. The show is weakest in singing principals, with the exception of Ernest Hare, and the generally unattractive costuming, which does not begin to approach the brilliant decorations, but these are faults easily remedied.

BELGIAN BARITONE ARRIVES

Auguste Bouilliez Glad to be Safe After War Trials in Europe.

Auguste Bouilliez, the Belgian baritone, arrived here yesetrday to join the Boston-National Grand Opera Company, which opens its New York season on Nov. 6, at the Lexington Opera House.

Mr. Bouilliez was overjoyed to find himself in the peace and security of a neutral country after dodging bombs and shells for two years in England, France and Belgium. When war broke out he was living in Mons, where he was a manufacturer of automobiles, as well as the principal baritone of the Theatre de la Monnaie, Brussels. While interpreting such roles as Othello, Boris, Escamillo and Rigoletto, he kept his eye on the automobile factory, dividing his time between Mons and the Belgian capital.

When the German Army moved westward Mr. Bouilliez was in Mons. The town was under fire before he escaped in an automobile, which carried him to Ostend. Ostend was then a music centre, Ysaye, the violinist, and Godowsky, the pianist, establishing themselves there, in the belief that Ostend was safely held from attack. But suddenly an advance guard of German cavalrymen gave the warning, and the baritone prepared for his second flight. He hurried to the garage where his automobile was kept, but the building was guarded by a German sentry, and he proceeded afoot from Ostend to Dunkirk along the sea coast. This forced march took two days, and Mr. Bouilliez sailed from the French seaport to England on a fishing boat.

In London Sir Thomas Beecham, the English impresario, offered him an engagement. For two years he has been singing in the Beecham company.

CAMPANINI IS BACK.

Mme. Rita Fornia and Pierre Monteaux Also on Rochambeau.

The French liner Rochambeau arrived yesterday from Bordeaux with a number of operatic artists, including musicians, singers, and dancers. Cleofonte Campanini, general manager of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, was on the liner, with Mme. Rita Fornia, the prima donna from the Metropolitan Opera House who is to sing with his company for three weeks. Previous to opening in Chicago on Nov. 13 Mr. Campanini will make a concert tour of ten Eastern cities with a company in which Geraldine Farrar, Emmy Destinn, and Lucien Muratore will be the stars. The company at Chicago will include Miss Farrar, Mary Garden, Mme. Fornia, Mme. Homer, Emmy Destinn, and Mme. Ousnietzoff, the new Russian soprano.

Pierre Monteaux, a French conductor, who is to direct the music for the Russian Ballet, was a passenger on the Rochambeau. He said the reason that Wagner's music was not played now in France was because of the composer's well-known dislike toward the French people. Mr. Monteaux served with the army two years since the war commenced, and will return to his regiment, the Thirty-fifth Territorial, after the engagement with the Russian Ballet is over.

Miss Margaret Ladd of Texas, an American dancer who has been engaged in Paris for the last five years, returned to give a series of classic dances in New York and elsewhere.

ROMAN BALLET AT PALACE.

Lithe Maidens Dance in Three Atmospheric Settings.

The most worthy feature on this week's bill at the Palace is a Roman ballet given by young women trained by Marion Morgan. The ballet was in three episodes, in which a score of lithe maidens in classical draperies moved with grace and rhythm through varied evolutions. The three atmospheric settings were by Livingston Platt. If one had not recalled that these same young women, clad only in their draperies, had danced in the snows of Central Park last Winter, one would have shuddered for their health.

In striking contrast to this artistic effort was one of those banalities of the varieties called "The Evolution of Life." It is a series of scenes wherein the growth of a life is traced from babyhood to maturity to the accompaniment of some badly rhymed nonsense read by two symbolical characters, Poetry and Reality. Hermine Shone, an incorrigibly coy actress, played the principal rôle.

An amusing auto specialty built around the object most joked about, Jack Wilson, and the Farber Girls were included on the program.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Irving Fisher, a ballad singer who sang at the Club de Vingt for two years, has been engaged for the juvenile lead in "The Century Girl," the revue with which Charles Dillingham and Florenz Ziegfeld will begin their tenancy of the Century.

Sir Herbert Tree will return to New York on the Philadelphia, which sailed Saturday from England. His season will begin Oct. 16 in Boston, and he will present "Henry VIII." on a tour of the principal cities. Sir Herbert's business manager, Percy Burton, has just returned from a trip to Japan. In addition to his work with Sir Herbert Mr. Burton will produce here "Gamblers All," a drama acted two years ago in London.

William Harris, Jr., has placed Bayard Veiller's new play in rehearsal. It is as yet without a name.

Anna Q. Nilsson and Guy Coombs, known to followers of the screen, will be featured in a vaudeville playlet by Tom J. Geraghty, entitled "A Naked Lie."

A SOCIAL SATIRE BY THE HATTONS

"Upstairs and Down," which had its first New York presentation at the Cort Theatre last evening, is a new comedy by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, who wrote "Years of Discretion" and helped to write "The Great Lover." This time they playfully expose the idle and amorous house party, studying for their material certain aspects of high life and loose as it is lived on Long Island. Their new play is a social satire in three acts. Two of them are brightly written and admirably played. The other is not.

The title is derived from the fact that this particular week-end party surveys both the idling guests in the sumptuous lounge porch and the busy servants below stairs. It is as though the Hattons had said to themselves: "Wouldn't it be a splendid scheme to have a play in which kitchen and drawing room were contrasted, and the idea developed between the two? Go to, we will write it." But, having gone this far, their invention was exhausted, they lost interest in that part of the scheme, and ended by dashing off a frequently entertaining satire on the idle rich.

To be sure they had assigned Act 2 to the realm of the butler, but they simply brought the great folk downstairs and had them play out their little adventure across the kitchen table. The original idea remains undeveloped. The genuine comedy of "Upstairs and down" remains to be written. Having taken more than one leaf from the promptbook of the brilliant Langdon Mitchell, they might as well have taken another and called the new piece at the Cort "The Long Island Idea."

The Long Island idea, you take it, is to make love while the sun shines. Also by moonlight. It is to make love irresponsibly by way of a vacation from wife or husband. All this is set forth in a succession of amusing but somewhat repetitious episodes in dialogue that sparkle with unusual frequency.

It is kept entertaining by a cast that is nearly all of it admirable. You could ask nothing better than the work of the clever Christine Norman in a Lucile Watson rôle, that of a frivolous hostess whose house party grows so sour on her hands that she begins to wish she were the wife of a butcher with twelve children.

Capital, too, are Leo Carrillo as a romantic valet; Paul Harvey as a lumbering polo player, who makes the tactical error of bringing a heart to a house party; Roberta Arnold as a languidly wicked widow; Courtney Foote in a trying part; Fred Tilden, Alfred Hesse, and Ida St. Leon. Indeed, the only weak spots in the cast are Juliet Day as a baby vampire and Mary Servoss as her older sister.

Their weakness is discovered only because they are entrusted with crucially important work. To their hands is intrusted the slender climax of the little play when the two sisters, each coveting the same man, have a battle of wits to get him. The younger sister, a baby vampire, blandly invents a story to compromise herself in order that the other will step aside. Here is a scene none too expertly written, that calls for something from Miss Day a little better than her pale carbon copy of Madge Kennedy. But the scene simply sinks under the weight of Miss Servoss. Her resemblance in appearance and method to Kathleen Macdonnel becomes quite striking when she forfeits with fervent emotionalism a moment that should either be played as hard and brilliant comedy or not played at all.

This comes at the end of an imperfect act, the weak interlude in "Upstairs and Down." For the rest, the Hattons have gone scandalmongering in a disorderly house party and have found there rather spicier material and looser manners than Henry Arthur Jones used to bring back from his excursions among England's idle rich. They have put it all into a comedy that is entertaining two-thirds of the way through and all of it beautifully staged by Oliver Morosco, with Robert McQuinn as the decorator doing himself proud.

Messenger Boys Form a Union.

The messenger boys employed by the Western Union Telegraph Company are forming a union. About 100 of them met on Sunday, elected officers and committees and applied for a charter from the American Federation of Labor. They ask at least 15 cents an hour for night work and 3 cents instead of 2 for day messages. They also ask for more favorable working conditions. M. F. Levy, a former messenger, is the union organizer. The boys say they are going to strike unless their demands are met.

MILK STRIKE GROWS AND 6,000 MAY QUIT

MANY ARE INCONVENIENCED

Police Guard Delivery Depots, but No Strikebreakers Will Be Employed.

The forty-five drivers of the Borden Condensed Milk Company who operate wagons from the Steinway Avenue depot in Long Island City voted to strike immediately at a meeting held last evening in Astoria Schuetzen Park, Broadway and Steinway Avenue, Astoria. The men said their action was not a move in sympathy with the striking car men but was an attempt to get better wages.

The strikers have delivered about 12,000 quarts of milk daily to consumers in the Manhattan Avenue section of Brooklyn, Long Island City, Astoria, Woodside, Winfield, Elmhurst, East Elmhurst, and Corona.

Milk deliveries all over the city may be stopped tomorrow if other big companies follow the example of the Borden company in declining demands for advances. Michael Cashlin of the American Federation of Labor said last night that 6,000 union drivers were ready to join the 200-odd who have already quit work.

The Astoria men want $19 a week for the first six montths of employment, $20 for the second six months, and then $21 a week with 2½ per cent. of their collections. They get now an average of about $18 a week and 1½ per cent. of the collections. There are depots in Flushing, Jamaica, and Far Rockaway as well as Astoria, and the men hope drivers in these depots will join them.

Hundreds of customers of the Borden company in the Bronx had to call for their milk yesterday at Park Avenue and 180th Street. According to the police, not one of the 160 wagons that usually go out from the station there and from 342 East 133d Street left the depots. Some of the orphanages in the Bronx got their milk in carriages, and the hospitals sent ambulances for their supply.

Manhattan branches of the milk company sent out a few wagons. Those at 117th Street and Second Avenue and at 173 Manhattan Street sent out some, but none left 229 East Thirty-fourth Street. Police were on hand to see that there was no disorder. Vice President H. M. Hallock of the Borden Company has asked to have a policeman on every wagon.

Mr. Hallock said yesterday that the company posted a notice in all its depots a week ago that it was willing to order a closed shop if 51 per cent. of the men requested it. No evidence of such a demand was disclosed. He said the company had no intention of engaging strikebreakers, and that he expected there would be enough regular men to make deliveries today.

John J. Dillon, Commissioner of Foods and Markets, said yesterday that the striking Borden drivers, by calling on him, could arrange to get supplies of milk which they could retail profitably at 8 cents a quart. Commissioner Dillon, who is agent for the Dairymen's League in this city, has offered to sell the product from 17,000 farmers who are members of the league to any one who asked for it. The dairymen asked an advance of a cent a quart, which the larger dealers have refused to pay. The present contracts run until Oct. 1.

MAID ACCUSES MRS. TUTTLE

Brooklyn Widow Charged with Threat to Kill and Having Revolver.

Charged by a negro maid servant with having threatened to kill her, Mrs. Bessie A. Tuttle of 289 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn, the well-to-do widow of Frederick W. Tuttle, was arraigned before Magistrate Reynolds yesterday in the Gates Avenue Police Court, and held in $1,000 bail for examination today. She was also held in $300 bail for examination on the complaint of Policeman Walsh of the Classon Avenue Station on a charge of having a revolver in a bureau at her home. Bail was furnished by Miss Laura B. Wallace of 451 Clinton Avenue.

Mrs. Tuttle, who before her marriage was Miss Bessie A. Brown, has a Summer home at Sound Beach, Conn. Her husband, a member of Plymouth Church, and for many years Vice President of the Tuttle-Bailey Manufacturing Company, committed suicide by taking gas at Atlantic City on May 3, 1915, on account of illness.

In court the negro woman said she had heard sounds early Sunday morning indicating that Mrs. Tuttle was quarreling with another woman who lives with her. The maid asserted that she heard her name called and went upstairs. As she entered Mrs. Tuttle's room, Mrs. Tuttle greeted her with profane language and threatened to kill her. According to the maid, Mrs. Tuttle stepped toward her with the revolver in her hand. Mrs. Tuttle, who was represented in court by a lawyer, refused to make any statement beyond a formal plea of not guilty.

MISS ALICE WILLIS A BRIDE.

Weds Harry W. Finnell in the Church of the Ascension.

Miss Alice E. Willis of 509 West 110th Street and Baldwin, L. I., and Harry W. Finnell of Chicago were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Ascension, 107th Street near Broadway, the Rev. Edwin M. Sweeney officiating.

The bride is a daughter of the late Thomas Willis and is a sister of Mrs. William A. Murphy and Joseph P. Willis of this city. Mr. Finnell is a member of the Railroad and Engineers' Club of New York and the University Club of Chicago.

The couple will spend their honeymoon in California.

Miss Marjorie Whitney Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. A. Whitney of Wyebrook Farm, Loudonville and Albany, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Whitney, to Thomas Boyd, son of Mrs. Edgar Wheeler of Albany. No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

SURE BREMEN WAS SEIZED.

R. Tait McKenzie Says U-Boat Carried Cargo of Diamonds.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—The German merchant submarine Bremen has been captured by the English and is now tied up in Falmouth Harbor, according to the story brought here today by Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, sculptor and director of the Department of Physical Education in the University of Pennsylvania, who has returned to this city after sixteen months in an army training camp at Aldershot, just outside of London.

Dr. McKenzie said that he heard the story of the Bremen's capture on Sept. 15. He added:

"The story reached me from a very reliable source. The Bremen is said to have had a cargo valued at $25,000,000, consisting of dyestuffs and diamonds. Of course, official circles would not discuss the capture and the War Office remained silent. I heard of the capture through a prominent diamond expert in London, who was called in by the British Government to estimate the value of the diamonds in the Bremen's cargo. He told me that he knew some of the diamonds were famous precious stones that belonged in Germany."

HELD FOR WIFE'S DEATH.

Prosecutor of St. Joseph, Mo., Accused of Murder.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 25.—Oscar D. McDaniel, Prosecuting Attorney of Buchanan County, was arraigned late today before Justice Wilson, on a charge of having murdered his wife on the night of July 15. His application for bond was refused and the preliminary hearing of the case was set for Wednesday. McDaniel, during the arraignment, asked for an early hearing. He is a candidate for re-election in November.

Bart M. Lockwood, special prosecuting attorney, who swore out the warrant causing McDaniel's arrest last night, asserted he would resist every effort of the accused man to regain his liberty through bail. McDaniels was turned over by the police late today to the County Sheriff, and immediately was taken to the county jail, in which there were many prisoners he had prosecuted. He was isolated from them, however, by being placed in the hospital ward.

Judge Thomas F. Ryan has ordered that the Grand Jury be called for Wednesday to investigate the case.

LABOR AS A "COMMODITY."

President WILSON joins those who contend that labor is not a commodity, and that there is some malicious influence seeking to make it so. Nobody is concerned to argue that labor is a commodity. In fact, it is not known that anybody does so argue. It is not worth while, because labor will remain what it is, whatever it is called. The effect of the law declaring that labor is not a commodity is just the same as would be the effect of a law declaring that labor is a commodity; neither law would have any effect.

The President proceeds to say that labor "is a form of co-operation." That is what labor ought to be, but it would be difficult to detect the co-operation between labor and capital in the case which the President was discussing—the trainmen's demand for ten hours' pay for eight hours' work. Co-operation in any social betterment was not conspicuous when the brotherhoods threatened to stop all railway operation, or when the sixty unions in New York voted a general strike. The President truly says that co-operation cannot be coerced. It should be induced, and when found to exist it should be protected. The protection of willing workers sufficed to give society co-operation in the traction strike, without raising any question about whether labor is a commodity or co-operation.

The President is not alone in doubting the merits of arbitration in all cases. Labor itself often rejects arbitration, particularly arbitration compelled by law. A worker for his living is not a slave, either of a corporation or of society. Wage payers do not compel labor. If a man prefers to starve, his quarrel is with Providence, not with society. Society will not allow a man to starve his family, but that is all the social compulsion there is. To the President it seems that the declaration that labor is not a commodity "is a return to the primer of human liberty." That is a subject on which, in the President's words, > we are governed by our emotions very much more than we are governed by our reason, * * * a man follows his heart more often than he follows his head.

It is a fact that emotion and nothing else lies behind the notion that labor is not a commodity. Reason dictates that if labor were a commodity, and belonged to a man, he would be protected in its possession, and in the disposition of it to supply his needs. That would be a benefit, not a wrong.

Business also is not a commodity, and takes no interest in having that fact enacted. But business is much interested in the fact that it is a property right, and that it is much to the advantage of business that it should be such. The law protects labor as the property of the laborer, not of the employer. There is no worker so humble that his property right in his labor will not be defended by the law against the unfair attack of any competitive laborer, or of any organization assuming to say that any workers under its ban shall not sell their labor in commerce. The law in that respect is more humane than those who deny that labor is property.

In some of its aspects the organized labor movement may "express the demand for humanized justice," but in other aspects it exercises a ferocity toward those holding other views which creates a doubt that it has a monopoly of humanity. The organized labor movement does not allow to all labor the liberty which the law gives to every man. It sometimes exercises a despotism rivaling that of any slave driver, even while using the most beautiful language, the product, as the President says, of emotion rather than reason. It would be a sad day for wage earners if they should ever come to depend for their welfare on the unrestricted activities of some of their leaders instead of on the law. The law has its defects also, but, so far as it is not defiled by ill-considered statutes, it is the "perfection of human reason." For its defects there are explanations which cannot be removed by emotional words or acts.

COUNTING THE DUPES.

The first census of the sympathetic strikers who were to give up their jobs to gratify Mr. BOHM and sympathize with Mr. FITZGERALD counted the number of the walkers-out as 750,000. The next census reported 350,000. The latest, scorning the suspiciously large roundness of the earlier, enumerated 260,000.

So the progressive diminution goes on. By Wednesday night the genial advocate of hunger as an aid to popular digestion, and his Western friend, who is striving for amalgamation by seeking to produce chaos, will be able to compare with the actual figures their fanciful computations of the number of union working men and women who believe in biting off their noses to spite their faces. When the dupes of this preposterous agitation are counted, the bluff of Mr. BOHM and Mr. FITZGERALD will have been called.

MEXICAN MYSTERIES.

It was reported the other day that Secretary BAKER had imparted to Secretary LANSING his reasons for believing that PANCHO VILLA is dead. This was merely a rumor. There is no authentic information that the Secretary of War has any knowledge about VILLA that is not in possession of the American people. But the report indicates the density of the fog which surrounds not only VILLA but other Mexican men and affairs in the present crisis. Nobody in this country knows for a fact whether VILLA is dead or alive. The reports of his death were never authenticated, but, in the circumstances, they seemed likely. They have never been authoritatively contradicted. Yet we have detailed reports of his present operations in Chihuahua, the effect of which is impaired by perfectly coherent contradictions.

It seems, however, that not less mysterious than VILLA is the mind of his former associate, CARRANZA. He sends orders to his commissioners at New London to confine their deliberations solely to the removal of the United States troops from Mexican soil. He issues a manifesto charging the Republican newspapers with the invention of the statements that the commissioners have been discussing other important matters relating to the attitude of the United States, present and future, toward Mexico. Is it conceivable that he would have gone to the trouble and expense of sending commissioners to this country merely to repeat his old demand for removal of the troops without conditions?

That demand was ignored before the commission idea was broached. It must still be ignored while Northern Mexico is imperiled by marauding bands. VILLA'S body may lie in an unmarked grave. He may not have led the attack on Columbus. He may not have been the commander of the outlaws who invaded the City of Chihuahua. But as active, as dangerous a force exists, and, if our column of troops should be withdrawn, their operations would be more disastrous and border troubles would soon recur. CARRANZA must have some intelligible idea in the back of his mind in his dealings with our Government, but, so far as the surface indications go, he is as much of a mystery as the supposedly reanimate and destructive VILLA.

SKILLFULLY STROKING INDIANA.

Indiana is now in the Republican column, its doubts are resolved, the casting of its vote is a mere formality, and it was all done so simply! Mr. HUGHES, flashing momentarily through the State, did it all. The Sun, in that peculiarly ecstatic manner which so becomes it, explains the modus operandi. It was his "'regular' smile," his "'regular' handshake," his "strong arguments," and his "fine fighting front." The Sun's voice, under training, is becoming coloratura. "Indianians are not now in doubt about 'he "kept us out of war' and 'what "would HUGHES have done;' their "minds are not clouded on the 'eight-"hour' scamp legislation, they see "Mexico with clear eyes." A major operation performed on clouded Indiana minds and dull Indiana eyes, performed in a jiffy and over a hurdle; the like has never been seen: what an orator is this, who speaks with the tongues of men and angels. "His cam-"paign has been cumulative, gaining "weight and speed as it advanced"; "one by one the issues have been "made definite, stroke by skillful "stroke the picture of Democratic fu-"tility has grown on the canvas." "And now the appeal to reason echoes "in the cheers of multitudes of voters "foretasting the glories of 'America "First and America Efficient.'" Paraphrasing Mr. Dooley slightly, 'tis an editorial article ye can waltz to.

Indianians, then, are "not now in "doubt about 'what would HUGHES "have done.'" The fine fighting front has told them that he would have been short and stern with Germany over the Lusitania, the regular smile has told them that he would have been gentle with Germany. As they noted his weight and speed they discovered that he would have broken with England over the mail question, as they foretasted the glories of America first and efficient they saw that he would have been easy with England. As the issues grew definite they understood that he would have recognized HUERTA, as he dealt stroke by skillful stroke they knew he would not; in the cheers of multitudes of voters they heard him intervening in Mexico and his drums advancing to the Castle of Chapultepec; in the appeal to reason, as it echoed in the cheers, they heard him resolutely refusing to make war on a sister republic. The issues grew definite, stroke by skillful stroke, in the minds of German-Americans, pro-Allies, pacifists, militarists, interventionists, anti-interventionists; and as they noted the fine fighting front, the regular handshake, as the speeches grew weightier and weightier and speedier and speedier, every last one of them saw that he was heart and soul with them all, no matter on what side of any question they stood. And the appeal to reason echoed in the cheers of multitudes, and Indiana became solid, solidly pussyfooted, all things to all men. What a candidate!

THE GERMAN STAMP IN JERSEY.

Senator JAMES E. MARTINE, sixty times a losing candidate for office before his nomination by an unofficial primary in 1910 as the Democratic candidate for Senator from New Jersey, is a candidate for renomination in the Democratic primaries today. The opposing candidate is the Hon. JOHN W. WESCOTT, sometime Attorney General of the State. For reasons not clear to mere Americans the Staats-Zeitung orders the Jersey German-American Democrats to vote for Mr. MARTINE. "It is of the highest importance" that they should. The Staats-Zeitung "ventures to advise its "readers to vote for good loyal Amer-"icans, instead of choosing candidates "who will dance to the British pipe." Now, Mr. MARTINE, an amiable old Greenbacker and Bryanite, who never should have been sent to the Senate, has been a "tail-twister" at times. The repeal of the Panama tolls and the arbitration treaty with Great Britain were opposed by him reverberantly, but it is to his honor that he voted as a straight American and didn't dance to the German pipe when the Gore resolution was before the Senate. He voted against that measure of surrender and ignominy. The Staats-Zeitung must be hard up for German candidates. Presumably the crime of Mr. WESCOTT consists in being a friend of Mr. WILSON.

Mr. JOSEPH S. FRELINGHUYSEN, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator, is also burdened with the Staats-Zeitung's approbation. He is of Dutch descent. Holland ought to be German. Therefore Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN is the German-American candidate.

It will be interesting to see what value the German stamp gives to the hopes of Mr. MARTINE and Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. In the Fifth Congress District, too, JOHN H. CAPSTICK, Republican, the present Representative, bears it. The veteran CHARLES N. FOWLER has made his campaign against him on that issue.

THAT ARMOR PLATE PLANT.

The Army and Navy Register of Washington is of the opinion that the Government armor plate plant, for which the sum of $11,000,000 was appropriated in the Naval bill, will never be built. It goes further and infers that it was never the intention of the Navy Department to build it. The Register says that the authorization to build such a plant "has pos-"sibly served its political mission of "attack upon the armor plate con-"tractors, satisfying certain partisan "demands for the 'punishment' of "those firms; otherwise, it may be "useful as a cudgel to force the armor "plate makers to lower terms for "their material under contract." If the establishment of a Government plant had been seriously considered, it is said that there would have been a more careful consideration of the cost and provision made for the purchase of a site. The Register ridicules the idea of holding public hearings for the selection of the site for such an undertaking. This was a waste of time, for purely political purposes. It would require three years to build and put in operation an armor plate plant, and the cost would be much more than the sum appropriated. The Register is also seemingly of the opinion that the Government could not produce armor plate at "a cost not appreciably "greater than the contract price "now paid."

Of course, the facts that the project is foolish and that the Government armor plate plant would probably turn out to be a costly white elephant do not of themselves indicate that Congress was not sincere in adopting the plan. It was condemned by all well-informed persons from the beginning. But the appearance of this extremely frank statement of the situation in a publication supposedly so close to the Navy Department and its various bureaus is worthy of note. Even if the scheme is carried further, and a site is selected, it is unlikely that the Government can compete successfully with private manufacturers in the making of armor plate.

A KUKLUX STATUE.

Southern newspapers are debating with considerable warmth the announced intention of THOMAS DIXON to honor the memory of his uncle, Colonel MCAFEE, by erecting an equestrian statue on the Court House lawn in Shelby, N. C. Colonel MCAFEE was the original of Mr. DIXON'S hero, "the Little Colonel," in his film play, "The Birth of a Nation." He purposes to portray the man he would honor in the uniform of the Kuklux Klan, and it is over this part of the plan that the discussion has been aroused. The Charlotte Observer declares that "it "would be hard to conceive of a statue "more grotesquely treated," and would have the Colonel clad in Confederate uniform. The history in which the Kuklux Klan played a part "belongs "to the past," should be "stored in the "archives as a sealed book." None but Southerners understand, or ever will understand, that history, and "the "erection of a statue of the class pro-"posed would impose upon the people "of this and succeeding generations "the duty of perpetual explanation "and defense, a duty that might be-"come irksome with the passing of the "years, and that might in the end be "repudiated."

The Montgomery Advertiser calls The Observer's position "ridiculous." Colonel MCAFEE'S fame is that of "leader and organizer of the Kuklux," and virtually every Southern town has a statue to some Confederate officer; there would be nothing distinguishing about another such statue.

> Kukluxism is an interesting phase of Southern civilization, an institution that rose up to do a definite thing, and disappeared when its purposes had been accomplished. It will live always in the lore of this people. * * * The Clansman's individuality should not be lost, but should be indelibly impressed upon the minds of this and coming generations.

Where Southerners take such opposite views, it may not be intrusive for Northerners to express opinions. The Advertiser's position seems to be the right one. If MCAFEE was famous as organizer of the Klan, that is the way he should be remembered, unless, indeed, his people are ashamed of the work in which he won fame and wish to remember only the work in which he was not distinguished above others. Largely because of Mr. DIXON'S own labors, this generation is being taught to idealize the Klan. After the MCAFEES let go of it, it fell into the hands of scoundrels and committed many bloody and shameful outrages. In the beginning, however, it was an uprising like that of the San Francisco Vigilance Committee, for which no Californian will ever dream of apologizing. It was the uprising of Confederate soldiers against an intolerable tyranny. It was violent and lawless, but so was the San Francisco revolt; both were cases where civilization was prostrate under the feet of ignorance and vice. If the Kuklux afterward became the instrument of tyranny and crime, while the Vigilance Committee did not, it was because such an instrument always invites such a danger, and California was luckier than the South. It was with the better part of the Klan's history, its fight for the preservation of civilization in the South, that this soldier was connected; and if he is to be honored by a statue, it should be one that will recall his real work. It was, as The Advertiser says, a phase of Southern civilization which has passed. The Observer is perhaps too touchy. It is more the North than the South that has reason to blush at the name of the Kuklux Klan; that name recalls a time when men took the law into their own hands, but it recalls still more the unclean tyranny that forced them to do so; and of that tyranny the North has long repented.

TONIC CLEARNESS.

> Courage always pays. Why not take heart and inject a little more of this vital fluid into your anaemic and desperate campaign?

Mr. HERRICK hopes that, > emboldened by the tonic clearing of the political atmosphere which your frankness would have created, you would proceed to outline with some concreteness a real program that you wish to see carried out in our foreign relations, where your position will give you the freest power to realize your ideals.

Mr. HERRICK is unreasonable. The Republican campaign is divided into two parts. Mr. HUGHES works the hyphen end. Mr. ROOSEVELT works the anti-hyphen end. Not MARTIN VAN BUREN or WILLIAM BOYD ALLISON in his most noncommittal, ambiguous, and eggshell-sparing vein was as beautifully general, indefinite, and felt-slippered as the 100 per cent. candidate. Courage, frankness, concreteness—these are not for the political Artful Dodger. He collects the hyphen vote, Mr. ROOSEVELT the anti-hyphen vote. Thus the Republican Party is to be united.

"Peace and prosperity with firmness and sagacity"; we "leave that "thought" of Mr. HUGHES and all its tonic clearness with the querulous Mr. HERRICK, a worthy person, but no politician.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Success May Have Its Penalties.

So perfectly sound and straight is the logic by which Major JOHN BIGELOW, in the two highly interesting and informative articles contributed by him to THE TIMES, proceeded from the premises to the conclusions of militarism at its most rigorous, that the temptation to admit the soundness of his contentions as to the legitimacy in war of anything that advances the ends of war is very strong. Even after he convinces the mind, however, there remains with any reader who did not agree with him at the start a feeling that somehow or other he has gone wrong—that though the chain of his argument may be perfect, it is not firmly anchored and will not stand the weight he puts on it.

His error, presumably, lies in his assumptions, and the nature of the error seems to be revealed when he seeks an illustration from another domain and overconfidently expects his reader to admit that, though it may be noble, it is not "business" for the man of affairs to run his plant for a while at a loss rather than to throw his men out of employment or to retain an old and faithful servitor after his work has ceased to be profitable.

As a matter of fact, employers are more and more coming to see that it really is "business" to show something of kindliness and generosity in dealing with employes—that it really is not "business" to ignore what the Major calls "considerations of humanity," or to attempt getting immediate profit out of every dollar invested. Harshness and heartlessness sometimes seem to prosper in business, just as does dishonesty, but the successes so achieved are not enviable, and they are coming to be counted by many—perhaps by the majority—as failures worse than bankruptcy.

Such successes in peace correspond to those won by Germany in war. She has gained many battles and acquired much territory, but at what a frightful cost to her standing in the family of nations! The theory that in war whatever tends to weaken the enemy is legitimate will not stand the ultimate tests any better than will the theory that in business, the object of which is to make money, anything that brings profit is permissible. Of both war and business a wider and deeper view than that must be taken or success will be but a form, and the worst form, of failure.

Far Better Than a Gold Mine.

At another time than this, not only would the discovery in Cuba of a great deposit of potash be recognized as an event of utmost importance, but it would create not a little excitement as something sure to bring about notable changes in several great businesses.

Potash is a substance of which plants need only a little, but that little they must have to make more than a miserable growth, and, while practically all lands contain it in considerable quantities, the "available" amount is usually small and quickly exhausted by the ordinary processes of agriculture. Germany has seemingly inexhaustible deposits of a low-grade potash, and upon them the farmers all over the world using so-called artificial fertilizers have learned to depend for this essential element of crop prosperity. The war first put up the price of potash to a dizzy altitude by diverting huge quantities to its own needs, and then the supply for the farmers of other nations was almost completely cut off by the closing of the German ports.

Since then the peaceful fractions of the world have been searched as never before for this "chemical," but for the most part in vain. If the stories from Cuba turn out to be well founded, that island has a new product that may prove even more valuable to her than sugar or tobacco.

Yet Every Tree Is a Compass.

How nearly complete what may be called urbanization can become, even in these days when almost everybody gets out of the cities for a while every year, was strikingly illustrated by the painful and dangerous experience of the two DENNISONS in the White Mountains. They went for an afternoon stroll from their hotel in a region which, though still fairly well deserving to be described as wild, is as thoroughly explored as any in the country. Yet hardly were they out of sight of a popular and much-frequented resort than they were irretrievably "lost," so far as their own efforts were concerned, and in all probability both would have died of exposure and hunger had they not been sought and at last found in their helpless misery by rescuers whose superior intelligence they would probably be far from admitting.

Why they could not find their way, if not to their starting point, at least to a place were guidance could be obtained, is almost incomprehensible to anybody who knows even a few of the many ways by which direction can be ascertained in a forest. With powers of observation even a little developed, and with even a little knowledge of what to look for and see, a general course toward any point of the compass can be steered, and it is aimless wandering in circles and spirals that leads to such exhaustion as overcame these unfortunates.

Of course it was not intelligence that was lacking in this case, but the ability to derive information from the abundant data offered on every tree, in the course of the brooks, and in the inclinations of the ground. The strange psychology of panic presumably had much to do with the severity of the adventure. The feeling of being lost, a pressing sense of the possibilities that lie in aimless straying, deeply affects the mind and produces a sort of insanity that for the time being leaves the mind useless except for fear. It is then that men begin to run in desperate eagerness to get somewhere or anywhere. People with the rudiments of woodcraft occasionally forget them all in such circumstances.

It is easy to say that an eminent Massachusetts lawyer should have been superior to panic, but nobody is when in conditions wholly unfamiliar.

Words of Lincoln and Wilson.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One cannot read President Wilson's address at the Lincoln Farm Association memorial without a moving sense of the close spiritual relationship between the President that is and the President that was, the greatest political exponent of his time. As a member of the association I venture to suggest that President Wilson's memorial address, together with some of the masterpieces of Lincoln's eloquence, should, properly inscribed, adorn the walls and vivify the environing structure which enshrines the cabin birthplace of Lincoln. No Sale for Waste.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter headed "No Market for Waste" in your paper of recent date is interesting, for the same conditions exist here. Our Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce investigated the matter, and found that the papers, &c., would have to be sent to San Francisco, and with a loss to those who sent them. What I have saved are in the cellar, and must be eventually burned.

HUNTING.

A Brown Owl called across the lake!
He made its elfin echoes wake—
Hu-hu! Hu-hu! Hu-hu!

The flittering birch leaves laced the moon—
Far, far away there laughed a loon.

Down by the rock my little boat
Shone in its curven emerald coat.

The Brown Owl called again—Hu-hu!
Its wildness pierced me through and through—
I would have gone a-hunting too!

* * *

But shrilly, in my shattered dream,
I heard a back-clawed rabbit scream!

* * *

Brown Owl, I hunt no more with you!

DOUBTS FRENCH CHARGES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It must be hoped that Gertrude Atherton is right when she assumes that "the vast majority of American people are too practical to be imaginative." The reiteration in her letter of Sept. 24 of the charges against the German medical authorities of deliberately infecting French prisoners with tuberculosis, although addressed evidently to an imaginative minority, is uttered no doubt in perfect sincerity. Unimaginative people, however, cannot be convinced by mere insinuations such as Mrs. Atherton echoes. They will wonder why she cites names of Marquises, Comtesses and Baronesses in support of her accusation, while republican France has many excellent authorities in tuberculosis, Professor Landouzy, Bouchard, Letulle, Rist, Courmont and others. These eminent scientists, of course, no more than any one else could have given her information on actual occurrences. But they could have pointed out to her that conditions of war have always favored the development of active tuberculosis, which in a more or less latent form is exceedingly prevalent among the classes called to arms and which often escapes most careful scrutiny. They could have given her abundant statistics on this subject.

While open warfare, on the whole, retards such a development of the disease, confinement in crowded prison camps furthers it. That the German as well as the French authorities will be anxious to return their tuberculous prisoners is evident, and so it is not astonishing that a large proportion of "evacués" are tuberculous. Switzerland is taking care of a great number of such patients from the prison camps of all belligerents, Germans from France included.

But Mrs. Atherton bases her accusation of deliberate infection on Mme. Camille Lyon's report that the French prisoners were forced to sleep, eat, and drink in closest confinement with consumptives and received, horrible dictu, "injections of tuberculosis serum under the pretense of vaccination against typhoid."

I have visited two prison camps in Germany, of about 12,000 prisoners each, and can bear testimony to the fact that in both most careful examinations were made of the prisoners for the purpose of detection and isolation of the tuberculous. This is not done for sentimental reasons, but for the purpose of conserving the health of the prisoners, for it is evident that every consumptive becomes not only economically worthless, but materially increases the cost of maintenance of a camp. I believe that even my limited experience permits this generalization, which I am sure the enlightened French medical staff cannot fail to share and apply. There can be no doubt that it will happen that consumptives are not isolated and live among the other prisoners. If Mrs. Atherton will take the trouble to investigate prison camps in France, England, and Russia, I am convinced she will not find one where there are no consumptives. With the very best intentions and precautions this is unavoidable. The modern scientific standpoint in this regard is that the danger of infection under these circumstances is slight provided there is abundant ventilation and opportunity for open-air work. Mrs. Atherton can find in some of the best general hospitals of this country tuberculous patients with others in the same wards.

Mme. Lyon's horror at the injected tuberculosis serum is rather naïve. Shades of that Russian "Mr. Hyde" who for experimental purposes infected whole communities—in a novel, of course! Why didn't she seek those real authorities in Paris? They would have told her that the Institut Pasteur, as well as other similar institutions, prepare such a serum, but, of course, not for the infection but for the treatment of patients. Why always assume the worst, when the good is infinitely more plausible? And even when one is convinced that there is no good in the "boche" at least give him credit of enough intelligence for finding a surer and quicker method of injuring his prisoners than infection with tuberculosis, which is exceedingly slow and uncertain. Financial Supremacy of New York.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few years since, about the time of the passage of the present Federal Banking act, there were some who hoped, and some who feared, that, by locating the twelve regional banks as favorably as possible for building up new financial centres, New York City would cease to be the great financial centre of the nation. It was even hinted that, with such manipulation as being a regional bank centre afforded, great future influence in national finance awaited Richmond, Atlanta, Dallas, and Kansas City. The vanity of such an idea of forced financial supremacy may be readily seen by a brief glance at the latest banking reports.

Official reports of the twelve regional banks, under date of Aug. 25, 1916, show that the total resources of them amount to $623,611,000. Of these the resources of the New York City regional bank are more than one-third of the whole of the twelve. Under date of Sept. 12, 1916, six banks of New York City; viz., the National City, the National Bank of Commerce, the Mechanics and Metals National, the First National, the Chase National, and the Corn Exchange Bank, report combined resources of $1,763,476,869, nearly three times the combined resources of all the twelve regional banks. And if we deduct the New York City regional bank resources from the total, the resources of the six New York banks are then over four and a third times the combined resources of the other eleven regional banks.

A Benefit to Country Banks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article commenting upon the achievements of the Federal Reserve Bank has been read with interest, and particularly the paragraph with reference to the complaint of the country banks because of their loss of exchange business.

The Federal Reserve system has not only materially aided in present prosperity and established a confidence during the present war period which has had much to do with the trade balances in our favor, but will also help to maintain those balances on this side of the water. For the country bank particularly this new system is of exceptional benefit. It has opened up larger oportunities for them, and they should, indeed, cease their lamentations. If they will not sacrifice their exchange profits on the altar of progress, they should at least realize that those who benefit must contribute their proportion to organized effort for the general welfare. A Campaign Poster.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to protest against the action of the Hughes Alliance, Seventy-fourth Street and Broadway, which has adorned its window with a caricature of the President of the United States. When I voiced a personal protest, a man in charge bowed and said: "Madam, that is our Constitutional privilege." "Anything to beat Woodrow Wilson" seems to be their slogan.

WHAT A SYMPATHETIC STRIKE MEANS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you allow me space in your paper to say a few words to fellow union men regarding the proposed sympathetic strike?

I, myself, am a union man, but I am not an anarchist, and I believe that if every union man would take a few moments for sober thought there would be very little support for any such fanatical movement. Let us consider what it means to lend ourselves to aid in carrying out such a proposition.

A suspension of work by some of the unions means a breaking of contracts with friendly firms. It means breaking of arbitration agreements. It means the sanction of the violence that has been perpetrated upon innocent people who have attempted to go about their own business. It means the loss of self-respect to thousands of good union men who still believe in law and order. It means the loss of the public's confidence that has been gained by the patient and unselfish labor of a few conscientious builders in the union ranks. It means the ruthless destruction, by a few, of the foundation of unionism built upon the sacrifices made by thousands of hard-working, intelligent members of the laboring class. It means, for many, the breaking up of home life, for not all of us have bank accounts, and the landlord is not going to strike and he will call around on the first of the month just the same, and he will hardly accept the excuse that you are out on a sympathetic strike. He will tell you that sympathy, like charity, should begin at home.

It means an added worry to the woman who has mothered your children and a decrease in the food supply to the little ones. It means that a number of employers who are now friendly to labor unions will discover that they can conduct their business without them, and in future prefer the individual contract. It means that thousands of employers that have been worried to desperation by their union workmen will seize this opportunity to throw their influence and wealth into the balance against them.

But to offset these, it may mean the curtailment of some of the authority of the labor leaders who, in their enthusiasm, are willing to pledge the members to any sort of wild scheme.

What a wonderful opportunity the labor unions have if the leaders would get together and advocate the Government control of public utilities, instead of attempting to pull down the entire social structure. They would have been building a reputation for progressiveness that would at once have met with the approval of their membership as well as that of the public at large, and on the eve of State and national elections their victory would be almost certain.

Ernest Bohm has been quoted as saying, "Let the public starve. It will do them good." My friends, you and your families are a part of the public, and you and your families are going to do the most starving if this strike assumes the proportions hoped for by Fitzgerald and his followers, and all to the great and glorious end that Fitzgerald may return to his home town and say, "Look what a great man am I. At the lift of my hand the loyal union men of the greatest city in the world, little old New York, stopped their work and forced the public, (their families,) to starve."

Can you imagine anything so preposterous, so idiotic, anything so thoroughly in accord with the teaching of the I. W. W.?

May the gods deliver us from such unionism. A UNION MAN.

ALL FOR HUGHES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an independent voter who believes the coming election to be one of the most critical in the history of the nation, and who is anxious to cast his vote, as a thoughtful and patriotic citizen, for the good of his country and without regard to party politics, I have tried to weigh impartially the merits of the two chief candidates as possible leaders of the nation.

The next four years will probably prove the most critical in the history of the nation. Pressed by the united offensive of the allied nations, Germany will agitate with growing insistence the resumption of unlimited submarine warfare in accordance with the conditions stipulated in the last German note to our Government. The termination of the conditional truce purchased by the present Administration at so heavy a cost to our national honor will find the country face to face with the crisis which Mr. Wilson repeatedly postponed but never solved.

The conclusion of the European war will involve terms of peace affecting the vital interests of the United States, and new alignments of the world powers will exert a profound influence for good or ill upon the future of the American people. Whether we are to solve our own problems with justice to others and credit to ourselves, and at the same time take a high place in the council of nations in the new era of international relations, or whether we must remain impotent and in isolation while others exercise a controlling influence upon world progress, will depend in no small degree upon the quality of the nation's leadership during the coming four years.

The test of experience proves Mr. Wilson lacking in those qualities of leadership which are indispensable in the man who is to guide the nation successfully through the critical period of the immediate future. As President he has appealed to the people's love of ease and safety rather than to their sense of duty and love of honor, and has urged them to be neutral in thought when the highest instincts of their moral natures were impelling them to champion the right and condemn the wrong. In vital matters of national policy he has been a timid follower, rather than a vigorous leader. The real leaders in the movement for preparedness he denounced as "nervous and excited," and for many months insisted on keeping the nation in that state of weakness which openly invited the insult and abuse that inevitably followed.

As the nation's chief spokesman he has utterly failed to interpret to the world the real sentiment of the American people, silently acquiescing in the rape of Belgium when they would have cried out in indignant protest; professing a lack of concern in the causes of a world catastrophe which threatened the very principles for which their fathers died and which repeatedly brought the danger of war to their own doors, and proclaiming to the world that they could be too proud to fight even when their women and children were brutally murdered.

As the arbiter of our diplomacy he has taught foreign nations that with us brave words will not be followed by brave acts; that repeated "virtual ultimata" may safely be treated with contempt or receive insolent and evasive answers; that our promises "to omit no word or act" in defense of our rights, to hold murderers of our citizens to "strict accountability" and to consider further murders "deliberately unfriendly," as well as our demands for "prompt disavowal and reparation" in the Lusitania case, do not have the serious meaning attached to them by strong nations; and that our promises will not be fulfilled nor our demands enforced if such action involves the sacrifice of a pleasant and profitable peace.

As head of the Cabinet he prostituted some of the most responsible positions in the gift of the nation to the payment of political obligations, naming an incapable Secretary of State who deserted his post of duty in a time of national peril, and a Secretary of the Navy whose grotesque incompetence makes him, even within the ranks of his own party, the butt of jest and ridicule.

As Commander in Chief of the army and navy he allowed both arms of the national defense to reach a state of pitiable unpreparedness during a time of unprecedented danger from foreign and internal foes, faced imminent war on the Mexican border for three years without making sufficient preparations to pursue a raiding bandit with promptness and vigor, conducted two abortive invasions of Mexican territory, both of which failed to achieve their aims, and tamely acquiesced in the passage by Congress of a sham military preparedness measure which was condemned alike by army experts and the best civilian sentiment in the country.

The points in which Mr. Wilson has most conspicuously failed have not been small matters of party politics, but great problems of national and international policy. When the future security and honor of the nation are at stake and the issue depends on vigorous policies and forceful leadership in international affairs, there is but one paramount issue: Which of the candidates selected by the great political parties can be counted upon to gather about him a strong and forceful Cabinet, capable of inspiring confidence at home and respect abroad; to appeal to the highest motives of our people, inspiring them to hold the faithful discharge of national obligations and the preservation of national honor more highly than personal safety and personal comfort; to interpret most faithfully to other nations the real spirit of the American people; to inspire in foreign Governments confidence in the justice and sincerity of our actions, respect for our rights, and a realization that American warnings and demands must be respected and promptly obeyed; and to command our army and navy with vigor and skill, raising both to the high standard of real preparedness which is insistently demanded by an overwhelming majority of the American people?

Mr. Wilson has had ample opportunity to demonstrate his fitness to continue as leader of the American people. Heavy responsibilities have devolved upon him, wonderful opportunities have opened before him. The record of his Administration establishes his inability to measure up to the greatness of either. The public record of Mr. Hughes gives reasonable assurance of a more vigorous and skillful leadership than Mr. Wilson is able to promise. Under the leadership of Mr. Hughes we can count upon a strong Cabinet, a strong and steadfast international policy, the rehabilitation of national honor and prestige, and the adequate preparation of the nation for the rôle of a great world power.

DOUGLAS WILSON JOHNSON.

The hesitating attitude of many voters, in regard to the choice for President at the coming election, proceeds in many quarters from a want of confidence that the Republican candidate has it in his power to rectify the alleged shortcomings of his opponent, independent of the question of his own fitness for the office. It may be proper under the peculiar conditions arising from the European and Mexican situations, in the handling of which Mr. Wilson is charged with having displayed his skill as nothing more than a bungler, to recall the situation at the time intervening between the renomination of President Lincoln in 1864 and the election following. Although seventy-six days had elapsed since his candidacy, he wrote on Aug. 23, after his selection by the Baltimore convention, "It seems exceedingly probable that this Administration will not be re-elected. Then it will be my duty to so co-operate with the President-elect as to save the Union between the election and the inauguration, as he will have secured his election on such ground that he cannot possibly save it afterward." While Mr. Wilson's estimate of his opponent is unknown, the wisdom of Lincoln's distrust in McClellan's fitness was evidenced by his securing 212 of the total 223 electoral votes! Non-partisan voters now recalling this result and the possible consequences in the event of McClellan's election in 1864, hesitate to aid in the displacement of Wilson for one whose temperament, experience and utterances portend no more satisfactory results. If there ever was occasion for not "swapping horses when crossing a stream" it is now. Non-partisans, familiar with the abuse heaped upon Lincoln in 1864 by Republicans and Democrats alike, for alleged bungling administration of affairs at a critical period, view existing, and in many respects analagous, conditions as warranting indorsement of Mr. Wilson in the coming election. It Attacks Only Soldiers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with interest your editorial article of Sept. 22, entitled "The Gigantic Pedestrian of the Somme." That science and invention should be used to destroy and mutilate life and property is a blot upon, not an achievement of, our civilization. That the latest war monster should be hailed with exultation by the British, its creators, is no wonder, but that THE TIMES should delight in its horrors after having so vociferously and correctly denounced the inventions of the barbarous Huns is rather inconsistent. The invention and use of these ultra-modern machines of warfare proves that it was not humanity that kept the English from creating military monsters, but rather their want of creative ingenuity which they overcome through imitation as soon as they were able to do so. Dr. Emerson's Responsibility.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in a recent issue of your paper that Dr. Emerson is quoted as saying that he "will bear full responsibility for anything "that will happen as the result of schools re-"opening Monday, Sept. 25." I should like to know whether any human being can be responsible to a parent for the loss of his child through this dreaded malady.

CITY PAYS TRIBUTE TO EX-MAYOR LOW

MITCHEL LAUDS HIS WORK

Says He Never Refused His Aid to a Movement That Meant the Betterment of New York.

All the officials of the City Government and others who at some time had been associates of Seth Low in his various civic activities joined in an official public memorial to him yesterday afternoon in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall. It was the first time in the history of the city under the present Charter, which Mr. Low aided in framing, that the members of the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen had assembled in joint session. Mayor Mitchel, who presided, made this reference to the meeting:

"May I point out that this occasion is unique in the history of the government of this city? Never before have these two boards, representing as they do so directly and completely the entire citizenship, come together in joint session. They do so now as a mark of especial honor to the memory of a great citizen."

In a brief review of Mr. Low's public services the Mayor said:

"We have bidden here to join with us, in this official tribute, the men who knew and worked with Mr. Low in private life, the representatives of the great civic bodies of New York who had labored with him in a hundred undertakings for the welfare of the city, the men who served in his administration, when as Mayor he initiated public works, he effected reforms, he formulated policies, he established precedents, he fixed standards, upon which every succeeding administration has builded its progress in its efforts to give to the people of New York the honest, business-like, efficient, far-seeing and intelligent City Government which was the ideal of Seth Low.

Life a Part of City's History.

"Seth Low's life and history are a part of the life and history of New York. He was connected by inheritance and by active participation with that business from which, more than any other, the wealth and greatness of New York have sprung."

Mayor Mitchel mentioned Mr. Low's services as Mayor of the old City of Brooklyn and later as Mayor of New York, and his work in developing Columbia University.

"Columbia University, re-created and expanded through his genius, stands today New York's proudest institution of learning, a monument at once to his private generosity and to his executive capacity," said the Mayor.

"As a private citizen, Seth Low never refused his time, his labor or his substance to a movement that meant the betterment of this city. Indeed, those who know Mr. Low's activities in public service and the demands upon his time, know that the tax laid upon his strength by these self-imposed duties contributed in no small measure to the shortening of a life New York could ill afford to lose.

"It was my privilege to see him often and to know him well the last few years. Time and again I have had his counsel and assistance when I needed them, and they were always given with the ready generosity that distinguished him. It is fitting and proper that New York should pay this public and official tribute to the value of Seth Low's services as Mayor, to his worth as a citizen and to his character as a man."

Was a Business Mayor.

George W. Wickersham, speaking of some of Mr. Low's civic activities and his studies of municipal government, said he had formulated the policy of "conducting the affairs of the city not as a political machine, but as a great business."

George McAneny said Seth Low's ideals of municipal government were based on the thought that city Government must be honest and efficient, and administered always for the improvement of the working and social conditions of its citizens.

President Butler of Columbia University spoke of Mr. Low's services to the institution. Bishop Greer offered a prayer.

A long resolution, presented by President Frank Dowling of the Board of Aldermen, for the two boards as constituting the City Government, expressed the city's deep appreciation of Mr. Low's services as a public officer and as a citizen.

NOTED DETECTIVE DEAD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Alfred Ward, Chief Inspector of Scotland Yard, died in a hospital here this morning. He had charge of the police investigation into several of the most sensational crimes of recent years. Inspector Ward visited the United States last May to bring back Ignatius Tribich Lincoln, the former Member of Parliament and self-confessed German spy. Lincoln was extradited on a charge of forgery.

Inspector Ward first came here in October, 1915, to take Lincoln back, but the spy fought extradition on the grounds that he was to be tried as a spy and shot. After his extradition he was tried in London and is now serving three years in prison on the forgery charge.

One of the Inspector's most noted cases was the solving of the theft of the famous $750,000 pearl necklace, which took place during July, 1913. The investigation of this mystery was one of the most remarkable examples of detective work on record, and was declared to stamp Chief Inspector Ward as being the foremost criminal investigator of Europe. All that Scotland Yard had to guide it were three lumps of French sugar and a torn scrap of a French newspaper found in the registered packet that should have contained the necklace.

Inspector Ward caused the record reward of $50,000 to be offered for information leading to the recovery of the pearls, and then quietly started his men to work. The thieves, who had hoped to obtain a consignment of cut stones when they stole the packet, soon found the necklace to be a white elephant on their hands. They dared not break it, as the pearls were widely known through the advertisement which described each one, and eventually determined to sell it in its perfect form. Two Paris jewel merchants were approached, and through them Inspector Ward established the connection that led to the arrest of the four thieves and to their receiving heavy sentences in Old Bailey Court on Nov. 24, 1913.

EARL OF ESSEX DEAD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Seventh Earl of Essex, who married Adela Beach Grant of New York as his second wife, died at Newmarket after a long illness. His widow was one of the most popular women in the smart set of London society, notwithstanding the fact that the Essexes were in relatively straitened circumstances.

The new Earl is the offspring of his father's first marriage. He has had a somewhat notorious career. He contracted a runaway marriage in 1905. He used to be in the army, but as the result of an affair about a year ago he no longer holds the King's commission.

George Devereux de Vere Capell, seventh Earl of Essex, was in his fifty-ninth year and was a son of the late Viscount Malden. He succeeded his grandfather in the earldom in 1892, and a year later married Miss Grant. She received $591,000 last year from the estate of her uncle, R. Suydam Grant, one of the oldest members of the New York Stock Exchange, who died during December, 1912.

The Earl of Essex entered the Grenadier Guards in 1877, from which he retired in 1882. During 1900 he served with the Imperial Yeomanry in South Africa, and a year later was transferred to Colonel Herts's Imperial Yeomanry, in which he was promoted to Colonel. He was a member of the Carlton and Turf Clubs.

Lady Essex has been active since the beginning of the war in aiding the soldiers at the front and their families in England. She is a member of Queen Mary's Needlework Guild, is President of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association and a member of the Executive Committee of the Urban Council for War Relief.

The record of the Giants' winning pitchers is as follows: Schupp, 5; Tesreau, 6; Perritt, 5; Benton, 4; Sallee, 1. Perritt scored a shut-out against Philadelphia, 3 to 0; against Chicago, 4 to 0. Schupp scored a shut-out against Cincinnati, 3 to 0; against Pittsburgh, 2 to 0; against St. Louis, 1 to 0. Benton scored a shut-out against St. Louis, 3 to 0. Sallee scored a shut-out against Chicago, 5 to 0.

John McGraw's sensational New York Giants, with all pennant hopes beyond their reach, annexed much of the glory of the waning baseball season yesterday when they defeated the St. Louis Cardinals in a double-header at the Polo Grounds, establishing a new world's record for successive games won. When the last batsman was out in the second encounter the galloping Giants had won twenty-one games in a string, thus putting into the discard the former world's record, made under the old playing rules by Frank Bancroft's Providence Grays in 1884.

If the Giants were fighting tooth and nail for a pennant they could not have caused as much of a stir in the baseball world as they did with the remarkable achievement which came about yesterday. It is a mark which is so unusual that it will probably stand for many more years than the Providence mark did. Baseball is a swifter and a faster game than it was in those days, and the task is all the more remarkable because it was made by a club which a few weeks ago looked like a badly disorganized second-division aggregation.

About 10,000 spectators saw the Giants' great feat. In years to come they will tell their children and their children's children about that day way back in 1916 when Ferdinand Schupp and Pol Perritt pitched the Giants to a double victory and established the new mark of twenty-one straight games. And, please be it remembered, this daring band of McGraw's isn't through yet. They may keep right on winning games for a while. They have two more games to play with the Cardinals at the Polo Grounds. These look like sure victories, judging from the comparative strength of the two clubs as shown during the last two double-headers.

Giant Pitchers Do Well.

Ferdie Schupp, the youngest flinger on the McGraw staff, was picked to go after the twentieth straight game which was to tie the old Providence record. He did a great job and shut out the Cardinals, 1 to 0, allowing them but two hits. In the second game—the one which broke the old mark—McGraw picked an experienced veteran, Pol Perritt, the iron man, who a few weeks ago pitched two games in one afternoon and won them both. The Giants took this second engagement by a score of 6 to 2.

During the thirty-two years since Providence set their record, the mark has been threatened many times by major league clubs. In 1906 the Chicago White Sox, known as Fielder Jones's Hitless Wonders, started on Aug. 2 and won nineteen games straight. In this string the White Sox scored 100 runs to their opponents' 24, and on their journey of victory they defeated the New York Yankees seven times and beat them out for the pennant by a margin of three games. In this run of victories was one tie game with New York.

The Giants made a remarkable run of eighteen straight games in 1904, which began on June 16 and ended on July 5. On their first Western trip this season the Giants caused a furor by making a tour of the entire circuit, winning seventeen straight games before meeting defeat.

The string started on May 9, at Pittsburgh, by a defeat of the Pirates, 13 to 5. Callahan's men fell thrice more, and then Tinker's Cubs were encountered and left prostrated after a brace of defeats. The McGrawites then won successively four games from St. Louis, three from the Cincinnati Reds, and four from the Boston Braves. Big Six won the seventeenth in Boston, shutting out the Braves by 3 to 0. Mathewson also won one other game, and the other victories were credited as follows: Anderson, 4; Perritt, 4; Benton, 3; Tesreau, 2; Schauer, 1, and Stroud, 1.

After this the Giants took a bad slump, the pitching staff went to pieces, and the club fell back so rapidly that McGraw was forced to bring about a reorganization, which resulted in his present record-breaking club.

Several minor league clubs have made records for successive victories. The Corsicana Club of the Texas League hung up a record of twenty-seven straight in 1902, while the Charlotte Club of the Carolina League won twenty-five straight in the same year. In the old Eastern League the Jersey City Club won twenty-four straight games in 1903.

The Old Providence Record.

In making the new world's record, however, the Giants' great performance does not compare with the feat of the old Providence Grays in one respect. Charley Radbourne, who is regarded as perhaps the greatest pitcher in baseball history, pitched eighteen games out of the twenty. Conley pitched the other two.

Providence started on the victorious trip Aug. 7, 1884, against New York, and ended the run against Cleveland on Sept. 6. One of the games against the Buffalo club was won by a score of 10-0. Radbourne worked in every game he started without the aid of a relief pitcher. Of course, no boxman in modern baseball has ever accomplished a performance such as this.

There was one spectator at the Polo Grounds yesterday watching the Giants break the old record who played on the Providence Grays when they established their sensational mark in '84. It was Arthur Irwin, who played shortstop on Bancroft's great team.

"I was glad to see the Giants do it," said Irwin yesterday after the game, "for while I still have a deep sentiment for those grand old days of baseball I am a firm believer in the modern game. In many ways it is an improvement over the old days, but I doubt if the game will ever see as great a figure as Charley Radbourne."

New York accomplished the new world's record by playing the most sensational baseball imaginable. They have demonstrated during this great run of victories that they can think quicker than perhaps any other club that has ever played the game. The fielding has been truly phenomenal at times. So quickly have the infielders worked that it seemed as if they just played from intuition. The matter of winning has become second nature to them, and mechanically they are as close to perfection as it seems possible to develop human beings. This dashing play, backed by aggressiveness, gameness and courage, has made the Giants the terror of the National League. Even now, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston are shaking in their boots, wondering what this uncanny bunch of McGrawites is going to do next.

How McGraw Improved Team.

First of all, in making over his club, McGraw filled up the weak gaps in the infield. He displaced Merkle at first with a youngster, Holke; the veteran Larry Doyle, at second, gave way to Herzog, while in the third base position, which has given the Giants trouble for the last two or three seasons, McGraw placed Heinie Zimmerman. The outfield was a formidable aggregation, anyway, with Kauff, Burns, and Robertson. He strengthened the catching staff with the addition of Lew McCarty, and immediately the aggregation showed a new lease of life.

The pitching staff has been weak nearly all season, but when the defensive power of the club improved, so did the pitchers. Harmony supplanted disorganization, and with the improvement came an improvement in the club's batting. It was not long before the Giants were showing a brand of baseball which had the whole league sitting up and taking notice. What they did when they returned home early in September is now a matter of baseball history. Beginning on Sept. 7, when young Schupp was pitted against the veteran Nap Rucker, the Giants began to win, and they have been winning ever since.

The record of McGraw's pitchers shows that big Jeff Tesreau, the Ozark bear hunter, has won six of the victories, while Schupp has done his share toward the new record with five. Pol Perritt, the iron man, has also contributed five victories, and Rube Benton has favored with four. Slim Sallee has pitched one victory.

Enthusiasm ran riot when Schupp took the mound against Lee Meadows, one of the best of the Cardinal flingers, in the first game. Meadows, one of the few pitchers who wears glasses during a game, was figured on as a hard obstacle to surmount. He was. Schupp outpitched him, Meadows allowing three hits, while Schupp gave the Cardinals but two. Dazzling support behind Schupp saved the game for the Giants more than once.

Amazing Play by Fletcher.

One play which the Giants made in that first game will always live in the memories of the fans who saw it. It happened in the seventh inning. Smith, the only Cardinal who could nick the southpaw service of Schupp, was the first man up in the seventh, and he got his second two-bagger. Rogers Hornsby then rolled out, Schupp to Holke, Smith going to third. A long fly, an out, almost anything, would have meant a run, and the Cardinals would have tied the score.

Bescher went to the bat, filled with an eagerness to do something disastrous to the ball. He hammered a screaming liner through short. Fletcher was on his toes in an instant and nabbed the ball. Smith had a small lead off third, and, quick as a flash, Fletcher tossed the ball to Heinie Zim and Smith was doubled at third, before he had time to draw his breath. Fletcher didn't have time to think out this play. It just came to him by intuition. Zim wasn't near the bag at the time, but Fletcher's toss was perfect and Heinie was over to touch the bag, while Smith stood flat-footed and thunderstruck.

That wasn't the only brilliant fielding play. In the sixth, with one out, Bohen got a pass and Gonzales, the swarthy Cuban, hit the ball a mile a minute toward third. Zimmerman had no time to get two hands on it. He just reached down with his bare hand, scooped up the ball, and threw the runner out at first. Schupp made a great play himself in the third, when he gamely stood up before a cannon-ball drive by Bohen and caressed it tightly with his gloved hand against his shoulder.

The Giants' lonely run, which won the game, came as the result of two huge erors by Bohen, the Cardinals' new shortstop. It happened in the fourth inning, after Meadows had thrown Herzog out at first. Robertson rolled to Bohen and he hurled the ball high over Snyder's head, Robertson going to second base before the ball was retrieved. Then Zimmerman hoisted a fly to Long in right field. Fletcher drove another hot grounder at Bohen and again the shortstop made a lurid throw to first, the ball sailing many feet over Snyder's head, Robertson racing home with the winning run.

There was a hot argument between McGraw and Umpire Harrison over a drive by Zimmerman in this inning. Zim hit a ball which cut close enough inside third base to look safe. Harrison hesitated for a time before calling the ball and then decided it was a foul.

It looked for a time as if it might be necessary to call out the reserves, but McGraw and Zimmerman finally believed that there was nothing to gain and lapsed into silence.

Although rain threatened to break up the Giants' journey to a new world's record in the first game, the shower lasted but a few minutes and then in the northern sky came a rainbow which proved to be a good omen for the Giants.

Pol Perritt pitched the second game and at times threatened to go on his way to a strike-out record. In the first and fifth innings Pol retired the Cardinals on strike-outs. He fanned eight of them in all and gave six hits. He had one shaky inning, the sixth, when the Cardinals got their two runs.

As Zimmerman stepped to the bat in the second inning he was presented with a traveling bag filled with other nice presents from admirers in his native bailiwick, the Bronx. Heinie showed his appreciation by slapping out a two-bagger between right and centre fields. The crowd was so overjoyed that they would willingly have given Heinie a trunk, and when he went to third on Fletcher's sacrifice and scored on Kauff's sacrifice fly the spectators would have given Heinie a house and lot for the mere asking.

More Giant runs came in the third. After two were out in this chapter Joe Lotz, who was doing the pitching for St. Louis, became very generous and gave passes to Burns and Herzog. Robertson's hit to left scored Burns and then up to the bat again came Heinie Zimmerman. This time he rapped another two-bagger to left and sent Herzog and Robertson joyfully over the plate. In the seventh Holke got an infield hit and Rariden's double to left scored Holke with the Giants' last run. The scores:

Managers of the National Leage Teams Give Their Views of Giants' Achievement

The statements by National League club managers here presented were made by them for THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday after the Giants broke the record.

JOHN J. McGRAW, Manager of the New York Giants—I think the New York club as it is made up today is, in many respects, the greatest baseball team I have managed in my fourteen years at the head of the organization. On some of the best clubs which represented New York in the past, of course, we had greater pitching, by Matty and McGinnity, and it was the high-class pitching which had much to do with bringing us pennants. But for a smoothly-balanced, fast-playing club, this year's Giants surpass any of the old teams. The boys are playing in perfect harmony and while our pitching was uncertain at several stages of the present season they are all delivering now. These players have the right kind of fighting spirit and are not afraid to take chances on the bases. Naturally, I am very much pleased in establishing a new record, but the boys deserve all the glory they will get out of it.

MILLER HUGGINS, Manager of the St. Louis Cardinals—This club of McGraw's is playing the most sensational ball I ever saw. It is by far the best club in the National League today. No one is more pleased than I am to see them hang up this new record. At the gait they are going I can't see how any one is going to beat them, for they have great fielding, great pitching, and are getting all the breaks. Just see how they got that first run today on two errors. The club is just about 100 per cent. better than when they played us in St. Louis in August. You remember, we shut them out three times in as many days. They didn't look like much of a club at that time, for they couldn't hit anything. McGraw has worked wonders since he reorganized the club, and, I tell you, if he had this club when he was playing us last August he'd be right up there now with the pennant within his grasp.

WILBERT ROBINSON, Manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers — Twenty-one games in a row under the present conditions is a much greater achievement than it looks when compared to the old record of the Providence team. It demonstrates that John McGraw has molded together a team of wonderful efficiency, and the credit for the successive victories undoubtedly belongs to him. It is only another testimony of his worth as a manager which he has proved to the satisfaction of local fans in previous years. We all have to take our hats off to McGraw and I am as proud at this moment of his feat as of the standing of the Brooklyns in the National League.

JOE TINKER, Manager of the Chicago Cubs—The best team by far in the National League is New York. It is a great team, and playing wonderful ball. There is no stopping a team which goes at top speed, and that is true all the time of McGraw's men. The record is a remarkable one, but as a prediction let me tell you that the Giants will win as many games in a row next season as they have this.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON, Manager of the Cincinnati Reds.—It is the most remarkable feat in years. McGraw has a great team, and I am tickled to hear that he has broken the record. I think the Giants might have turned the trick some years ago when I was a member of the team had it not been for a slip by Joe McGinnity. Joe was pitching great ball in those days, but he had an agreement whereby he twirled for a team of semi-professionals on Sundays. I think we had won nineteen games when we struck Philadelphia. McGinnity was listed to pitch against the Phillies on Monday. But the day before, Sunday, he had a hard game with the semi-pro team that he occasionally twirled for. When he faced the Phils the following day we lost.

PAT MORAN, Manager of the Phillies.—Any team that wins twenty-one straight games in these days of strong opposition is some ball club. I have heard it said the Giants were weak in pitchers. I failed to see any weakness three weeks ago when we lost four straight to them in New York after we had won eight in a row.

GEORGE STALLINGS, Manager of the Boston Braves.—The Giants have been a team which, from the very start of the season, I have figured Boston would have to beat in order to take the pennant. The last string of consecutive victories did not surprise me a bit, and this one has not. When the season opened I feared the New York Club more than any other, and I must confess the several slumps the Giants have had have pleased me not a little. McGraw surely has strengthened his team, and were the season a little longer there is no telling what would happen.

JIMMY CALLAHAN, Manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Giants have had great possibilities all year. The team looked good when it made that splendid tour of the West midway through the season, but when we played them last week they were stronger and were going better than before. On paper the team is the best in the league, and the other Eastern teams can thank their stars that McGraw did not get his outfit going at top speed before Sept. 1. I look to see the Giants make a great fight for the pennant. There is no reason why the New York club should not improve on its already remarkable record for straight wins. The pitchers are going well and the team is hitting. I believe the Giants will finish not lower than third place, and have an excellent chance to finish second.

Straight Victory Records.

Major league record under old playing rules—Providence Grays, 20 straight victories in 1884, from Aug. 7 to Sept. 6.

Former major league record under modern playing rules—Chicago White Sox, 19 straight victories in 1906, Aug. 2 to Aug. 23.

New world's major league record—New York Giants, 21 straight victories, Sept. 7 to Sept. 25, 1916.

EVEN BREAK BEST DODGERS CAN GET

Joe Tinker's Chicago Cubs fought as hard yesterday to pull the Dodgers from their lofty perch at the head of the National League as though a world's series engagement would reward the victors in the series at Ebbets Field. The Chicago chieftain found a vulnerable spot in the armor of the home team in the first encounter and by striking hard won the opening game of the double header by 7 to 4. The defeat and the perilous position in which they were placed, instead of discouraging the Dodgers, nerved them to greater hostility, and, waging a plucky fight, Robbie's men broke even on the day by capturing the second game, 4 to 2.

It was a day of streaky baseball accompanied by weather suited to the shifting character of the games. Bright sunshine while the Superbas were leading early in the fray gave way to an overcast sky and half-hearted showers at the time the visitors were forging to the front. The gloomy surroundings lasted long enough for the doings of Tinker's men to plunge the home crowd into despondency, but this was only a momentary sensation, and a brilliant rainbow illuminated the closing frames of the second encounter, which was taken as an omen of success in the struggle for the pennant by Brooklyn fans.

One material circumstance calculated to give heart and comfort to the cohorts of Wilbert Robinson is that, as far as the playing yesterday indicated, the pitching staff across the bridge still maintains the high order of efficiency which has been largely responsible for the forward position of the Dodgers. To be sure, Cheney, one of the most dependable of the hurling staff, had to be charged with a defeat, as he was taken out in the tenth inning when the Cubs had already overcome the early lead gained by the Robins. Just one cog in the wheel slipped, however, to bring about this result. With two out in the eighth, Saier raised a fly to centre field which appeared to be well within the reach of Johnston. The outfielder ran straight for it, got his hands on it, but the ball slipped through his fingers and Packard came home from second base with the tying run, which brought the game to ten innings.

To accentuate this lapse Johnston was again at fault in the opening of the tenth when Wortman raised a high fly to the centre garden. Johnston lost it in the sun, and by the time he located the sphere it was safely on its way over his head and rolled clear to the fence for a home run. Cheney did his best to retrieve the situation by striking out Packard, but he walked Flack, and when Mann beat out a hit to Mowrey, Cheney reluctantly obeyed orders and left the mound in favor of Smith. The latter had nothing and quickly gave way to Dell, the result being that four runs were tallied before the side was retired.

Rube Marquard pitched a masterly game in the second. Johnston had given way to Hy Myers and Wheat was back in his old place at left field. He nearly came to grief, however, in the eighth, when a couple of poor throws enabled the Cubs to tie the score. It was trying too hard that nearly led to another disaster. With one man out, Jake Daubert essayed a quick finish by attempting a double play. Accuracy was sacrificed to speed, and Daubert's heave to Olson to catch Mann at second before putting out Mollwitz went so wild that Mann had time to reach third and Mollwitz raced to second.

The epidemic was catching, for Cutshaw followed with another out-of-line return of Kelly's grounder, allowing Mann to score and giving Kelly a life. With the score tied, Marquard was equal to the emergency, and, purposely walking Wilson, he disposed of Mollwitz, who was forced at the plate, and then fanned Pechous.

To complete the victory, in Brooklyn's half Stengel singled to centre, and was safely anchored on second when Wheat grounded out to Mollwitz. A healthy single to centre by Cutshaw brought Stengel home with the winning run, the batter taking second on the throw. A wild pitch advanced Cutshaw a peg, and he landed another run for good measure when Olson singled to centre after Mowrey had struck out.

Meyers fanned to close the inning and allow the Cubs to come up for the ninth, to be disposed of in quick order in the waning light. There was a little luck attached to the runs scored by Brooklyn in the third and fourth innings. Daubert led off in the third, and, after Stengel and Wheat had fanned, reached third on Cutshaw's single. The latter tried to steal second, but doubled back. While trying to run him down Yerkes dropped the ball, and Jake seized the opportunity to connect with the home plate. The run in the fourth was produced by a base on balls to Mowrey, followed by wild throws by Yerkes and Wilson. The scores:

LEAGUE PENNANT RACES.

Robins' Leadership Now Precarious —Detroit No Longer Menaces.

Brooklyn's leadership in the National League pennant race suffered a loss of half a game and three percentage points through the Robins' defeat in the first game of the double leader with Chicago at Ebbets Field yesterday, while Philadelphia was winning from Cincinnati. Before yesterday's contests Brooklyn held a game and a half advantage over the Phillies; today they are only one game in front, and another Chicago victory while Philadelphia is repeating over Cincinnati will put the Quaker team in the lead with a single point advantage. In the event that Brooklyn is defeated by Chicago its standing will be 88 won and 58 lost, for a percentage of .602740. Should Philadelphia win from Cincinnati its standing will be 87 won and 57 lost for a percentage of .604167.

Boston gained a full game on Brooklyn yesterday by its dual triumph over Pittsburgh, and is now only four games back of the Robins. The Braves are still far from being out of the race, and they have an advantage over Brooklyn in that they have fourteen games remaining on the schedule, while the Robins have only nine. Philadelphia has ten games still scheduled.

The most important series of the season face Brooklyn after they finish with the Cubs tomorrow. Beginning on Thursday, Philadelphia invades Ebbets Field and will play three games there, finishing Saturday. On the following Monday the Giants will cross the bridge for four single games, which will complete the schedule. Philadelphia still has six games left to be played with Boston, and they will be completed in four days, beginning on Monday. This series may be the deciding one for the championship, and there looms up the possibility that the title will not be decided until the last two or three days of the season, possibly on the final day. The standing, which includes yesterday's games, is as follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Club.	Won.	Lost.	To Play.	Pct.
Brooklyn	88	57	9	.60689
Philadelphia	86	57	10	.60139

Detroit was practically counted out of the American League race yesterday, when it submitted to defeat by Washington while Boston and Chicago were beating Cleveland and New York, respectively. All Boston needs to do to accomplish the complete elimantion of Detroit is to win two of its remaining seven games. As the result of yesterday's games the world's champions have a record of 87 won and 60 lost, so that two more triumphs and five defeats would give them a total of 89 victories and 65 defeats. Detroit has only three games remaining to be played, and now has 85 won and 66 lost, so that by winning the trio it would stand 88-66, one whole game behind Boston.

It is the Chicago menace that is worrying Boston. The Red Sox, to win the American League pennant again, must capture four of its remaining seven games while the White Sox are winning all four games which remain on their schedule. Four more victories and no defeats would give Chicago a total at the end of the season of 90 won and 64 lost. Boston, by winning four and losing three, would have a total of 91 won and 63 lost. All of Chicago's remaining games are with Cleveland. Boston has four with New York and three with the Athletics. The standing is as follows.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Club.	Won.	Lost.	To Play.	Pct.
Detroit	85	66	3	.56291

Scratch hits by Janvrin and Shorten, Hoblitzel's sacrifice and Lewis's sacrifice fly gave Boston one in the fourth, while Thomas's double and Ruth's single produced another in the fifth. The score:

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Comparing the center fielders of the three clubs of each league that have fought such desperate campaigns for the honors of meeting in the world's series, it becomes evident at a glance that the National clubs should, for their own interests, be pulling for anyone to beat the Detroit Tigers.

Ty Cobb towers head and shoulders above all the other center fielders in the country, and this fact never becomes more evident than when one sits down and figures the worth of the man in plain figures.

It would be fortunate for Cobb if Brooklyn should win the pennant because, figuring him against that Dodger team, it would seem a shame for him to be turned loose on the bases against their catchers, at the bat against their pitchers (excepting Coombs who is wise and knows Cobb.) The pitchers and catchers of both the Braves and the Phillies figure to do more toward stopping Cobb than do the Brooklyn fellows. It would be almost a one man series if Cobb should be turned loose against Brooklyn to show the Dodgers how this old army game should be played. He would start them throwing and keep them throwing all the time, and any one who has watched the Dodgers heave that old pill around the grandstand knows what would happen.

As we study the six teams in comparison with each other, position by position, the one fact that becomes more and more clear is, with all its hitting and base running power, Brooklyn is one of the most panicky ball clubs in the business. They run along three or four innings as steadily as any one, then blow all to pieces and throw away the game. This panicky tendency seems to extend all along the line. I am unable to place the blame entirely, but there is an extreme lack of faith in each other that is bred of this habit, and each man is constantly expecting some one else to blow, and, as a consequence, just what they all look for happens often enough to ruin the effectiveness of a team which otherwise might seem very strong. I find this affecting the work of Johnston, who is brilliant and erratic by turns. He was not good enough to be considered seriously when he was in the big show before and really is not yet finished enough to play on a championship team. He is improving and should continue to improve—but that does not help much in the present contingency.

Dode Paskert really is the class of the centre fielders the National League could offer against the American, when only these three teams are considered. This fellow is an odd outfielder, covering a lot of ground, working hard, and he hits very well—close up to .290. Yet, compared with Cobb, Paskert has a small chance to seem much better than an amateur. Compared with the average, Paskert looks very well. He is not a smart ball player, and has a lot of deficiencies, yet his attacking power and his ability to go a long way after a fly ball helps to overcome his weaknesses.

Snodgrass is not in class. This is a puzzle. Why does Stallings, one of the smartest managers in the world, grab so many mediocre outfielders? Snodgrass once promised to become a great catcher; perhaps he never would have been one, but in his kidhood he looked that way, but McGraw, wanting to use this rangy and promising looking fellow every day, transformed him into an outfielder. We all kept hoping that he would become a great player, but he never has. He lacks initiative, lacks aggressiveness, and is not perfect as a purely mechanical man. Besides that, he has gone back to some degree—just how much is hard to decide. He is a slashing fellow, who is dangerous at any time—especially dangerous when his team is driven into a tight place. Oddly enough, he looks almost as well as [illegible] against the Red [illegible] against the weaker Detroit outfit or against the uncertain White Sox staff.

When we come to the Red Sox, unfortunately for them, we cannot this year figure Tris Speaker, and the result is a sharp decline in their efficiency figure in centre field. We are compelled to calculate on a combined outfield. Shorten is all right, but not a heavy attacking force. If we figure Walker, we have another element of erratic uncertainty to add to our calculations. Walker is fast, a wonderful but not accurate thrower, and not at all a satisfactory substitute for Speaker. He is not the ball player, even now, that Shorten is, but, for world's series calculations, he is interesting because no one, least of all himself, can tell what he will do. He might be the hero or the disgraced dub of the entire series. His erratic hitting would keep pitchers up in the air to some extent, especially those who do not know his style of playing ball.

The Chicago White Sox are unable to present a centre fielder who would outclass the National League rivals, although in figures their composite outfield ranks fairly well up, allowing for the best use of each player who tackles the position. We find from the figures that Leibold is perhaps the most useful and he probably would do the great bulk of the centre fielding during a series should the Sox be lucky enough to pull through winners. He is not a great hitter, but a good waiter, and he reaches first much oftener than his hitting would indicate. Felsch is undoubtedly a materially better ballplayer than is Leibold in the purely mechanical sense and would be used as often as his physical condition would permit. A composite of Leibold and Felsch is hardly a fair comparison, since their best points often are in the same department, so that part of the total team strength is on the bench no matter which is playing. Felsch has shown much improvement this season, although prone to slump. The pitchers declare he has vital weaknesses as a batter which are becoming known. Leibold has the advantage in experience and in knowledge of opponents and in playing for batters.

Then comes Cobb. We have written so much about Tyrus that every one knows all about him. It would be joyous in these days to see Ty in a world's series, if only for the purpose of demonstrating to National League players how this old game ought to be played. He had a wabbly and bad start this season and was slow to get going at top speed. He missed his old side kick, Samuel Crawford, who was even slower getting under way in the right direction and did not hit well. Then he got started.

Now Cobb stands for courage and determination. He is a better ballplayer today, even with a somewhat weakened arm and the loss of a little speed, than he ever was. For two months we have watched him in his desperate fight to capture the batting honors of the American League. We have seen him do things that were marvellous for sheer nerve and desperate effort. He has forced himself to the limit. Whether he has taken anything out of himself in leading the Tigers in their desperate drive for the front is a question. I think his courage and nerve will hold until the last man is out in the final game of the series should the Tigers win and that he would keep going to the finish. No player is in his class—and in the last two months he has excelled himself.

CICOTTE CONQUERS YANKS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 25.—The White Sox closed the season at home this afternoon by defeating the New York Yankees, 5 to 1. Not an error marked the contest on either side, and it was baseball from the start until the last man had been retired. Through it all Eddie Cicotte performed as seldom before. He allowed the Yankees only five hits. Three of these were two-baggers, but they did not help the visitors much.

A base on balls and a single were responsible for the run of the Donovanites. Two more passes were handed out, but Eddie gave the visitors little chance to profit by them. Facing the Sox through seven inings of the encounter was Allen Russell. After Maisel had been given a chance to strike out for Russell, Love began work in the eighth inning, but the Sox made three hits and an equal number of runs off him. In the seven rounds in which Russell worked the Sox accumulated seven hits.

The Sox cut into Russell's shoots in the third inning for one run. Lapp led off with a single and Cicotte brought him home with a two-bagger. The pitcher was forced by Jack Collins, who was caught at the plate when he and Eddie Collins tried to make a double steal after the Captain had singled. Jackson had fouled to Walters in the fourth, when Felsch hit out one of Russell's curves for a homer.

Cicotte made a poor guess in the fifth when he passed Baker for a starter. Frank made the circuit on Baumann's infield out and Walter's single. Hendryx doubled in the sixth, but got no further than second. Baker doubled in the seventh, got to third but no farther. Magee spanked the ball for another two-bagger in the eighth, but Weaver put him out on a tap by Hendryx.

Gay doing transpired in the eighth with Love on the slab. J. Collins led off with a walk. Weaver's single put him on second. E. Collins advanced both with a sacrifice. Jackson fanned, but Felsch put a two-bagger into left, scoring Collins and Weaver. The score:

THREE IN TIE FOR GREENWICH MEDAL

KERR HAS POOR FINISH

Leads in Morning Play, but Weakens at Turn in Afternoon—Fine Field in Tourney.

"Medal, medal, who has the medal?" was the game played in the qualifying round of the annual invitation golf tournament of the Greenwich Country Club yesterday. When the thirty-six holes had been finished by all concerned it was impossible to decide upon the culprit, as Reggie Lewis of Wykagyl, Samuel J. Graham of the home club, and Hamilton K. Kerr, another Greenwich player, were tied at 153 strokes each.

For the first time this season Hamilton Kerr, former Connecticut State champion, came to life and played in the form that he usually displayed in past seasons. He led the field, which is the finest of the season in an invitament, at the end of the morning round with a 75. Considering the cold wind which was blowing, this was fine golf, and it can hardly be brought forward that Kerr was in special favor through playing on his home course, since it was at Greenwich that he failed to qualify for the Connecticut State championship late in June, when he was the titleholder at the time.

Grant Peacock was a stroke behind Kerr, at 76, over the luncheon period, but the former intercollegiate star ascended skyward in the afternoon, and took an 83. Two strokes behind Kerr were Lewis and Graham, and, as both improved their scores by a single stroke in the second round, while Kerr was adding three strokes to his morning total, night found them in a triple tie for the honor of being the medalist.

Golfers of Ability Entered.

Although the field at Greenwich was small, with only fifty-two starters, it has provided by far the finest first sixteen of the metropolitan invitation tournament season. In the first division are Reggie Lewis, Connecticut and Westchester champion; Hamilton K. Kerr, former holder of the Connecticut title; Henry J. Topping, winner of the Ardsley and Garden City invitation tournaments; Gardiner White, winner at Piping Rock and Sleepy Hollow; Max Marston, winner at Ewanok; Vincent Hilton, metropolitan junior champion; Grant Peacock, runner-up to Frank Blossom in the intercollegiate championship last year, and Frank W. Dyer, Pennsylvania amateur champion and winner of the recent Glen Ridge invitation tournament. The quality of golf was what might be expected from such a high-class field, but the perfection of the Greenwich greens must get a share of the credit for the low qualifying scores.

With a lead of two strokes on the field in the morning round, driving far and straight, putting with a sure and certain touch, Kerr seemed to have the medal safely within his grasp when he reached the turn in the afternoon in 37. From this point on he weakened, but the hole that really wrecked his fortunes was the thirteenth, a par 5 hole on which he took a 7 where Reggie Lewis took a 3. The maddening part of the performance was that there was little need, or even excuse, for that many strokes by Kerr. He got a good drive, topped his second, which happily jumped over a bunker, and then placed his third shot over the green in a yawning pit. He got out to the edge of the green in 4, and took three putts for his 7.

When Kerr began to go badly near the end of his journey, Graham crept up on him, stroke by stroke, playing a steady game through the whole day, and drew abreast of him at the home hole. The same hole that spoiled Kerr's chances came near being a Waterloo for Graham, also, for he took a 6, where good playing should have given him a 4. His drive was fair, but he sliced his second into a trap, took a stroke to get out, another to reach the green, and two putts to get into the cup for a 6.

Lewis Has Ups and Downs.

It was in-and-out playing of a remarkable kind that brought Reggie Lewis into a tie for the medal. Starting out in the afternoon, he took all 4s to the eighth hole, a stroke under par for that distance. On the 340-yard eighth hole, a drive and a mashie pitch, he took four strokes over par, an 8, in the following manner: His drive left him in a pit, with no prospect of playing forward unless he drove toward the centre of the earth, with the intention of emerging in China. Consequently, he played backward, got out safely, took a spoon, and fell short of the green. He put his fourth shot into a trap by the green, came out in 5, and took three putts.

His most remarkable playing, however, came on the next five holes, which he negotiated in sixteen strokes, or just one stroke over threes for the stretch. Counting in the long fourteenth where he also clipped a stroke from par, he went six consecutive holes, from the ninth to the fifteenth, with a mark of three strokes under par. His best hole was the thirteenth, the hole that proved so damaging to Kerr and Graham, and he picked up no fewer than four strokes on Kerr at this point. It is a 440-yard par five hole, and Lewis got a three by putting a midiron approach within five feet of the pin and sinking his putt.

There were many other wonderful holes played during the day, including a ten by Gardiner White on the fourth, a nine by C. G. Comstock, Jr., at the fourteenth, and a nine by James T. Soutter at the home hole that lifted him from the select company in the second sixteen and placed him with the proletariat in the third division. White worked hard to get his ten, and yet he was hardly pleased when he finally did get it. He put his third shot down a glen with a perpendicular approach to the green. Instead of approaching the green on his next shot, he approached a huge rock, where an additional stroke brought him more trouble. After putting his eighth shot on the green he missed a putt for nine, and for the first time in a tournament this year he went into double figures on a hole.

BRAVES BAG A COUPLE.

Defeat Pirates by 5 to 0 in First Game, and 3 to 2 in Second.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—Boston won two games from Pittsburgh today, the first by 5 to 0 and the second by 3 to 2. In the first game J. C. Smith of Boston got four singles in four times at bat, each hit scoring a run. In the two games the four pitchers working had a total of twenty-nine strikeouts. Tyler had eleven and Grimes five in the first game, while Mamaux had eight and Reulbach five in the second.

Manager Callahan gave King, who recently came to the team from Wheeling, W. Va., and Gleason, recently purchased from Lynn of the Eastern League, a chance to work in the first game, and they did well. Honus Wagner had a rest in the second game, Johnston covering first. Mamaux had a little the better of Reulbach in the second pitching duel, but was poorly supported. The scores:

Meanwhile Phillies Hit Schneider Freely and Win, 4 to 0.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—Philadelphia easily defeated Cincinnati today by 4 to 0. Rixey had his opponents almost at his mercy, and although they made seven hits off him they were scattered through six innings. Philadelphia hit Schneider's delivery hard in the early innings. Chase got three singles in four times at bat. The score:

WEFERS, JR., AT COLUMBIA.

Bernie Wefers, Jr., the schoolboy sprinter, matriculated yesterday at Columbia University as a member of the freshman class and made known his intention of trying for a position on the light blue and white track squad. Wefers is son of the New York Athletic Club coach, who resigned his position as track mentor at Columbia last Spring to undertake the work of building up a squad of track and field men at Fordham University.

The younger Wefers first drew the attention of athletic experts last year, when he was generally successful in the short dashes at interscholastic meets in the metropolitan district.

Seek Forfeit for Canceled Bout.

Formal complaint was lodged with the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday against the Madison Square Garden boxing management by the managers of Bob Moha and Charlie Weinert, who were advertised to box there last night, but which bout was canceled. Since either boxer would have forfeited $250 had he caused the cancellation, Chairman Wenck believes that the Garden Club should pay each boxer $250 and has so recommended to his fellow Commissioners.

BATTERY MEMBERS JOIN YALE SQUAD

Coaches Are Encouraged as the Fourth Week Opens—Scrubs Score First Touchdown.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 25.—To Nichols, end rush of the Yale scrub eleven, today went the honor of scoring the first touchdown of the season against the 'Varsity. Nichols nipped a ball fumbled by the regulars in attacking the scrubs only three yards from the goal, broke free, and raced the length of the field for his score.

Yale opened the fourth week of practice with a rush, Head Coach Tad Jones driving the regulars through thirty minutes of galloping play, which went more smoothly and effectively than any 'Varsity attack this Fall. The coaches were encouraged tonight, feeling that last week's slump may have been due to overwork.

Several line-up chances went into effect, Joe Neville and Effie Waite, the pony halfbacks, being promoted to the regulars. Carter was tried at right guard, Vorys went back to centre, Moseley and Comerford were used at end, and Captain Black was again in the line-up. Emil Jacques began the play at quarterback, Rex Hutchinson getting into the final fifteen minutes of scrimmage.

Waite, Jacques and Neville took the ball across for touchdowns, the 'Varsity plunging three times from midfield to goal without being checked. Although the scrubs were unable to gain consistently, Gaillard found a gap in the 'Varsity for a touchdown.

Nearly all the football members of the Yale battalion were in uniform today, although they showed a lack of familiarity with the gridiron, and will not get into the scrimmaging for several days. All appeared in tiptop physical condition because of their experience in soldiering. Chub Sheldon will probably be able to play part of Saturday's game against Carnegie Tech. Neither Jim Braden nor Pat Kelly has returned to college since leaving the battalion, and it was reported tonight that Kelly had gone to Washington, where he might accept a military appointment instead of being available for Yale football this Fall. His West Point course is reported to have caused him to decide upon a permanent military career.

Braden is understood to have joined the Washington and Jefferson football coaching staff, with which he was formerly connected. He was looked upon as certain of the position in the Yale backfield, while Kelly was regarded as the strongest candidate for centre. Additions to the coaching staff included Jack Cates and Douglas Bomeisler, former ends, and John Field, backfield strategist.

MIDDIES HAVE SCRIMMAGE.

Two 'Varsity Backfield Combinations Tried Against Scrubs.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 25.—All departments of football, starting with punting the ball and hitting the tackling dummy, and winding up with a stiff scrimmage marked today's practice at the Naval Academy. During the workout, the fight for quarter back again came to the front with Orr, a sub of last year, and Roberts, of last year's Colgate team, saining as first and second call men.

Roberts showed up well in comparison with the sailor veterans. However, it was plainly evident that Orr and Martin, another of last year's veterans, are fighting hard and the Plebe will have to put up a hard battle. After working on the tackling dummy and then covering fumbles, the squad was lined up in two teams. Orr, at quarter, Westphal, Ingram, and Martin composed the 'Varsity backfield. No trouble was experienced by this combination in marching the length of the field for a touchdown. The coaches then tried out Martin, Dashiell, Davis, and Kuhn, the last a new man in the backfield, and another march down the field straight through the scrub line resulted.

The indications are that this week is to be given over by the coaches to a very thorough tryout of all the new men on the squad with an even start for the veterans. With the opening of the season on Saturday against Dickinson there will be a further tryout before an eleven will be chosen.

GREEN DOES LIGHT WORK.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 25.—Only light practice was given the Dartmouth football squad today. After Saturday's contest, in which the team was compelled to play heavy, old-style football, Coach Cavanaugh thought it best to allow the men to spend the time today running down punts, throwing and receiving forward passes, shadow scrimmaging and going through simple mass drills.

For about thirty minutes Cavanaugh put the regulars through a cross-examination as to their failure to follow his instructions in their playing Saturday. Error after error was commented upon by the head coach, and he brought it home forcibly to the squad that these errors must be eliminated in later season games if Dartmouth is to sustain its reputation on the gridiron.

Cannell, freshman quarter back on last year's freshman eleven, and Goggswell, freshman end, two men who were reported to have enlisted in the English Army, were out in uniform for the first time today. Both are valuable men and probably destined to occupy regular berths on the green eleven.

Assistant Coach Ghee devoted his entire attention to Cannell this afternoon, and under the tutelage of this veteran Cannell will surely come along at top speed. Coggswell was kept busy running under forward passes. His speed, coupled with his 187 pounds, should make him an equal to any on the big teams this season.

Coach Cavanaugh called a meeting of the ends in the gym tonight, and for an hour and one-half he explained and illustrated the style of play, both offensively and defensively, that they must use under his system at Dartmouth.

YALE NAMES OFFICIALS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 25.—President Olsen of the Yale Football Association tonight announced the officials for the two most important football games of the season in the East—the Yale-Harvard and the Yale-Princeton battles. For the Yale-Harvard match in the Yale Bowl Nov. 22 Nathan A Tufts of Brown will be referee; David Fultz, also a Brown graduate, will be umpire; William N. Morice, Pennsylvania, will be head linesman, and Dr. Carl Williams, Pennsylvania, will be field judge. These men officiated last year.

For the Yale-Princeton game Tufts will referee. He refereed this match last year also. Dr. Williams has been chosen umpire, and a new official in the major intercollegiate circuit, Emory S. Land of Wyoming, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and of Annapolis, will be head linesman. Fultz will be field judge.

Yale will make a start in trying out these officials next Saturday, when Tufts will act as referee and Dr. Williams as umpire in the opening game of the season here, with Carnegie Tech. The head linesman will be Allen B. Farmer, Dartmouth, and the field judge H. S. Bankart, Dartmouth.

CORNELL BEGINS PRACTICE.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The Cornell football squad got away to a flying start this afternoon in one of the liveliest first practices in years. The Ithacans are one week behind their schedule, but about sixty men were on the ground and most of them apparently in good condition.

The coaching trio, Dr. A. H. Sharpe, Dan Reed, and Ray Vanorman, were on hand early this morning and soon had the big squad divided into groups for preliminary workouts. Last year's 'Varsity men who returned were: Eckley, right end; Gillies, right tackle; Anderson, right guard; Miller, left guard; Shiverick, right half back, and Mueller, full back. The only absentee is Tilley, last year's left tackle, who is expected to return in a few days. A number of promising substitutes from last year's squad include Bard, McCormick, Dixon, Brown, and Fischer, line men; Ryerson and Zander, ends; Hoffman, Benedict and Speed, backs, and a number of men from last year's freshman squad. One of the best newcomers is Haucke, a fast and fairly heavy half back who came here from the University of Nebraska two years ago, but was not eligible last year.

In the preliminary workout today Shiverick and Bretz did a lot of punting and field goal kicking and the squad practiced the usual preliminary stunts. This afternoon the coaches lined up several teams, and though the selections are only tentative some idea of the probable make-up of the first 'Varsity team in the opening games may be obtained from today's line-up. The team was composed of Ryerson, left end; Dixon, left tackle; Miller, left guard; Brown, centre; Anderson, right guard; Gillies, right tackle; Eckley, right end; Bretz, quarter back; Haucke, left half back; Shiverick, right half back; Mueller, full back.

An encouraging feature of the situation here is that not a single probation has depleted the ranks. Every 'Varsity man is square with his work and the eligibility showing is the best in years. Another unusual feature was the fact that on the opening day Dr. Sharpe held an hour's secret practice in the baseball cage.

HENNING LOST TO PENN.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 25.—Charlie Henning, one of the greatest guards ever to leave the imprints of cleated shoes on the turf of Franklin Field, passed out of Pennsylvania football, probably for the entire season, when he was operated on in the University Hospital for appendicitis today. Henning is the fifth member of the Red and Blue 'Varsity out of the practices at present.

Today was the official day for candidates to report, and Franklin Field swarmed with players garbed in moleskins. At least one hundred aspirants for 'Varsity and freshmen berths dotted the green. Coach Bob Folwell did not drive his men hard, but nevertheless he kept them on the jump.

First came the usual drill at forward passing, when a player on each side of the field tore hastily down the sidelines under the aerial passes of Heinie Miller, John Titzel, Habby Light, and Graves Williams. Punting, charging, falling on the ball, and running races came in for their share of the time, and after the players had been on the field about an hour and a half, signal practice was called. The men were divided into teams and were hustled through their various plays and formations. Light had charge of the 'Varsity, and Sid Thayer was quarterback of the second eleven.

COLUMBIA HAS STIFF DRILL.

Workout So Strenuous That Two of the Coaches Are Slightly Hurt.

Starting the second week of practice yesterday morning on South Field, Coach Metcalf of the Columbia University squad ordered the linemen and ends into heavy tackling drill for the first time this season. Previously the only actual ground work had been on the sawdust tackling dummies. Dol Cochrane was used most of the time as punter, and the candidates for the rush line ran forward in squads of two and three to tackle the backfield men carrying the ball and to shatter their interference.

In the afternoon Metcalf ordered the squad out for only an hour and then brought all indoors for the first blackboard talk of the year. The elementary signal code has been formulated, and the more intricate plays were discussed in a general way. Howard Miller, quarterback, reported to the coaches late in the afternoon that he had passed successfully the one examination which separated him from full eligibility.

PITTSBURGH ELEVEN HOME.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 25.—'Varsity and Freshman football players were out in full force at the University of Pittsburgh today for the first workout since the return of some of the team from camp at Windber. Coach Warner brought all the boys back in good shape, and said today that outside the perfecting of signal work, the team was ready for a grueling battle at any time.

Many shifts were made this afternoon in formation work. Two men were watched carefully, Jim Morrow and Tom Kendrick, both of whom substituted last year. Morrow has been transferred from halfback to fullback, and reminds the students of the wonderful Tex Richards of a few years back. Kendrick is being boomed for Bob Peck's place whenever occasion arises, and he is expected to be a good substitute for the all-American centre. Two Pittsburgh high school boys, Cliff Brown and Jimmy McIntyre give promise of becoming first-class linemen.

Owing to the fact that the University of Buffalo canceled the first game, the season opening is delayed until Oct. 6, when Westminster College will help Pitt start hostilities for the season.

PLAYER HURT FIRST DAY.

Webb, Stevens Football Veteran, Breaks Ankle at Initial Practice.

The Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J., football team held its initial practice yesterday afternoon on Stevens Field, and thirty candidates reported to Coach John Rogers. The men were divided into three squads. Recruits were instructed in tackling, punting, and some light scrimmaging. Arthur Webb, one of last year's veterans, received a broken ankle in a scrimmage, and he is not expected to get back in the lineup for three weeks. The Stevens team will play its first game of the season with Haverford, at Haverford, Penn., on Oct. 7.

Thorpe to Coach St. John's Prep.

Tom Thorpe, the well-known Columbia University football player, signed yesterday a contract to coach the St. John's Prep School eleven for the coming year. Negotiations with Thorpe had been pending for some time. It is expected that with Thorpe in charge of gridiron affairs St. John's will become a factor in the fight for the interscholastic championship.

TWO CHANGES MADE IN HARVARD ELEVEN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 25.—All of the Harvard football players who took part in the Colby game were out on the field today. There was no scrimmage, but a long session of position coaching followed an hour at the locker building blackboard, where the plays for the week were outlined and the faults of Saturday's contest discussed.

In the signal drill Coach Leary made two shifts in the first team. Phinney, a 170-pound end from last year's freshmen, who showed a disposition to get into every play leading up to Harvard's touchdown against Colby, was put at left end in place of Limens. Lovell at left tackle was replaced by Caner, one of last year's substitutes, who has come back to weight after his hard lawn tennis season. Sam Felton and Tack Hardwick were out coaching the kickers and the backfield men.

The tackling was so poor Saturday that the players had a longer session than usual at the dummies. Batchelder and Willcox were on the sidelines, although not dressed to play, but Gardner probably will be out a week. More than seventy-five candidates for the freshman team reported today and the material appears unusually good.

CHARLES IN TIGER LINE-UP.

LAKE MINNEWASKA, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Mike Charles, a former interscholastic track and football star of New York, was in the first line-up of the Tiger eleven in the scrimmage practice this afternoon and opened the eyes of coaches and players alike by his brilliant defensive work. Charles was at left guard in the place of Bob Nourse and shattered nearly every play that was directed at his side of the line and managed to get a good number on the other side of the centre besides.

Most of the work of the coaches today was given over to perfecting a series of plays that will be used in the Holy Cross games on Saturday. Driggs, Moore, and Brown worked in the 'Varsity back field this afternoon with Ames at quarter. It is this combination that will probably take the field against Holy Cross. Dave Tibbott, a half back, and Halsey, a tackle, were out in uniforms today, but it is hardly probable that either of these men will be in condition to be used Saturday.

FORDHAM IN GOOD SHAPE.

Squad Shows Power in Practice for Lafayette.

Aided by the best football weather experienced so far this season, Frank Gargan drove the Fordham gridiron aspirants through the roughest workout of the year yesterday. The drill lasted for three hours. The squad appears in fine shape for the opening game of the season at Easton against Lafayette on Saturday. Red Mulcahy, who was put on the hospital list with a sprained wrist a week ago, took his place at full back on the regular back field for the first hour. After he had been thoroughly drilled in all the formations he was excused from practice. The coaches at Fordham have been depending on him against Lafayette as a result of the line-plunging power he showed in the early scrimmages and are taking no chances of his being hurt before Saturday.

Two welcome additions were made to the squad yesterday when Connolly and Graney, a brace of former Syracuse students, showed in uniform. Graney played tackle on the up-State scrub team a year ago and is expected to prove a strong candidate for tackle at Fordham, while Connolly was rated as one of the best ends on the Syracuse freshman team.

The scrimmage yesterday was started by the first kick-off of the season on Fordham Field. McNamara, who directed the 'Varsity, drove the ball, while Morcaldi was moved back from the regulars to quarter back on the scrub. No attempts were made at scoring across the line, although several goals were kicked from the field with Callan, Fitzpatrick, and McNamara doing the work.

Columbia Tug-of-War Friday.

The tug-of-war, first of the annual Fall underclass clashes between the Sophomores and Freshmen of Columbia University, will be held on South Field Friday afternoon. According to the traditional rules, the time of each pull will be five minutes, and the victorious class must win two out of three endeavors.

LEONARD DEFEATS TILLMAN.

Harlem Lightweight Has Hard Fight in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 25.—Benny Leonard of Harlem was the victor over Johnny Tillman, the Western lightweight, in a six-round bout at the Olympia A. A. tonight. The bout was fast and every minute was crowded with excitement. Tillman gave Leonard the hardest fight he has encountered in any of his bouts here. Tillman stood up against Leonard, and not once during the fray did he show any inclination to give ground. The Westerner took a beating, but was not disgraced by any means. Leonard staggered Tillman in the sixth round with a sharp left hook on the jaw, but Tillman retained his footing and at the finish was fighting back.

Boxing Bouts Tonight.

Pioneer S. C.—Joe Lynch vs. Jack Sharkey; Benny McCoy vs. Billy Fitzsimmons; both ten-round bouts. One six and three four-round exhibitions also.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25.—Charlie McCourt of Pittsburgh, the interstate three-cushion billiard champion, lined up against Hugh Heal of Toledo tonight in a three-night match of 150 points for the title, a $1,000 diamond emblem, and a side bet of $250, and when the first night's play ended the Pittsburgh boy had a slight advantage, the score being 50 to 46. It required ninety-seven innings to complete the play.

Heal had the highest run of the match, a 6 in the ninety-first inning, and also came across with a run of 5 in the fifty-fourth inning. McCourt's best run was a 4 in the fifty-ninth inning, and at the end of the tenth inning Heal had 7 and McCourt 6.

The exponents of the three-rail game were very close until the thirty-fifth inning, when McCourt began to nurse his balls, play safe, and by careful work eased away from the Toledo man gradually, until at the fiftieth inning the champion had a lead of 10 points, the score being 28 to 18.

In the latter part of the game Heal improved, and while McCourt had a lead of 11 points at the eighty-eighth inning the Ohio player got within two points of his man at the ninety-fifth, with the score 48 to 46. McCourt then ran out his string of 50.

Mrs. Barger Wallach Among Those Who Qualify on Longwood Courts.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—A feature of the first and second rounds of the women's open tennis tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club today was the elimination of Miss Marion Fenno, of this city, who was defeated by Miss Gwendolin Brandon, also of Boston, heretofore unknown in championship competition.

Miss Evelyn Sears, Boston, and Mrs. Barger Wallach, New York, both former national champions, qualified for the third round. Others to qualify included Miss Edith Rotch, Miss Eleanora Sears, Mrs. A. D. Shurtleff and Miss Alice Cunningham of this city, Miss Ina Kissell and Mrs. Florence Ballin of New York, and Mrs. H. H. Smith of Philadelphia.

FIRST CHOICES WIN ON COLUMBUS TRACK

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 25.—Three first choices won handily at this afternoon's Grand Circuit races when Mabel Trask, Early Don, and Queen Hal in turn took the Chamber of Commerce trotting stake, the Devereux trot, and the 2:15 pace's second division in straight heats. All McKinney, the other favorite, won the opening heat of the 2:15 pace's first division but acted so badly in the second one that he was distanced.

Early Don's victory was his third of the year in the stake race under the Devereux plan. The real contest in this race was for the place. Until well down in the stretch in the third heat Brisac of the Murphy Stable seemed to have the best chance. Then a break put him out of it and Bescia followed Early Don home, taking the second part of the stake away from Grandchimes.

Hal Connor, after All McKinney's collapse in the second heat of the 2:15 pace's first division, started winning in the third heat and was not interrupted until he had the race settled. He was fourth choice in original betting.

Queen Hal won as she pleased each of her heats of the 2:15's second division. Horace McKerron's right to the place was disputed by Major A. until the final mile was nearly over. Then the latter broke, but Miss Patsy came on and forced Horace McKerron to a whipping finish. The summaries:

FLITTERGOLD WINS AT LAST.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 25.—G. A. Muller's Flittergold, with top weight, won the handicap for 3-year-olds and upward, the feature of this afternoon's racing. There was an unusually large crowd at the track for a Monday, and the fact that it was the beginning of the last week of the meeting no doubt had something to do with helping to swell the attendance.

The son of Hastings and Fairy Gold has been particularly unfortunate in his last four starts, in that he has been second each time, losing first money only by a head. Today nothing could stop Flittergold. Although he won only by a length, he was well in hand at the finish and was really never extended. Venetie, from the stable of P. Sheridan, which was running her first race in this part of the country, showed plenty of courage in a hard drive, but in spite of Warscher's strenuous efforts, was unable to catch the winner, and had to be content with second place. Wooden Shoes received the short end of the purse, being half a length in front of Air Man.

August Belmont's Serenest easily won the race for two-year-old fillies. The Trap Rock youngster showed a fine turn of speed, and although almost last to get away she was soon up with the pace.

HARD WORK FOR N. Y. U.

Football Men Receive the Liveliest Drill of Season.

Action was the watchword of the daily football practice at New York University yesterday. In the longest practice yet held Coach Eustis put forty-odd candidates through the hardest drill of the season. While the drill yesterday was varied, the only tackling was on the dummy.

Several of last year's 'Varsity were in evidence for the first time yesterday. Jordan, last year's centre, and McCulloch, one of the ends, were among them. Carroll, one of last year's ineligibles and a promising end, also reported. The new men included Buckley, formerly of Dover High School, a quarter back candidate who showed lots of snap; Berghorn of Dickinson High School, also a candidate for the position of field general; Jenkins, a husky guard from Mount Vernon High School; Styles, formerly of Annapolis, a tackle; and Traina, a new man in the game.

RIVAL THE GERMANS AT CHEMISTRY SHOW

WONDERS DONE IN 2 YEARS

The second annual National Exposition of Chemical Industries was opened at the Grand Central Palace yesterday afternoon, and for a week New Yorkers will have an opportunity to see in the 200 exhibits that crowd the large hall evidence of the amazing advance that has been made in the chemical industries of this country since the European war began. Officers of the American Chemical Society, which is holding its fifty-third annual meeting simultaneously with the exposition, asserted that it was the largest chemical demonstration that had ever been made anywhere.

Distinguished chemists and scientists from all over the United States attended the opening ceremonies. They all agreed that the war, by forcing the United States to become independent of foreign countries, had caused this country to make in two years an advance in its chemical industries that it had taken other lands two decades to accomplish. And throughout the hall the evidence of this fact attracted interested groups of spectators.

One of the exhibits that attracted the attention of laymen to whom a technical knowledge of chemistry was foreign was that of glassware. Here is shown a new sort of glass, developed in America in the last year. It is so "tough," that is, its expansion under heat is so small, that it is said to be possible to use it for frying pans. Another glass, imported formerly from Germany, is now used in making incandescent bulbs, and is designed to stand sudden changes in temperature. Heretofore it had been thought that potash was a necessary ingredient of such glass. The war cut off the supply of potash which was imported from Germany, and since then the General Electric Company has produced a new glass which is said to replace the old in every way.

Edison an Exhibitor.

Thomas A. Edison, who before the war had depended on Germany for many of the chemicals used in his laboratories, started early in the European conflict to make products needed urgently for his own industries. He succeeded so well that at this year's exposition Mr. Edison is exhibiting many chemicals and intermediates used in the making of dyestuffs. Another significant exhibit of dyestuff intermediates is made by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company. This concern is just starting to put chemicals and intermediates on the market on an enormous scale. It was understood that as soon as war orders for explosives permitted many of the du Pont plants would be put to use manufacturing not only intermediates, but probably colors as well.

The new American company which plans to produce synthetic indigo is capitalized at $6,000,000. Its officers announced yesterday that it would be ready by Jan. 1 to turn out 5,000 pounds of indigo daily, with a greatly increased output later on. This was the Dow Chemical Company, which has erected a large plant at Midland, Mich. Herbert H. Dow, President of the company said yesterday that the constituents used in making indigo were already being manufactured at the Midland plant. In this connection it was pointed out yesterday that one of the great German dyestuff concerns spent years and a sum aggregating $5,000,000 before it was able to put synthetic indigo on the market.

Moving Pictures of Mining Exhibits.

Also of special interest to the layman is a series of moving pictures which form part of the United States Government and other exhibits. The Government's Bureau of Mines furnished eleven films. The films, in general, show how the raw products used in the chemical industries are extracted, how magnetic iron ore is mined, how cement is manufactured, the process of zinc mining, milling and smelting, and the mining and extraction of radium from carnotite.

Dr. Charles H. Herty of the University of North Carolina, President of the American Chemical Society, spoke of the chemical wonders wrought in this country the last two years, in his opening address, and he laid special stress on the possibilities which the future held for greater development.

"While the growth of chemical industries in the last year has been marvelous," he said, "we chemists must bear in mind that, if this growth is to reach its full fruition, co-operation along the broadest lines is necessary. Germany has already publicly announced the unification of all the separate establishments of its great dyestuffs industry. So, too, have we learned recently of the international co-operation between the chemists of England, France, Russia, and Italy. The American chemical manufacturer had been characterized by a rather unusual amount of secretiveness regarding his operations. The day has arrived for broader policies in which the forces of this nation can work harmoniously together to the end that the products of American chemical industry may not only fully supply our domestic needs, but meet in fair competition the products of all other countries in the markets of the world."

Professor Ira Remsen, former President of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, now head of the chemical department of the university, and one of the foremost of American authorities and authors on the science of chemistry, spoke briefly. Dr. Remsen said that the relation between the man who devotes himself exclusively to the science of chemistry and the man who makes a business of chemistry should be a close relation and that the American industries could be developed through close co-operation between the scientists and industries.

Thomas J. Keenan, Secretary of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry, which is also holding its meeting simultaneously with the exposition, told of the improvement that the science of chemistry has made in the manufacture of paper.

"The latest census of manufacturers shows that in America the manufacture of paper is second in importance only to the steel industry," Mr. Keenan said. "The total invested capital is estimated at $500,000,000, while the annual value of the manufactured product of paper and pulp amounts to $350,000,000.

"Promising developments in the Southern States through the application of chemistry to the recovery of paper fibres from waste wood should be mentioned. Kraft paper is now made from it to the amount of some 60,000 tons annually. Immense quantities of yellow pine waste lumber are available in Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, and other Southern States for the manufacture of pulp by the sulphate process, which yields the strong brown paper called 'kraft.' A beginning in the development of this industry has been made in the South, and it is expected to make us independent of other countries so far as this class of paper is concerned."

Today's program in connection with the exposition includes a general meeting of the American Chemical Society at Horace Mann Auditorium, Columbia University, at which Health Commissioner Dr. Haven Emerson, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia and others will speak. In the same auditorium a meeting will be held in the afternoon, at which Brig. Gen. William Crozier, Chief of Ordnance, U. S. A.; Gifford Pinchot, Dr. Herty, and others will read papers on "Chemistry and the National Welfare," "Chemistry and Conservation," "Expanding Relations of Chemistry in America," and similar topics.

IMPORTS OF COCOA DOUBLED

Disarrangements of former markets resulting from the European war are expanding enormously this country's position as an importer and manufacturer of cocoa and chocolate products. This development was emphasized in the Custom House report of imports of general merchandise for the week ended Sept. 16, just issued by the port authorities.

General imports entered for consumption at New York for that week amounted to $18,611,870, of which crude cocoa entries had a value of $1,516,207, representing 11,395,721 pounds. The unusually heavy imports of cocoa were explained in the trade as due to the fact that the usual European markets were greatly restricted, or, as in the cases of Germany and Austria-Hungary, wholly shut off except for such meagre supplies as might find their way through contiguous neutral countries. Producers of the raw commodity were forced to turn to this country as an outlet for their product.

Notwithstanding the phenomenal entries, American manufacturers, it was said, were able to handle the crude product as it arrived and to increase domestic sales of finished cocoa and chocolate products, besides finding lucrative fields overseas for the goods. In the week last reported Ecuador led as a raw cocoa exporter to New York, the value of shipments being $583,644. San Domingo came next with $428,479, and Brazil was third with $345,997. British West Africa sent raw cocoa worth $27,038. Total imports of raw cocoa into the United States in the fiscal year ended June 30 last reached $8,319,036, covering 55,832,004 pounds. The fiscal year before such entries had a value of only $3,471,218, representing 26,812,500 pounds.

CONSUL'S WINE AT AUCTION.

Barrel of It, Refused by Oustinoff, Will Be Sold for Duty.

Failure on the part of Michael M. Oustinoff, Imperial Russian Consul General in New York, to pay duty on a barrel of wine sent to him by an admirer abroad, resulted in the spirits being listed in 777 lots of unclaimed and abandoned goods which Collector Dudley Field Malone will offer at public auction at the Seizure Room, Appraiser's Annex, 612 Washington Street, on Oct. 3.

When the wine arrived it was found that the barrel contained eight gallons. As the wine had a year to age while in the custody of the Government, officials said they were hopeful of getting a better price than the value returned at the time of examination—$3.20.

Another foreign consular officer who refused to bother with duty payments was Sir Walter Courtenay Bennet, formerly British Consul General here. Sir Walter retired about a year ago. The merchandise consigned to him was set down with the meagre description, "Printed matter, foreign value $1.75, domestic value $2."

Lot No. 777 is the most valuable single offering. The only mark on the package is "Mrs. Oliver White." The contents include, according to the official return, "One mesh bag, damaged; one vanity box, one hatpin, two hairpins, and one watch chain." The Appraiser returned the domestic value as $2.984.

Dry and "wet" goods figure liberally in the offerings, the last named class comprising many lots of Scotch whisky and brandy. The auction will start at 10 A. M. of the day of sale, but persons desiring to inspect the merchandise may do so on Thursday and Friday.

SALE BILL NEAR ADOPTION.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 25, (via London.)—The Government's West Indian bill today passed the second reading in the Landsthing. The Moderate leader, who addressed the Landsthing, said that if his party's amendments were adopted and the referendum and political elections arranged, the members of the present Parliament could say to the electors:

"Now we have approved the sale, and if you want to do the same it will be settled."

The Moderate leader added that he regarded the sale's approval by the present Parliament as certain. The Premier agreed with the Moderate opposition that the question about the political elections must be definitely cleared now, and said that he understood that the Conservative silence on this point was an indication that the party did not want the elections.

The Conservative leader only replied that his party wanted to keep all the possibilities open until the Parliamentary Commission finished its work. He said the Conservatives favored the idea of holding a referendum among the West Indian population, but had withdrawn this point, owing to the Government's earnest request.

The Premier finally declared that he was convinced that the electors clearly understood the sale question, but that if it were not possible to bring about political tranquillity in any other way, the elections should be held as quickly as possible. At last the Moderate amendments were thrown out and the Conservative proposal, according to which the Government's bill would be limited only to the establishment of a parliamentary commission, was adopted.

The third reading of the Government's bill will take place tomorrow, and the majority in the lower house is sure to adopt the Government's proposal in its original shape.

The negotiations thereafter will be taken up by a joint committee of the members of both houses, and must be finished by Saturday, when the session closes.

After a public meeting both houses were invited by the Government to a confidential conference, during which Foreign Minister Scavenius communicated the progress of the statesmen's meeting in Christiania. He was heartily congratulated on the satisfying result, even by the prominent members of the Moderate opposition.

BRITAIN REGRETS SEIZURES.

Gives Assurances That Far Eastern Goods Will Not Be Molested.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Informal expressions of regret have been made by Great Britain to the State Department for the seizure at Hongkong of American-owned goods consigned to Manila on board the steamers Chinese Prince, Kafue, and Aymeric. It was learned today that in response to a vigorous protest by the United States, assurances had been given that there would be no more such seizures.

The British action first was explained on the ground that the goods were consigned to blacklisted firms. Later it was claimed that several of the firms were ringleaders in a junta alleged to be seeking to cause a rebellion in India.

The seizure of packages from the Chinese Prince caused bitter feeling in Manila and a maximum fine was levied on her when she entered port with her manifest short. The fine was later reduced to $25,000, and finally rebated when the missing goods arrived on another ship.

More Than 700 Enter Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 25.—A freshman class estimated to number more than 700 was on hand for the opening of the 281st year at Harvard University today. Students were required to give written information as to whether they had been exposed to infantile paralysis, and precautions were taken to prevent any possible infection. The principal innovation this year is the department of military science, headed by Captain Constant Cordier, U. S. A. From the classes will be recruited the Harvard regiment. The increased tuition fee of $200 goes into effect this year.

AUGUST EXPORTS PASS HALF BILLION

TIDE OF GOLD FLOWS IN

Decrease of Imports Swells Month's Trade Balance to $311,000,000—Year's Exports $4,750,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—For the first time in history the value of exports from the United States in any one month has passed the half-billion dollar mark. This is a record for all countries as well as the United States. The tremendous total was achieved in August, when the value of exports was $510,000,000, or $35,000,000 more than the previous high record, which was established in May, and $45,000,000 higher than the June total.

This unprecedented exportation is due to the war in Europe. Enormous shipments from the United States are made necessary by the lack of production in the belligerent countries, and the demand for war munitions and the materials of which they are made, as well as foodstuffs, horses, and other products of the United States.

There was a decrease in imports into the United States in August, and this has swelled the balance of trade in favor of this country. Imports in that month amounted in value to $199,247,391, or a decline of $47,000,000, as compared with June, the record month. The value of imports in August, however, was greater than any prior August.

The exports for the year ended with August amounted to $4,750,000,000, and the imports $2,300,000,000. Both totals are far in excess of those for a similar period in any previous year. Of the August imports 66.5 per cent. entered free of duty compared with 67.5 per cent. in August, 1915.

The favorable trade balance for August was $311,000,000, comparing with an export balance of $119,000,000 in August, 1915, and an import balance of $19,000,000 in August, 1914. For the twelve months to Aug. 31, 1916, the export balance was $2,465,000,000, as against $1,363,000,000 in the preceding year and $374,000,000 two years ago.

The net inward gold movement for the month of August was $29,000,000, and for the year, $410,000,000, a record total. Last year the net inward gold movement was $146,000,000, and two years ago a net outward movement of $95,000,000.

Gold imports in August were $41,238,716, compared with $61,641,191 in August, 1915, and $3,045,219 in August, 1914. Gold exports in August were $11,780,129, against $1,128,428 in August, 1915, and $18,125,617 in August, 1914.

The year's gold imports were $518,451,553, as against $244,035,950 last year and $59,312,328 two years ago; while gold exports in 1916 were $108,104,549, compared with $97,749,270 last year, and $153,984,944 for the twelve months ended with August, 1914.

The extraordinary figures for August compare thus with those of preceding months:

July	445,561,910	182,722,938
June	464,784,318	245,795,488
May	474,803,637	229,188,957
March	410,742,034	213,589,785
February	401,783,974	193,935,117
January	330,036,410	184,350,942
Total 8 months	$3,436,280,815	$1,667,066,965
Same eight months:
In 1915	$2,232,758,886	$1,150,784,196

The total of imports and exports for the eight months ended with August exceed the trade of any full year in the past with the single exception of 1915. This appears from the following comparison:

	Total Foreign Trade.	Excess of Exports.
Full years:
1915	5,329,521,248	1,772,809,538
1913	4,276,614,772	691,421,812

FRANCE'S TRADE LEAPS.

Increase in Exports Shown Despite War Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The foreign trade of France, despite war conditions, according to a dispatch received today from Consul General Thackara at Paris, has increased at an enormous rate in the past two years, mainly in imports, but also in exports along certain lines. The returns for the first eight months of 1916, just footed up, show that on the price basis of 1914, before the war began, there were exports to the value of $433,056,102, as compared with $371,033,429 in 1915, and imports to the value of $1,254,121,913, as compared with $980,186,012 in the preceding year.

Exports of food products were valued at $54,803,894, against $71,090,006; industrial materials, $88,683,693, against $79,863,014; manufactures, $259,233,354, against $199,744,385; postal packages, $30,335,161, against $20,336,024. Imports of food products for the eight months amounted to $354,745,001, against $294,696,911 in 1915; industrial materials, $515,956,357, against $384,621,594; manufactures, $383,420,555, against $300,867,507.

SUFFRAGE FIGHT IN G. O. P.

May Be Split on Indorsement at Saratoga Convention.

The Republican State Executive Committee yesterday decided to recommend to the unofficial convention at Saratoga next Thursday that Nathan L. Miller, of Cortland, formerly a Judge of the Court of Appeals, be made chairman. State Chairman Tanner and Senator Mills will have charge of drafting the party platform. Controller Prendergast is going over the financial plank.

There is a prospect of a fight upon the question of indorsing woman's suffrage. William Barnes, Senator Elon R. Brown and other members of the Old Guard are opposed to going on record for unrestricted suffrage, believing that the matter is covered in the National platform.

ANOTHER BOMB IN CHICAGO.

To Have Military Training Course.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25.—Addressing the 3,000 students of the University of Pittsburgh at the opening of the Fall term today, Chancellor S. B. McCormick said that military training would be established at the university under a regular army officer as soon as details could be worked out with the War Department.

MILITARY DRILL FOR POLICE.

Woods Wants Knowledge of Tactics Made Part of Examinations.

Commissioner Woods has called to the attention of the Municipal Civil Service Commission the fact that Sergeants should possess an elementary knowledge of military tactics. In view of this, every member of the force who is going to compete in the examinations for this grade should at least, it is suggested, familarize himself with the school of the soldier, so as to be able to drill and instruct a squad in close order.

Commissioner Woods also believes that as the automobile is entering so greatly into the routine of police work—half of the alarms sent out from headquarters relate to automobiles—a policeman should know enough about the external parts of motor cars to be able to describe one if he cannot exactly recognize its make.

Members of the Motor Cycle Squad have complained for a long time that the blue police forms they wear is not suited for their work, as it is quickly stained by grease and dust, and cannot be washed without serious damage to the cloth. The men have suggested that United States Army khaki be substituted for the cloth as more practical. Two members of the squad have been ordered by Commissioner Woods to wear khaki uniforms for thirty days to test its serviceability. If the results are satisfactory the army khaki will be adopted by the squad.

POLICE LESSONS IN MOVIES.

Department Pictures Show How to Prevent Accidents and Crimes.

The Police Department is soon to make use of the moving picture theatre to teach the public lessons in the prevention of accident and crime. Photographers of the department have been busy taking pictures in east side streets, illustrating the danger to pedestrians in crossing busy thoroughfares and showing how such dangers may be avoided. Other photographs have been taken at Headquarters, illustrating different kinds of burglaries, and how to prevent them.

These pictures are to be stereopticon views, as the cost of putting such moving pictures on the screen would be prohibitive for the department.

English Bishop Here for Convention

Bishop Montgomery, who is the delegate appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Protestant Episcopal Conference to be held in St. Louis next month, arrived yesterday from Liverpool on the Cunarder Saxonia, accompanied by his daughter. He was for many years the Bishop of Tasmania, Australia, and is now the Secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. He said he would remain in New York and vicinity ten days as the guest of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and Mrs. Archibald Russell of Princeton, N. J. The Bishop will preach at St. Thomas's Church on Fifth Avenue next Sunday morning and will deliver an address in the afternoon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

2,000,000-SHARE DAY CLOGS WALL STREET

EARLY GAINS LOST AT CLOSE

Lights were flashing brightly in brokerage houses clogged with business long past midnight this morning and the employes of the Stock Exchange Clearing House had given up all hope of finishing their work in time for breakfast. Both brokers' clerks and Stock Exchange employes were working at top pressure to clear the more than 2,000,000 shares which the tape recorded yesterday in the biggest day's business since March 14, 1907.

Yesterday's turnover, as reported by the messengers on the floor to the ticker operators, amounted to 2,317,010 shares. This compares with 2,565,070 recorded March 14, 1907, but on that day the trading was principally between the big men of Wall Street dealing in many thousands of shares at a time. Yesterday the outside public with its transactions in more modest volume furnished the bulk of the business and the number of shares missed by the messengers must have been much greater. Odd lot business and sales on stop loss orders, both unrecorded on the ticker, may have combined with the missed sales to bring the total for the day above the three million mark.

So great was the desire to buy and sell stocks that the officers of the Clearing House were obliged to extend from 4 to 5 o'clock the time within which brokers must present their tickets showing the day's transactions. Up to that hour scores of messengers, marshaled in lines by guards of the Exchange, clogged the hallways as never before.

610,800 Shares of Steel Sold.

The time was extended because brokers on the floor found it a physical impossibility to report back to the brokers from whom they had received the thousands of orders executed by them in the afternoon. It was among the specialists in Steel common that the greatest confusion existed. Sales of this stock as reported on the tape amounted to 610,800 shares.

The floor brokers specializing in odd lots were literally swamped with business. One of them said after the close that he didn't pretend to know where he stood, and he doubted if any other of the odd-lot brokers knew whether they had bought or sold on balance.

The public outside New York sent in by wire a vast amount of business. Obviously the speculative imagination had been fired by steadily increasing strength of the market from the time of the Maine election, two weeks before, by the impressive advance of Steel common to the accompaniment of reports of increases in previously unprecedented earnings, and by the record order for 200,000 long tons of copper placed by the Allies Saturday.

In the swarm of shouting brokers around the Steel post at the opening the stock sold at prices ranging as much as a point apart simultaneously. The best that the recorders for the ticker could do was to bunch these opening transactions in one lot of 25,000 shares at prices ranging between 118 and 119, that is, 1 to 2 points up from Saturday's close. Wide and advancing openings were also made in Anaconda, Inspiration, and other copper stocks supposed to benefit largely from the fact that Europe has taken in one swoop a fifth of next year's American copper production. The trading in the first hour was at the rate of more than 3,000,000 shares a day. The tape sent out a record of 627,000 shares for the hour.

The million share mark was reached at 11:35 o'clock. At the end of the third hour 1,500,000 shares had been recorded. The pace then slackened. Before this stocks had struck their highest points of the day. Steel common had sold at 120, surpassing its previous high record by 2½ points and 13 points above last week's low. Utah at 99⅞ showed a gain of 14⅝ points over the low of last week. By the same comparison Smelters was up 10½ points, Central Leather 12 points, Inspiration 8 points, Maxwell Motors 8⅛ points, and Republic Steel 6⅝ points.

Next to Steel common the copper shares led in activity as well as strength. While the turnover in none of them compared with the 610,800 shares in Steel, there was business in 109,400 shares of Inspiration, 80,700 shares of Smelters, and 189,800 shares of Inspiration. Reading had a day of 136,200 shares, and Union Pacific 64,800.

In the cessation of activity at noon floor professionals, previously kept from short-selling by the great strength of the public buying, plucked up courage to sell a few stocks, feeling for the top. The market took their offerings well at first, but yielded in spots, as the selling gained in confidence, and in the fourth hour a few stop-loss orders were encountered. Professionals on and off the floor, as by common impulse, started a vigorous raid upon it.

The raid accomplished no great results other than to show that the force of the buying movement had been spent until the last twenty minutes. Steel common at that time had receded to 118½, but still showed a substantial gain over Saturday's close. Anaconda was likewise down from Saturday, but up on the day. Stop-loss orders in both stocks were then caught in great number and in large aggregate amount. The market seethed as it had in the first hour. Stocks dropped into the laps of the professionals as if shaken from a plum tree.

Early Gains Lost.

In five minutes Steel common broke from 118¼ to 114¾ and closed at 115. In little more time Anaconda was selling at 96½, as compared with its previous high of 102. The breaks of more than 5 points in each of these speculative favorites were naturally followed by sharp declines in the other active stocks. The tape was so far behind the market on the floor that in the brokerage houses the boards showed Steel at one time selling above 118 when the actual price on the floor, sent over by telephone, was 116. As in the morning there had been something like a bear panic, so in the afternoon there was a bull panic in the brokerage houses which permit their customers to pyramid and trade on weak margins.

There was a trifling rally just before the close, some of the professionals covering, but closing prices were close to the low of the day, and showed that practically all of the early gains had been lost. The twenty-five statistical industrials lost a little ground on the day. The average price of the twenty-five statistical rails was higher at the close than on Saturday. The average price of the fifty stocks was .10 of a point higher. At the high point of the day the average of the fifty had established a new high record at 95.31, which was 1.48 points up from Saturday. From the high to the low in the railroads the decline had been .87 of a point, in the industrials 3.22 points.

BREAD RISE TO BE GENERAL.

Other Bakers Will Follow Lead of Ward Co.—Women Indorse It.

It was announced yesterday that other large baking firms in New York would follow the action of the Ward Baking Company and advance the price of the 5-cent loaf of bread to 6 cents. There will still be a 5-cent loaf, but smaller in size and unwrapped. For the present the price of the 10-cent loaf will not be changed. John F. Hildebrand, President of the Shults Bread Company, said that the cost of raw materials had forced the bakers to take action.

The Housewives' League met yesterday at their headquarters at 25 West Forty-fifth Street to consider the action of the bakers in raising the price of the 5-cent loaf. The league passed a resolution addressed to President Wilson, demanding that he take action to conserve the national food supply.

Mrs. Julian Heath, Chairman of the National Bread Committee of the league, said that a thorough investigation had shown that the bakers could not do otherwise than raise the price of their commodity. She said the league would send a delegation to President Wilson and to Charles E. Hughes to learn what each meant to do in the matter of conserving the food supply.

BUS STRIKERS SENTENCED.

Two Get 30 Days Each for Attacking Chauffeur Who Wouldn't Quit.

John Lawlor, a chauffeur, of 1,480 Park Avenue, and Patrick Farrell of 12 East 116th Street, conductor, both ex-employes of the Fifth Avenue Bus Company, were convicted of assault yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions before Justices McInerney, Freschi, and Salmon. They were sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse.

"You men certainly had the right to strike," said the Court, "but it is no less certain that you had no right to interfere with any other person who wished to remain at work. It is the duty of the Court to inflict a prison sentence in this case in the hope that it may act as a deterrent to strikers who may in the future be tempted to violence to gain their ends."

While the strike on the bus line was in progress last June, the defendants attempted to persuade Henry Pieper of 164 East Ninety-second Street, to join the strike and, when he refused, assaulted him.

Wife Sued Fourth Time for Divorce.

Percy E. Anderson, head of the wholesale drug house of P. E. Anderson & Co., had filed in the Supreme Court his fourth suit for a divorce from Mrs. Emily B. Anderson. Mrs. Anderson applied yesterday for alimony pending the suit. The last previous action was tried on June 29 last. Justice Delehanty then decided against the husband.

That Knit Goods Scarcity.

Now customers of retail stores are getting evidence from personal experience that there is basis for the stories of a scarcity of knit goods. The drop in temperature yesterday sent a number of persons to shops in quest of underwear. They discovered in some instances that there was an absence of full lines of these goods and the usual variety was wanting. The explanation given by the salesmen was the difficulty in getting deliveries from the mills. In one large shop a customer was shown a sample, not his size, and was told his order would be filled as soon as the goods arrived. The salesman, however, could not tell him how speedily that would be.

* * *

Eastern Rubber Prices Drop.

Prices quoted in this market for plantation rubber slumped about half a cent to a cent a pound yesterday under an easier feeling in London. First latex was quoted here at 60 cents a pound and smoked sheets at 59½ cents. The Brazilian rubbers remained firm at previous levels. Up-river fine was held at 73 cents for spot shipment and 72 cents for October. Up-river coarse brought 43½ cents when it sold, while for upper Caucho ball sellers wanted 44 cents. Trading was not active, and lower prices on the eastern rubbers are looked for, in fact, if local quotations are not supported by those current in the English market.

Plans for Heavyweight Season.

Not a little interest attaches to preparations in the piece goods trade for the coming heavyweight season. All indications point to much higher prices, mainly because there is very little wool owned at anything but prevailing quotations. It is thought quite likely in the trade that the general makeshift to meet the situation will be to reduce the weight of goods or else use more cotton. This plan, if adopted, would mean that very little variance will be made in the weights of cloths for the Fall season next year over the medium weight goods sold for the Spring season.

Burlaps Higher at Calcutta.

Cables received from Calcutta yesterday in the local burlap trade told of an advance of 16 points on practically all light and heavy goods. This rise puts the figures at which goods are quoted here lower than the cost of replacement. The cables from Dundee apparently did not give much that was new. No quotation was available on jute, which last stood at £34 for this month's shipment. There was little doing in this market yesterday, most of the inquiry there being for goods at prices less than holders would sell. Quotations, which were more or less nominal as a result, differed somewhat in various parts of the trade, but these were average prices asked for standard forty-inch goods: 7½-ounce, 6.90c; 8-ounce, 7c; 10-ounce, 8.25c, and 10½-ounce, 8.40c.

Some Shoes Are Hard to Get.

Not the least of the shoes difficult to get in this market at the present time are misses' and children's. As was predicted some time ago by a trade authority, manufacturers of children's footwear are now giving their attention to women's goods. As a result, retailers are advised to place their business early on shoes for children. Owing to a sudden and big demand for gray suede shoes, there is a scarcity of them also. Fairly dark gray shades of suede uppers on black vamps, or shoes entirely of this material, are expected to be good for some time to come. Men's Fall footwear is said to be characterized not only by more than the usual amount of style, but by utility as well.

Small Converters Being Hurt.

The small converter is still having a hard time of it as a result of the reported inability of the cotton cloth bleacheries to make much headway in catching up on deliveries. Many of the bleacheries are said still to be from two to six months behind, with the smaller converters getting the long wait. This delay, it is said, gives these merchants a chance to turn their capital only twice a year, which is about as profitable for them as shutting up their offices entirely until the situation clears up. Some of the bleachers are said to be showing a spirit of independence that borders on arrogance. Incidentally prices on bleached cloths continue to go up. On Saturday notices were sent to the trade by the agent for one well-known brand announcing further rises of a quarter of a cent a yard on goods bearing that mark.

Activities of the Credit Men.

Plans have been completed for the annual Fall meeting and dinner of the New York Credit Men's Association. It is to be held at the Hotel Astor on Oct. 26 at 7 P. M., being preceded by a reception that will start an hour earlier. These are the speakers: Joseph W. Folk, General Counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission; Charles D. Joyce, President of the National Association of Credit Men, and Thomas M. Osborne. The Executive Committee has unanimously approved a recommendation of the Educational Committee that once a month "educational" meetings of the members of the association be held during the Fall, Winter, and Spring. It is proposed to have at each meeting one or two speakers who will talk on credit matters, these talks being followed by a general discussion.

To Have Salesmanship Club.

A movement is now under way in this city that has for its object the formation of a salesmanship club, the object of which will be to improve business by improving salesmanship. An Executive Committee composed of officials of prominent local business firms is helping the work along. According to the men back of the movement, there is to be no commercialism about the club. Its functions are to be educational, with a view to raising the morale of the individual and the ethics of the business of selling. An endeavor will be made to have salesmanship recognized as a profession, and there will also be an effort on the part of employers and executives interested in selling to eliminate the undesirable or "floater" element. The plan includes the securing of permanent quarters here and the formation of a luncheon club. The first organization meeting will be held tomorrow evening at the Hotel McAlpin.

Gray Goods Market Firm.

Prices continued firm in the local gray goods market yesterday, with the tendency strongly upward. Business was not over large, for which the nearness of the Jewish holidays was said to be responsible in part. The market is again assuming a position where spot and nearby deliveries are bringing better prices than contracts. Future business was done on 39-inch 68-72s yesterday at 7½ cents, but the mills were for the most part firm in their demands for 7⅝ cents for spots and nearbys. The same was true of 38½-inch 64-56s, which sold into 1917 at 6½ cents. Some houses were asking 5 7-16 cents for 39-inch 56-44s yesterday, and the selling price of 38½-inch 60-48s advanced to 5 13-16 cents. Coarse cottons were firm and, while a pretty fair business was done in them, there was not much feature to it. Closing printcloth prices were:

39-inch, 68-72s	7½c	38½-inch, 60-52s	6c
39-inch, 56-44s	5⅝c	38½-inch, 60-48s	5⅞c

Federal Official Collates Information for Growing Industry.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—One of the acknowledged elements of advantage in the establishment of the dyestuffs industry in the United States is full information of the extent and diversification of the industry both in the domestic supply and in the imported product. When the war cut off the European supply, mainly from Germany, American manufacturers, who were in position to take up the industry in its simpler lines, did not know how much of one color or another to produce.

The want thus defined by actual experience is to be supplied by the publication within a few weeks of a dyestuffs census by Dr. Thomas H. Norton of the Department of Commerce. Proofs of the forthcoming publication were open to inspection at the Department today. It will be in the form of a report on the dye industry in the United States, giving in detail information as to 5,674 different brands of synthetic dyes which were imported into the United States in 1913 and 1914, mainly from Germany.

Dr. Norton has gathered information as to the many thousands of dyes employed in the industries, the cost of raw materials and the prevailing prices. Dr. Norton disputes the statement that this country consumed only 20,000 tons of synthetic or coal tar dyes yearly. More than 25,000 tons annualy have been consumed, he says.

The census of the dye industry to supply this will furnish a complete list of all imported dyes, the domestic production of coal tar crudes, and interned mediates for the year prior to the war, and studies of prices of coal tar dyes.

The aniline industry, which began in 1910 with an output of 900 tons and now supplies 16,000 tons with 30 manufacturing plants, has been the leading dye industry of the United States. It now seems likely to be surpassed by the development of many lines of production.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Violent Reaction After Big Rise—Trading Heaviest in Nearly Ten Years.

The inevitable happened yesterday. After attaining the largest volume recorded in close to ten years, the market broke violently in the last half hour of trading. United States Steel, in which the dealings far exceed half a million shares, closed at a net loss of 2 points, after having soon after the opening shown an advance of 3 points. Many other stocks closed with losses which earlier in the session had shown big gains, but not all, by any means, were so unfortunate. A number retained substantial gains, despite the loss of much of the ground which had been won while prices were still in the ascendant.

Many who bought stocks yesterday morning did so against their better judgment. They felt that prices should react rather than go higher, but they were advancing, and it was a question of buying at advancing prices or of not buying at all. To many who had become enthused over speculation in the stock market the former seemed the better choice. And so they bought. It had been years since the Stock Exchange had witnessed a similarly precipitate plunging of traders. They bought heavily and of many things, crowding the facilities of the Stock Exchange in some stocks and producing activity such as had not been seen since the Spring of 1907. The sellers were the anxious ones then; yesterday the anxious ones were the buyers—they feared that the market was to go much higher and that they would be left behind. So they bought impetuously, almost blindly, favoring Steel first, for Steel has been prince of late; then the copper shares, and many others, not neglecting even the railroad stocks, though in these the number of issues favored by the buyers was relatively small.

But all the time the thought that a reaction was due was lurking in the minds of the speculators. They bought, but they put in stop orders close to the prices at which they bought. It was that, in part, which proved the market's undoing in the late afternoon, for as soon as the bears who raided the market reached a fair mass of stop orders they found it an easy matter to force prices lower. Each point decline brought more stock into the market. The bears succeeded so well that after fifteen minutes of the onslaught upon prices they had profits which looked very attractive to the bears, so long had they gone without profits. So they were quick to take back the stocks which they had sold. This brought a smart upturn before the close in Steel and in some other stocks which had declined violently. That, however, did not necessarily imply that the full force of the reaction had been felt. It hardly went far enough to sweep from the surface of the market all the froth which had been blown up by the big waves of speculation which for weeks had been rolling over the Stock Exchange.

What happened yesterday was inevitable. The only question had been when it would happen. This market has at last proved that it is like other markets Wall Street has known. Trading grows and prices rise as though they never meant to react, but they do react at last, and usually when many who ought to know better have reached the conclusion that, after all, "this market is different from others markets." Every market is different from every other market, but not in essentials; in those all markets are alike. Good should come of such a reaction as the market experienced yesterday. It should serve to sober somewhat the enthusiasm of speculators, which was leading them into excesses; it should put new emphasis on the wisdom of protecting commitments in the market with large margins, and should make people think before buying. Many of them did not do so yesterday.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Steel and Copper Are Leading Features on American Advices.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Although dealers on the Stock Exchange were largely occupied with discussing the air raid, time was found to transact a good deal of business, mostly at higher prices. The tone was firm and steel and copper shares were leading features on optimistic American advices.

Investors gave their attention to Colonial bonds, rubber and shipping shares and consols, the latter advancing a quarter of a point. Activity in the American section was confined to United States Steel and Canadian Pacific. The closing was firm.

Money was in good demand and discount rates were steady.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Traditions of Bull Markets.

Traditionally, the bull market is buoyantly strong in the late trading on Saturday, uproarious in the early trading on Monday, and reactionary on Tuesday. By cynics who like to ascribe market movements to manipulation the strength on Saturdays has long been attributed to the idea that it pays to advertise or to the words chanted in an old topical song, "Always leave them laughing when you say good-bye." The present market ran true to that tradition. The market was extensively advertised over Sunday, and traders did leave it laughing when they said good-bye for the week. The Monday opening also accorded with tradition. There has seldom been an opening more hilariously strong. Then, still according to precedent, traders sold, on the old theory that the time to sell is when the other fellow is crazy to buy, weak accounts were uncovered, and the customary reaction set in. The only variation from the old book was that the reaction set in late Monday afternoon rather than on Tuesday morning.

Healthy Reactions.

The phrase "healthy reaction" has long excited derision among speculators caught in the reaction. To them no downward movement is healthy which takes away part of their profits. Particularly, if they have pyramided until the stop-loss orders have been moved close to the market they can see no good in any market action which uncovers their stops. Brokers persist in the characterization, regardless of offense to gambling customers. Many of them, speaking privately, say they are relieved when stop-loss orders close to the market are wiped off their books. In moments of composure they recall that these are still war times and that some unexpected happening, like the Lusitania sinking, might break the market wide open. If nothing more than natural market forces could break Steel common 5 points in an afternoon, they shuddered yesterday to think what might happen on some real bearish development. Scores of brokers slept better last night because many weakly margined accounts had been settled. To them the reaction was healthy beyond a doubt.

Two Million Shares in 1907 and 1916.

Yesterday's two-million share market was made in the course of a bull market which has drawn public money as the stock market has not taken it since the formation of the great industrial combinations in the early nineties. The last previous two-million share day was March 14, 1907, and marked the culmination of the Spring panic, one of the three of that inglorious market year. By common consent that panic was called the "silent panic" at the time and long afterward, until it leaked out that the selling was due principally to the illness contracted by Henry H. Rogers, who was the market leader of the most powerful financial group then in stocks. Only Mr. Rogers's closest associates knew of his attack, and they kept their secret well, while they unloaded stocks until the market could take no more. There was little public interest in this two-million share market of 1907.

Feeling for the Top.

As the bear market of the Spring of 1907 culminated in a day of feverish activity, with wide swings in prices, so most vigorous movements in either direction have ended, though the top of a bull movement seldom displays such wide variations in prices as does the last stroke of a bear drive. Traders who can pick the bottom or the top, of course, garner handsome profits speedily, and the temptation to feel for the top is as great when the market is tumultuously strong and everybody seems bent on buying as it is to feel for the bottom when the market has broken until inexperienced speculators believe that the bottom has dropped out. Yesterday many traders on the floor put out stocks in the morning trading, hoping that the advance then marked the culmination of the bull movement which has attained steadily increasing momentum in the last two weeks. Among them and all brokers and speculators the question of prime interest at the close was whether the top had been reached or whether the afternoon dip meant simply the normal or healthy reaction of a bull market.

Perhaps a Three Million Share Day.

The tape recorded sales of 2,317,000 shares, as compared with the 2,565,070 shares on March 14, 1907. It is certain that the totals for both days were larger, for the messengers lose many sales in days of much less activity, and it is probable that yesterday's turnover was larger than on the previous two-million-share day. On that day the bulk of the transactions were in blocks of 500 shares and upward, with a great many sales of from 1,000 to 10,000 shares. Yesterday more of the sales must have escaped the messengers, for most of the transactions were for the account of the outside public rather than the wealthy men of Wall Street, and were smaller. In yesterday's market also the odd-lot trading, which in 1907 was inconsequential, was of great magnitude. Few of the odd lots appeared on the ticker, nor did the ticker record the bulk of the stop-loss orders that were executed. A keen observer on the floor estimated that a third of the sales were left off the record. If that estimate is true, the turnover exceeded three million shares.

Tax Day October 1st.
The annual tax on personal property in Greater New York for the past five years has averaged $18.56 per $1000. For 1916 it varies from $20.40 per $1000 in New York County to $21.30 per $1000 in Richmond County.
There are many well secured bonds which may be made permanently exempt from this tax by a payment of only $5.00 per $1000.
Our new pamphlet, comprising a list of bonds which may be made exempt and explaining the present Secured Debt Tax Law, will be mailed on request.

Exemption from Personal Property Tax

Those subject to the personal property tax in New York can have practically all their securities exempted from the personal property tax either under the "Secured Debts Tax Law" or the "Mortgage Tax Law."

Under the "Secured Debts Tax Law" exemption is secured by a payment of seventy-five cents per $100 on the face value of the obligation for a period of five years from the date of the payment of the tax.

Tax must be paid prior to January 1, 1917.

Under the "Mortgage Tax Law" the tax is one-half of one per cent. on the face value of the security, and the exemption continues during the life of the obligation.

What constitutes a secured debt, and the distinction between the "Secured Debts Tax Law" and the "Mortgage Tax Law" is explained in our booklet N-269, which is sent upon request.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Trading was more active than on any day of this year on the Consolidated Exchange, and prices for a time displayed a buoyant tone, but near the close a sharp reaction occurred that wiped out many of the earlier advances. United States Steel was again the overshadowing feature.

RESERVE BOARD ELECTIONS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The regular election of Federal Reserve bank Directors of Classes A and B, whose terms expire Dec. 31, 1916, will be held beginning Nov. 21 and continue for fifteen days. There are three Class A Directors in each of the twelve banks, and they are chosen by the stockholding banks of the reserve district. Class B Directors to the number of three are chosen also by the member banks and are required to be persons actively engaged in commerce, agriculture or some other industrial pursuit.

BANKERS BUY SPICER CO.

Concern Is Largest Maker of Auto Drive Shafts and Universal Joints.

A syndicate of bankers headed by Merrill, Lynch & Co. of this city and Cassatt & Co. of Philadelphia has bought the business of the Spicer Manufacturing Company, the largest makers of drive shafts and universal joints for automobiles in this country. It was announced yesterday that a new company was being forme dto take over the Spicer organization. The syndicate is offering $1,500,000 first preferred 8 per cent. stock of the new corporation at $100 per share, with the privilege of conversion into common stock at any time. The new company will bear the same name as the old.

The Spicer Company, the brokers stated, supplied universal joints and shafts to more than 100 automobile concerns. The plants at South Plainfield, N. J., have been running to capacity for the last four years. Net earnings in the current year are estimated by President C. A. Dana in excess of $1,000,000, compared with $600,000 in 1915. The company will have $5,000,00 common stock and $500,000 second preferred, in addition to the offering being made today. Application to list the first preferred on the Stock Exchange will be made shortly.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Tiles, Medals, Wool Panels, and Irish Cloth Are Passed On.

The W. N. Proctor Company, Boston, lost yesterday before the Board of General Appraisers in a protest having to do with the classification of merchandise invoiced as "marble tiles, finished." Duty was assessed at he rate of 6 cents per superficial foot, and an additional 2 cents per superficial foot as being "rubbed in whole or in part." The importing firm admitted that duty should have been assessed at 6 cents per superficial foot, but claimed that the tiles were not rubbed and that they were, therefore, not subject to the extra duty.

Although the testimony was described as "very unsatisfactory," the board sustained a protest by J. A. Jacques, Boston, dealing with the rate to be taken on religious medals. The testimony showed that the articles were sold to the clergy and religious articles stores, and intended to be carried in the pocket in memory of some saint. They were valued at above 20 cents per dozen. The Collector returned them for duty at 60 per cent. as "articles of adornment" to be carried on the person. Judge Sullivan attached more importance to the samples than to the importer's testimony. He said the samples showed that the articles were not used for adornment purposes, but as devotional aids. Consequently the Collector was ordered to admit the goods at 20 per cent. as manufactures in chief value of metal, not specially provided for.

Judge Brown, sitting as a reappraisement official, decided that the Customs officials at this city erred in raising dutiable values on wool panels shipped here by E. Page, Paris. The panels were entered at 275, 297, and 680 francs, respectively. The Appraiser held the goods undervalued, but the General Appraiser disagreed and ordered a liquidation on the entered values.

A controversy settled yesterday between the Government and New York importers of wool cloth from Andrew Wray, Londonderry, Ireland, turned on the question of whether a discount of 10 per cent. should be allowed from the dutiable value. Judge Brown affirmed the local Appraiser in holding the discount a dutiable item.

Less New Haven Stock Abroad.

The latest classification of stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company shows that the foreign stockholders on June 30, 1916, numbered 124, and held 6,505 shares. This compares with a total number of foreign holders a year ago of 138, and a total holding by foreign stockholders of 9,524 shares. Seventy-four stockholders in Europe hold 4,890 shares, as compared with 90 stockholders on June 30, 1915, with 7,994 shares. The number of European stockholders has decreased, therefore, by 16, and their holdings by 3,095.

The Guaranty Trust Company is issuing a pamphlet on Cuba containing detailed information as to the industries and commerce of the island.

The Bondholders' Committee of the Salisbury Steel and Iron Company, J. T. Grayson, Chairman, announced yesterday that owing to a lack of support from the security holders the reorganization plan of the company had been abandoned. Less than one-third of the stockholders subscribed to the plan.

Salomon Brothers & Hutzler have purchased $500,000 United States 3 per cent. April 1, 1917, notes on a 2¾ per cent. basis. This is the initial sale of these notes in the public market. They are issued to Federal Reserve banks in exchange for United States 2 per cent. bonds having the circulation privilege.

Harris, Forbes & Co. of Philadelphia received the award yesterday of the $490,000 4½ per cent. Lima, Ohio, School Improvement bonds at a premium of $12,695.

The Public Service Corporation of Northern Illinois yesterday increased the quarterly dividend from 1½ to 1¾ per cent. on the common stock, and declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock, both payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 17.

COUNTRY BANKERS REBEL.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 25.—The State bank section of the American Bankers' Association organized today. C. C. K. Scoville, President of the Citizens' State Bank of Seneca, Kan., in addressing the members of the section, said:

"This is an important day for the State bankers of the country. The State banks and trust companies of the country number 27,000, or 60 per cent. of the banking power of the United States. We should assume power equal to our strength in the way of obtaining proper legislation from Congress. The Federal Reserve act is good in many ways, but it must be made over. It is undertaking to become the entire financial system of America."

A meeting of country bankers in attendance on the American Association's convention will be held tomorrow. They will then attempt to get the American Association more vigorously committed to amending the Federal Reserve act.

The country bankers believe that their existence is threatened in the attempt to establish the par collection system of the Federal Reserve system. The country bankers assert that one-third of their net profits comes through charging for exchange.

Andrew J. Frame of Waukesha, Wis., is a leader of the country bankers. George W. Rogers of Little Rock, it is expected, will start the discussion of the meeting of the country bankers. Mr. Rogers believes that the Federal Reserve banks have been used to fatten the larger banks in the cities.

BREAK IN COTTON AFTER EARLY GAIN

REPORT ON CROPS BULLISH

Cotton yesterday made an early advance of more than twenty points, and later lost the chief part of this gain, and closed irregular on a net advance of only three to nine points. The incentive for the strength in the early session was furnished by a bullish crop report by The Memphis Commercial Appeal and strong cables. The break was in sympathy with the weakness in the stock market. The Memphis Commercial Appeal, which is one of the leading Southern authorities in reference to cotton, placed the condition of the crop at 58.3, compared with the condition reported last month of 64.9. This decline of 6.6 was construed as very bullish. Liverpool cabled that the market there had opened rather easy, but later showed improvement.

One private cable stated that the market felt that there would not be enough cotton.

The weather details showed generally clear conditions over the entire belt, with the exception of Texas, where scattered showers fell over a wide area. A dispatch from Austin, Texas, estimates the crop for the State at about 4,000,000 bales, and places its value, together with the seed, at $400,000,000. The Federal Reserve Bank at Dallas has put out money for handling the Texas crop at the rate of approximately $500,000 per day.

Southern advices reported a good demand from American mills, as well as for export. Farmers are refusing to sell on declines. A well-known Alabama shipper bases his bullish opinion on the assumption that the advance from 13½ cents to 16 cents was so rapid that the spinners let the market get away from them. He believes that manufacturers are now hoping for a break in order to fix the price on the rest of the cotton they have bought. Market closed steady.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat market was active and strong at the outset, with apparent buying on orders which had accumulated over Sunday, and which doubtless had been prompted by the strength in the market at the close of last week based on the improved export demand. Exporters were again in the market, and sales were estimated at about 900,000 bushels, including about 700,000 to the Greek Government. This buying also had a stimulating effect. On the advance, however, longs were disposed to take profits, and this, together with heavy selling by leading cash houses in the West, caused a sharp reaction, and at the close values were at about the low of the day, ranging from ⅛c advance on September to ⅝c decline for May. The visible supply in the United States increased 1,220,000 bushels, bringing the total to 56,672,000 bushels, against 11,245,000 last year, when there was an increase of 844,000 bushels. In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at $1.79¼; No. 2 hard, $1.71¼; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.84¼; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.81, all free on board.

CORN.

The corn market advanced ¼@½c early in the day in sympathy with wheat, but underlying sentiment was apparently bearish owing to more favorable weather for curing the new crop, and subsequently prices eased off and closed ⅛@⅜c net lower. The visible supply increased 741,000 bushels, against an increase of 210,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 98c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

Prices in the oats market followed corn and wheat, closing ⅛c net lower. Receipts were again large, and the visible increased 2,302,000 bushels, bringing the total to 36,533,000, compared with 15,354,000 last year. Export sales were estimated at 200,000 bushels. The local cash market was firm; standard quoted at 53¼@53¾c; No. 3 white, 53@53½c; No. 4 white, 52¼@52¾c; fancy clipped white, 55¼@57¼c; ordinary clipped white, 53¼@55¼c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

There were only moderate operations in the market for hog products, and price changes were confined within narrow limits. Hog receipts were fairly liberal, and this seemed to discourage buying, especially as it was thought that packers were inclined to anticipate lower prices. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 32,000; estimated for Tuesday, 15,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 8,400.

COFFEE.

The market for coffee futures lost most of its recent rally during today's trading. March contracts sold off to 8.75c and closed at 8.74c bid or even with the lowest point reached last week and about eighteen points under the best level of Saturday. Closing prices were at the lowest point of the day or 12 to 20 points net lower. Sales were reported of 32,750 bags. The local spot market was reported quiet, with prices more or less nominal on the basis of 9⅝c for Rio 7s and 11⅝c for Santos 4s. The futures market at London was 1½ to 6d lower. The official cables from Brazil reported an advance of 75 reis in Rio spots and of 50 reis in Santos futures.

SUGAR.

The sugar futures market was a rather quiet affair today, with the volume of business small, the trading on the exchange being more or less influenced by the dull demand for raw sugar. The close showed net declines of 3 to 10 points, with sales for the day 5,700 tons. Range of prices:

The local market for refined sugar was firm and unchanged at 6.75c to 7c for fine granulated. Trading was light, with refiners said to be far behind in delivery.

The market for raw sugar held steady with no new business reported. Offerings of store and shipment Cubas at 5c remained untaken, refiners showing little or no interest at the moment. Quotations follow: Centrifugals, 6.02c; molasses, 5.12c; cost and freight, 5c.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was firm and higher, closing at net gains of 10 to 15 points. The October position made a new high record for the season, and the near months were relatively stronger than the more distant positions. Range of prices:

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 7,284 packages, including 2,285 packages in transit for export. A further sharp advance on all grades of creamery, and there was fairly good buying at the higher rates quoted. More doing in storage creamery and values have advanced. Renovated fractionally higher, and ladles and packing stock have gained fully ¼c, with a strong market. Creamery, higher scoring than extras, 35½@35¾c; extras, (92 score,) 34¾@34⅞c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 33@34c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 31@32½c; thirds, 30½@31c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 36@36½c; extras, 35@35½c; firsts, 33½@34½c; seconds, 32@33c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 33½@34c; good to prime, 31½@33c; common to fair, 27½@31c; renovated, extras, 30@30½c; firsts, 29@29½c; lower grades, 27½@28½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 29½@30c; ladles, current make, firsts, 28@29c; seconds, 27½c; lower grades, 26@27c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 27½c; No. 2, 26¾@27c; lower grades, 25@26c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 8,945 cases. The market opens with light receipts, but there is a good deal of stock carried over from previous accumulations and the general demand is not active. There is a good demand for strictly fine to fancy qualities, of which the offerings are small, and these rule firm. Average good and ordinary grades of Western are in ample supply and freely offered at unimproved prices. There is a good demand for underpriced eggs, and good lots of dirties and checks are wanted far beyond the present supply; hardly enough offering to give a clear definition of values. Storage eggs are not active. Nearby white eggs of very fancy quality are scarce and wanted rather beyond the supply, but there is a liberal surplus of mixed and irregular qualities for which trade is dull, at very irregular prices. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 38c; extra firsts, 35@37c; firsts, 32@34c; seconds, 29@31c; thirds and poorer, 27@28c; dirties, No. 1, 28c; No. 2 and poorer, 24@27c; checks, good to choice, dry, 26c; undergrades, 22@25c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 31c; firsts, 29½@30c; seconds, 28@29c; lower grades, 25@27½c; dirties, No. 1, 26@27c; refrigerator, State whites, 32@35c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 43@48c; ordinary to good, 32@42c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 30@42c; western and southern gathered whites, 30@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 38@42c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 30@37c.

BLOODSHED AT CUBAN RALLY

Two Killed and Twenty-six Wounded in a Political Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVANA, Sept. 25.—Two men were killed and twenty-six wounded as the result of a conflict between Conservatives and Liberals at Camajuani, Santa Clara Province, today. The fighting took place at a Conservative rally. As usual, each political party blames the other for the bloodshed. The Liberals appear to have been the better shots, as eighteen Conservatives and only eight Liberals, including the Liberal Chief of Police, were wounded.

The Conservatives assert that the Liberals boasted their intention to disperse the Conservative parade, and warned their families not to attend it. They say the Chief of Police, with nine policemen armed with rifles, opened fire on the paraders without cause. The Liberals say that the Conservatives, when they saw the policemen, opened fire without provocation.

Government troops now patrol the town and a military supervisor has been appointed.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The new McBurney School for Boys, organized under the auspices of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association, 318 West Fifty-seventh Street, will open tomorrow morning with Lewis Porter Damon as headmaster.

Evening School 34, Bronx, at Van Nest, will be open for registration this week. The classes which were discontinued last Spring for reasons of economy have been restored, and bookkeeping, stenography, millinery, embroidery, dressmaking, civil service, and the ordinary subjects leading to high school entrance will be taught as heretofore. There will also be a class in cooking. Pupils are urged to register early, so that provision may be made for all who apply.

The City College will open on Oct. 3 a new clinic for the correction of speech defects at the Brooklyn Training School for Teachers, Park Place, west of Nostrand Avenue, to meet the demands of Superintendents, Principals, and parents of Brooklyn who have found it inconvenient to send children on Saturday mornings to the clinic at 138th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, Manhattan. The new clinic will be held on Tuesday afternoons from 3:30 to 5:30, under the direction of Frederick Martin, Director of Speech Improvement, New York City Schools, who will also continue to conduct the clinic at the City College on Saturday mornings. Any one suffering an impediment of speech will be corrected free of charge. Children must be accompanied by either parent or teacher.

The Florence Nightingale School for Nervous and Backward Children will open a day school at 315 West Eighty-seventh Street for children of the same type. The boarding school, of which the day school will be a branch, is near Van Cortlandt Park and lies in the centre of a beautiful private estate. The children are admitted during the whole year, and the courses last twelve months. The day school, which opens Oct. 4, lies between Central and Riverside Drive Parks, where the children can be taken for pleasant walks and instruction in nature study. Besides this, the day school has an open-air playground for the children to play in. May J. Robins supervises the education of the boys and girls at the boarding school. R. S. Fried is Principal of the day school and Sara Weinberger, who is a registered nurse and who made a special study of nervous and backward children, makes certain that all children are in perfect physical health before any education is begun.

The next meeting of the Professional Elementary Teachers' Association will be held in the local board room, Borough Hall, Richmond Borough, Thursday evening, Sept. 28, 8 P. M. Borough Hall is right at the ferry. Elections will be held for the offices of Secretary and Treasurer, as the present incumbents have found it necessary to resign for personal reasons; also for the new offices of Recording Secretary and twenty Assistant Secretaries. The study of the proposed pension bill, begun at the last meeting, will be continued.

Whereas, a petition was filed in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York on the 19th day of September, 1916, by The Cunard Steamship Company, Limited, owner of the steamship "Lusitania" and her pending freight, for limitation of its liability for all loss, damage or injury caused by or resulting from the sinking and total loss of the said steamship "Lusitania" on May 7, 1915; and

Whereas, the said petitioner filed with the Clerk of the said Court on the 19th day of September, 1916, an ad interim stipulation in the sum of $100,000, duly approved, undertaking to pay into the Court within ten days after the entry of an order confirming the report of the Commissioner to be appointed to appraise the amount or value of the said petitioner's interest in the said steamship "Lusitania," and her pending freight, the amount or value of such interest as thus ascertained, or to file in this proceeding a bond or stipulation for value in the usual form with approved surety in said amount;

Now, therefore, in pursuance of a monition issued by the said Court to me directed and delivered, I do hereby cite all persons claiming damages for any and all loss, damage or injury caused by or resulting from the said sinking and loss of the steamship "Lusitania," to file and make due proof of their respective claims before Alex Gilchrist, Jr., Commissioner, at his office at Room 347, U. With an attendance greatly reduced owing to the fear of infantile paralysis, the city's public and parochial schools opened yesterday for the 1916-1917 term. Exact figures could not be obtained, but it was estimated by the educational authorities that out of a possible total of 940,000 about 10 per cent., or 94,000, were kept away by their parents, and about 40,000 more were sent away after they had reported because they had come back to the city within the last two weeks without health certificates.

There were 530 doctors and nurses assigned to the 794 schools, and every pupil had to pass inspection. In the Bronx, in Queens, and in Richmond, where some of the schools were hard to reach automobiles were provided for the medical inspectors.

The Health Department rule was that each child had to tell where he or she had been from Sept. 11 to Sept. 25. Those who had been out of town were required to exhibit health certificates, and if they were satisfactory the bearers were permitted to enter classes.

A Checking-up System.

Those without certificates were kept apart from the other children and were made to fill blanks telling where they had been, giving both the town and the street address. These blanks were sent at once to Dr. Bertram H. Waters, Chief of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, who checked them up by means of the United States Public Health Service Commission's map of infected districts.

Children sent home either will be permitted to come back to classes or will be quarantined after more complete investigation, but Dr. John J. Cronin of the Department of Health said yesterday no child would be allowed to attend classes until after passing a health examination. He added that the Health Department had decided to quarantine the whole house where any case of poliomyelitis appeared. Thus, he pointed out, twenty families might be quarantined because of one case of the disease.

At the office of President Willcox of the Board of Education it was said that exact figures for the enrollment yesterday would be obtainable on next Monday. Spencer Phenix, Mr. Willcox's secretary, said that on the lower east side, where it had been expected that fear of paralysis would prevent normal attendance, the registration had been heavy.

Classrooms Sprayed with Oil.

Teachers have been instructed in the symptoms of infantile paralysis, and classrooms have been sprayed with oil to prevent the spread of germs.

Three new schools were opened in the Bronx, affording an additional seating capacity of 5,264 children, but this did not affect the part-time schedule, owing to the great increase in population in that borough. The new schools are Public School 48, at Spofford Avenue, Coster and Faille Streets, with a seating capacity of 1,924 children; Public School 54, at Intervale Avenue and Freeman Street, seating 1,667, and Public School 55, at St. Paul's Place and Park Avenue, seating 1,673.

When the schools closed last June there were approximately 14,000 children on part time in the Bronx, and it was hoped that the new schools and application of the Gary plan to the others of the borough would end part time, but the appropriation for trying out the Gary plan was made too late for the school opening. Some hope, however, of cutting down the number of part-time pupils is held out for the near future.

No Military Training Orders.

This is the first year the Slater bill, requiring military instruction, has been effective, but at the Board of Education Building it was said yesterday nothing had been done in the schools to carry out the law. General O'Ryan, Chairman of the State Commission for Military Instruction, has been on the border with the State troops, and the other members of the commission, George Fisher and Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education, have given no instructions.

Teachers who formed a battalion last year in order that they might be drilled in the elements of the course they expected to teach this Fall were greatly disappointed. They expected to maintain their organization.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, in charge of the physical training of pupils, said yesterday that this year no student would be allowed to train more than six hours a week for any one athletic event, but that all school children would have three hours a week more of directed physical recreation.

NEW LOW PARALYSIS RECORD.

Fewest New Cases Yesterday for Any Day of the Epidemic.

Infantile paralysis established yesterday a new low record for the number of cases reported. The surgeons of the Public Health Service will leave the city on Oct. 1, Senior Surgeon Charles E. Banks said yesterday.

"I do not apprehend any recrudescence of the epidemic," said Dr. Banks, "but it will be interesting to see if sending the children back to school adds any new fuel to the disease. The theory has been that after all available material has been exhausted infantile paralysis will disappear. If the children go back to school and there is no upward tendency of the disease, this would to some extent discountenance that theory."

Commissioner of Health Haven Emerson said he regretted the publicity that had been given to the case of the Anderson baby in Jamaica, where the police had taken the child to the hospital against the wishes of the mother. He declared that tests had showed the baby really had poliomyelitis, but that it was expected to recover.

"I do not believe that they can get the child back by any court action," said Dr. Emerson. "We have had habeas corpus proceedings in Brooklyn during the epidemic, but those who went into court lost."

Twenty new cases of poliomyelitis were reported yesterday to the New Jersey State Board of Health, distributed as follows:

Roselle Park Borough, 2; Atlantic City, Burlington Township, West Hanover Township, Hamilton Township, Princeton, Trendon, Camden, Winslow, Ocean City, Wildwood, Orange, Jersey City, Long Branch, Paterson, Prospect Park Borough, Elizabeth, Roselle Borough, and Union Township, 1 each.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 25.—A steady decrease in the number of up-State cases of infantile paralysis was shown in the weekly bulletin issued tonight by the State Health Department. For the week ended Sept. 23 127 cases were reported, as compared with 259 for the preceding week, 323 for the week ended Sept. 9, 397 for the week of Sept. 2, and 437 for the last week in August, when the disease reached its "peak."

For the forty-eight hours ended at 5 o'clock this afternoon, 49 cases and 6 deaths were recorded. The deaths occurred in Milford and Oneonta, Otsego County; Middletown, Orange County; Cortlandt, Westchester County; Fulton and Oswego, Oswego County. The following counties reported new cases: Suffolk, 6; Orange and Otsego, 5 each; St. Lawrence, Madison, and Rockland, 4 each; Westchester and Onondaga, 3 each; Oswego, Nassau, Rensselaer, and Ulster, 2 each, and Herkimer, Chautauqua, Delaware, Ontario, Sullivan, Tompkins, and Broome, 1 each.

Harvard to Collect Serum.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 25.—The collection of blood serum from persons who have recovered from infantile paralysis and its distribution among physicians in an attempt to combat the spread of the disease, is to be the work of a commission just organized at the Harvard Medical School, according to an announcement made tonight. The commission consists of Dr. Robert W. Lovett, Professor of Orthopedic Surgery, Chairman; Dr. Milaon J. Rosenau, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene; Dr. Francis W. Peabody, Assistant Professor of Medicine, and Roger Pierce, Secretary.

IN NEW JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY—Patrick Sutton, 23 years old, of 380 Baldwin Avenue, fell overboard and was drowned yesterday while unloading a coal barge at the foot of St. Paul's Avenue for the Public Service Corporation. His body was not recovered.

JERSEY CITY—Mrs. Caroline Armstreet of 112 Beacon Street and her sixteen-year-old daughter Carrie were both badly burned yesterday when fire broke out in the room in which the girl was asleep. Her mother carried her out to safety, as she was overcome by the smoke that filled her room.

NEWARK.—The investigation of the explosion on Sept. 15, at the plant of the Interstate Milk and Cream Company, which resulted in the death of eight men, shows that Frederick Lutz, one of the men killed, was partly responsible for the accident, according to Prosecutor Newman. W. Everett Parsons, a New York engineer, who made the official investigation, said that structural defects in the plant also contributed to the explosion.

BAYONNE—Wallace Bointon, 65 years old, a watchman employed by the Flower Waste and Packing Company, committed suicide yesterday by swallowing cyanide of potassium.

NEWARK.—The twelfth annual report of the Shade Tree Commission, issued for 1915, shows that there are 66,238 trees in the streets of this city, 20,704 of which were planted by the commission. Of these, 1,546 new trees were planted last year, at an average cost of $4.26.

BLOOMFIELD.—First Assistant Fire Chief Arthur Leuthauser has resigned for business reasons, after being a member of the Fire Department for many years.

ORANGE.—Three motorists had blowouts on Sunday at about the same time on the main thoroughfare here. All three treated the accidents as jokes.

ORANGE.—C. L. Dorland of 136 North Seventeenth Street, East Orange, has asked the police to find a junk dealer to whom he sold a bureau in which there was a diamond locket worth $80. The only description he gave the police was that the junk man had a white horse.

TURKISH CIGARETTES

IT'S a risky thing to advertise a cigarette the way I do unless it has the merit claimed for it, because my advertising is sure to be criticised. If the advertising doesn't stand the test, it will be worse than no advertising at all.

So, I haven't said a thing about Lord Salisbury that isn't 100% pure. Read this next paragraph carefully and see if it doesn't solve your cigarette problem in three distinct ways. Next week I will show you figures that will prove it.

Lord Salisbury is the only 100% pure all-Turkish-tobacco cigarette in existence that sells for as low a price as 15 cents for 20. All others cost more money.

Consequently Lord Salisbury saves you 25 per cent on your cigarette bill—and the more you smoke the more you save.

BREAD PRICES

An Important Change

EVERY HOUSEWIFE KNOWS that all materials used in bread making as well as the paper for wrapping have greatly advanced in price and understands that the baker has no alternative but to adjust his price for bread. Therefore, beginning Monday, October 2nd, our present small size TIP-TOP and DAINTY-MAID bread, wrapped as usual with added weight, will retail at SIX CENTS the loaf, as will also the small fancy breads, such as WHEATHEART, VIENNA, COTTAGE BUNS, small RYE, and all other small varieties.

While the war prices we are paying for flour, sugar, milk, shortening and other bread-making materials force us to this step, we wish it understood that with the increase in price, added weight will be given in the loaves above referred to.

Anticipating some demand for a nickel loaf, we will on the same day, October 2nd, introduce a small loaf of TIP-TOP and DAINTY-MAID bread at a reduced weight with proper label, unwrapped, to be retailed at FIVE CENTS.

This FIVE CENT loaf will be too small to manufacture satisfactorily and we therefore recommend that you purchase either the SIX CENT loaf, or our large TIP-TOP or DAINTY-MAID loaves, which will continue to retail to you at TEN CENTS, wrapped as heretofore.

We especially recommend your purchase of the large TEN CENT TIP-TOP or DAINTY-MAID loaves because they are the most economical to buy, containing more than the amount of two FIVE CENT loaves. In flavor and eating qualities they are superior—will not dry out so quickly and in every way will give better satisfaction.

These price and weight adjustments which the tremendous cost of raw materials compels us to make will not be permitted to interfere with the WARD standard of quality, which will continue to be 100% in all our breads.
